

SNEED'S ALLEGED ALLY WAS BORN IN M'LENNAN COUNTY

BEACH B. EPTING CHARGED WITH IMPLICATION IN KILLING OF AL G. BOYCE.

'MYSTERIOUS THIRD MAN'

Admits He Was With Sneed in Amarillo and Rented House Near Scene of the Tragedy.

Epting Born at West.

West, Tex., Sept. 21.—Beach B. Epting, who is charged with complicity in the killing of Al G. Boyce, Jr., by John Neal Sneed at Amarillo, was born and raised near this place. He with his family left here about five years ago for Cottle county, where he since has lived. He has six children.

A number of Epting's relatives live in this county. While Epting made his home in McLennan county his reputation was of the best.

Amarillo, Tex., Sept. 21.—As the time set for the hearing of John Neal Sneed's application for bail draws near, interest in the case grows more intense. When the case is taken up in the Forty-Seventh district court Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, it is expected the courtroom will be filled to its capacity by spectators, including a large number of friends and relatives of Sneed and Al G. Boyce, Jr., for whose murder he is charged in an indictment.

Sneed's counsel and special counsel to assist the state in resisting the application for bail have arrived.

Arrest Alleged Confederate.
The mysterious assistant of John Neal Sneed in his concealment for a week at Amarillo near the scene of the killing of Al G. Boyce has been identified as Beach B. Epting, a farmer on the Sneed farm near Paducah.

Epting was arrested late yesterday by the sheriff of Cottle county. He is identified by O. K. Gilvin, from whom he rented the house of vigil on Polk street, and L. J. Kendrick, from whom he purchased the window shades put in the house the day before the killing. According to District Attorney Bishop, Epting admits being in Amarillo with Sneed, but denies any knowledge of a plot or plan to kill Al G. Boyce.

His arrest followed quiet but thorough work by the Amarillo authorities. It was first discovered from another former on the Paducah property that Epting had arrived there the day following the killing, after an absence of about six weeks. With this as a clue, it was soon ascertained that he had gone to Paducah from Quanah, after spending the night there. It was then ascertained that he had come from Quanah on the train from the north that left Amarillo at 6:25 o'clock Saturday evening, the day of the tragedy.

Indictment Charges Murder.
Following his arrest by the sheriff of Cottle county, he was confronted with the real estate man and the furniture dealer, both of whom identified him. Beach B. Epting is under indictment on a charge of murdering Al G. Boyce.

The name "Beach" is now conceded to have been confused with the similarity of sound with "Pete," the latter name which had been fastened on the man who is alleged to have been with Sneed during his arrangements for the contact with Boyce. Epting is a farmer 34 years of age, who, with his wife and six children, live near where he was arrested.

The prisoner admits he rented the house at 503 Polk street from O. K. Gilvin for Sneed, and that he bought the window shades used, together with the furniture used, from a local firm, and was with Sneed during the time of preparation for the tragedy. Epting, however, does not admit that he knew of the purposes for which the cottage was rented, nor that he was aware of the intentions of Sneed at the time of renting or furnishing the cottage.

Epting a Special Deputy.
The man arrested yesterday was a special deputy under Sheriff Backus of Cottle county, and at the time of his arrest was working as an overseer of a force of men on the public roads.

The man has been viewed and positively identified by those with whom he came in contact during the week of the tragedy in Amarillo, and makes no attempt to conceal the fact that he was here during that period.

A statement was given out this morning by Sheriff Burwell that, so far as he knew, this will end the accomplice or confederate charge. The grand jury, which is to meet Monday, will investigate the charge against the special deputy of Sheriff Backus of Cottle county, and if there remains any suggestion of still another party or parties, it will also receive attention.

The arrest and identification of Epting clears up the failure of friends in Amarillo to recognize the purchaser of furniture and shades for the house rented by Sneed. All of the dealers and the real estate agents were well acquainted with Sneed, and they declared from the first that he was not the man.

Sneed himself has made no additional statement since the arrest of the man who is said to have been with him prior to the killing. Epting is not well known in Amarillo.

Washington, Sept. 21.—Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood will leave here Monday for an inspection of the national defenses. The tour of inspection will include the Mexican frontier to San Antonio and New Orleans and the coast defenses of the Atlantic seaboard.

REVOLT MUST END IN MONTH

CARRIED WARNING FROM UNITED STATES.

El Paso, Tex., Sept. 21.—Minister Calero, when he left Washington two weeks ago, carried to President Madero warning from the state department to put down the revolution in thirty days, according to Juan Pedro Didap, tonight. Senor Didap comes here directly from Washington, whence he asserts he represented the Zapata revolution in the south of Mexico. He says he can speak for the Orozco revolution that Francisco de la Barra will be acceptable both to Zapata and Orozco as a provisional president, warranting the suspension of police in all the republic.

"Viva Orozco," cried derisive federal sympathizers at the station tonight when Col. Pascual Orozco Sr., former military chief of Juarez and father of the leader of the Mexican revolution, arrived from Marfa, Tex., handcuffed to an alleged smuggler, in custody of a United States marshal.

"The revolution will triumph," retorted Orozco to the crowd of hooting Mexicans who followed him to the jail. The colonel was cool as only a thin shirt protecting him from the sharp wind. He will have a preliminary examination on a charge of murder, preferred by the Mexican consul at El Paso, who seeks his extradition to Mexico.

Col. Jose Cordova Suarez, a member of Gen. Orozco's staff and the prime adviser of the rebel commander in chief, was detained at Marfa pending the completion of extradition charges.

Federals Are Besieged.

Monterey, Mex., Sept. 21.—With slight hope of escape, the detachment of 100 federal soldiers sent by General Trevino to drive the rebels from his ranch at La Bahia, Coahuila, are besieged, according to a courier who brought the news to the general today.

Because of the depleted local garrison, General Trevino declined to send relief to the little band. The war department has been asked for reinforcements for Monterey and they are expected to arrive tonight. The courier reported that instead of 250 the number of rebels previously reported in the vicinity of Musquiz, their strength was not less than 800. When he left Musquiz the courier reported the pass of La Rosita, south of La Bahia, was open but he expressed the belief that the rebels have captured Rosita and the pass, thus completely surrounding the government forces.

Epting Slept With Sneed.

Quanah, Sept. 21.—District Attorney Bishop and Deputy Sheriff Peter Gilvain from Amarillo passed through here yesterday, having in custody Beach Epting of the Sneed ranch in Cottle county. Epting acknowledged being the man who rented the house for Sneed in Amarillo. He said he slept with Sneed until the day of the killing, returning home that day.

BECKER FINDS NEW WITNESS

HE IS A HOT SPRINGS BATH HOUSE PROPRIETOR—WILL TESTIFY MONDAY.

OPEN SCHEPPS HEARING

Judge Huff, Who Is Presiding, Rules
He Has No Authority to Entertain Affidavits.

Hot Springs, Ark., Sept. 21.—The announcement that J. W. Hart, representing Police Lieutenant Becker, will ask a new witness to testify and the examination of two witnesses in three hours, marked the beginning of a hearing today before Judge Huff to determine what Sam Schepps said in Hot Springs concerning the Rosenthal case. Hearing will continue Monday.

District Attorney Whitman agreed to a stipulation that the new witness, Gilbert Hogaboom, proprietor of a bath house frequented by Schepps, shall be called to testify probably Monday. Both sides expressed gratification at the progress made today.

Thomas J. Pettit, acting mayor at the time of Schepps' capture here, was first called, but before the oath was administered Mr. Hart suggested the special commissioner provide process for at least one additional witness of whom Mr. Hart said he had learned, and Becker's lawyer asked the district attorney to enter into a stipulation for the issuance of process.

Mr. Whitman declined, but suggested that Mr. Hart file an affidavit. Judge Huff announced he had no authority to entertain affidavits. Mr. Whitman said if a witness named were here today, the district would assent to his being examined.

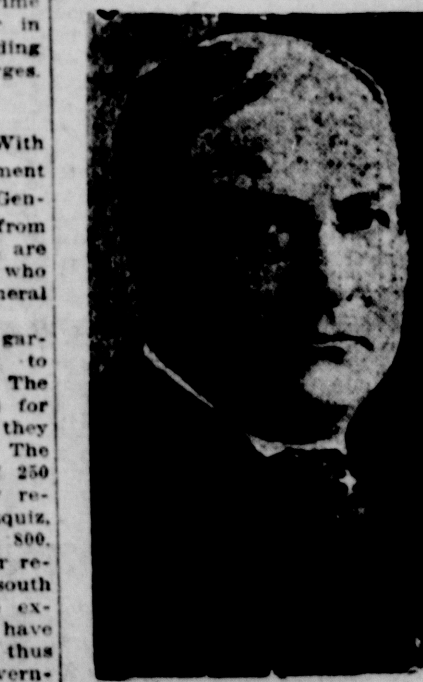

Mr. Hart then dictated a stipulation and the district attorney agreed to it with the understanding that the name of the witness later would be supplied. Mr. Hart then sent out for the witness.

Acting Mayor Testifies.
Mr. Pettit was sworn and in his testimony said Schepps explained that a lawyer named Sullivan in New York advised Schepps, "make your get away and go as far as you can" and that Schepps told Sullivan, "well, I'm off for Hot Springs."

Mr. Hart asked the witness whether he had seen a telegram to Schepps stating that Mr. Whitman was the "only living man who could give him immunity." The reply was the witness had not seen such a telegram, but had kept one to that effect read by Douglas Hotchkiss. When Sullivan, a newspaper man, who gave his home as New Orleans and who said he arrived in Hot Springs the day Schepps was arrested, was called, Mr. Hart interposed and asked leave to call Gilbert Hogaboom, his new witness. The district attorney objected to Hogaboom being called at this time. After a "spirited colloquy" between Mr. Whitman and Mr. Hart, the district attorney agreed to the stipulation that Mr. Hogaboom may be called for oral examination later in the hearing.

Sullivan's testimony dealt with the activity here of Gerald D. Burns in the interest of counsel for Becker. This witness told of Burns having approached him; of Burns outlining that which it was desired to prove for the defense, that Schepps said of Burns asking Sullivan if the newspaper men could make such statements and of his having declined to make them because of his lack of any knowledge of any facts of use to the defense.

FIERY ANSWER BY BULL MOOSE

ROOSEVELT ACCUSES GOVERNOR
WILSON WITH MAKING MIS-STATEMENTS IN SPEECH.

OPEN SCHEPPS HEARING

Says Wilson Is the Buchanan of the Present Industrial Situation in the United States.

Topeka, Kan., Sept. 21.—"Mr. Wilson is the Buchanan of the present industrial situation in the United States."

Colonel Roosevelt thus summed up his opinion of the democratic presidential candidate position tonight. He said Governor Wilson had "directly inverted the truth" and said his knowledge of the Roosevelt administration was gained from the "revelation of the class room at the time he was still taking the position of an ultra-conservative and was being carefully groomed for the presidency by George E. Harvey and other representatives of Wall street interests."

"At Detroit yesterday," said Colonel Roosevelt, "Mr. Wilson made a statement which purported to be an answer to what I said in Colorado. I say 'purported' because it was in no shape or way an answer at all. Moreover, so far as his utterance can be said to contain any statement at all, it is simply a misstatement of facts."

First to Fight Trusts.
"He states that the trusts grew faster during my administration than previously. Let him be frank enough and manly enough to admit what he cannot deny, that my administration was the first administration that ever undertook to enforce the law against the trusts. It is not in accordance with the facts to say that they grew faster during my administration than during any other by growth is meant a growth in illegal trusts, for most of the growth referred to was merely a growth in corporations due to the general prosperity."

Mr. Wilson says that our proposed commission would not tell how other men should be admitted into the field of competition with the trusts. This is an absolute misstatement. Mr. Wilson should do well hereafter to not attempt to state our position without taking the trouble to find out what it is. Our platform says explicitly that our commission must attack unfair competition, false capitalization and political privilege, and by continued trained watchfulness, guard and keep open equally to all the highways of American commerce."

Answers Columbus Speech.
"At Columbus yesterday Mr. Wilson, I am sorry to say, in his inability to answer what we progressives have said, he takes refuge in what I, of course, assume to be an unintentional misstatement. He says 'that leaders of the progressive party have abandoned any serious attempt to meet the main issues of the campaign.'"

"He knows that is not in accordance with the facts. There is not any issue in the campaign that we have not met with fearlessness from the tariff to the trusts. He says that every day we seek new issues and shift the ground of debate."

"This is not again in accordance with the facts. Every issue that I have raised I have met, and I have met it fairly by quoting his position, by stating it exactly, and then by answering it. I have shifted the ground of debate only when he shifted. The trouble has been that as soon as I have gotten on his ground he realizes that he cannot meet me, and hastily jumps to my position."

Position Like That of Buchanan.

"Mr. Wilson's position as regards the trusts and all industrial questions is precisely like that of Mr. Buchanan in 1860 towards the dissolution of the union."

"Mr. Buchanan said that the union ought to be preserved and then added that there was not any way to preserve it. He stated that secession was unconstitutional, but also all methods for putting down secession were unconstitutional. Mr. Wilson says that it is good to have fine purposes for helping labor and regulating the trusts, but he is against every practical expedient toward that end. Mr. Wilson is the Buchanan of the present industrial situation in the United States."

Colonel Roosevelt left tonight for Emporia, Kansas, where he will spend Sunday with William Allen White, progressive national committeeman.

Men Who Are Making Waco

—Sketched from Life by Gilbert, Staff Cartoonist Waco Morning News.

James H. Mackey, mayor of Waco, has advanced to the head of the city government after serving as a member of the first commission, when Waco adopted that form of government. Being representative for years in all things that were of the commercial life of Waco, he met ready support from the active, energetic business interests when he offered first for city commissioner. As soon as he assumed office he began the installation of System in all city affairs in which he had a voice, and especially was this the case in books and records which came under his observation and control as finance commissioner. Since he became mayor he has exercised the same oversight and care in municipal affairs that he has given to his private business, and his administration has been a success. His ambition is to see Waco become the best paved city, with the best sidewalks; the best lighted city, with lamps conveniently located; the best police city, with the most complete system; the most sanitary city, with the most complete sewerage system; the best protected city, with the most complete fire department and lowest insurance rate; the city with the most water, and the purest; with the prettiest parks, and the best kept; the most convenient car service, with commodious cars. Although his hair is white as snow, he is yet a young man, and he has the activity and energy which comes with youth and a progressive spirit. He takes a lively interest in the commercial organizations of the city. He was pleased recently when J. J. Pastoriza came from Houston, which is famed as the model commission governed city, and said Waco is far ahead of Houston in all things.

WILSON POLICY IS PROGRESSIVE

ONLY WAY DEMOCRATIC PARTY CAN GAIN NATION'S CONFI-DENCE—OPPOSES SMITH.

Jersey City, Sept. 21.—Gov. Woodrow Wilson proclaimed tonight in a speech on the New Jersey senatorial situation that the only condition upon which the democratic party can gain the confidence of the nation is "that it should have itself through and through committed to a progressive policy. Just so certainly as it turns back, just so certainly as it makes any other choice, it will be rejected now and need have no hope whatever of being chosen again for our generation."

"The amazing thing to me is that men do not everywhere see this. We are not speaking of our individual opinions. We are the spokesmen of a great progressive force in this nation. Why is it that some men who would naturally ally themselves with the third party in this nation are now refusing to do so? Because they say there was no excuse for the formation of that party after the profession of principles and the nominations of the Baltimore convention. Before the campaign began the very leaders of that party admitted that I stood by the very things that they profess to stand for. Any man who stands in the way of this great movement of humanity must stand aside. He can not walk with the triumphant hosts of the great democracy."

Mr. Smith distinctly takes his part with those men who mean to maintain the present protective tariff. The men who have grown so big as to threaten the power of the government itself by means of the tariff are not the friends of the laboring man. I take leave to believe that the tariff is not meant for the workingman."

BANDITS ROB MARLIN STORE

HOLD UP CASHIER WHEN THE ESTABLISHMENT IS CROWDED WITH CUSTOMERS.

TAKE $800 IN CURRENCY

Robbers Wore Handkerchiefs Over Their Faces and Were Armed With Automatic Firearms.

Marlin, Tex., Sept. 21.—While one man stood guard at the door with an automatic shotgun, another climbed over the railing to the cashier's desk and with an automatic pistol forced the youth who guarded the money to hand over currency to the amount of $800 in the largest department store in the town, at 8:30 o'clock tonight. It was a busy time in the establishment of Holloway & Gardner at 8:30, Saturday night, hundreds of cotton pickers are in town and they crowd the big establishments on their weekly buying expedition. Clerks were all busy, lights were burning brightly and the greatest activity of the evening was in progress. Mr. Gardner had just finished counting the cash, and had gone to supper. The currency and the silver and the checks had been separated in the counting, and leaving for his evening meal the proprietor turned the cashier's desk over to Ocie Barton, a youth about 16 years of age, who is the cashier of the establishment.

Cashier's Desk Near Street.
The cashier's desk is located at the wrapping counter. The wrapping counter is a few feet from the rear door of the store, and this rear door is just opposite the Houston and Texas Central depot. The vicinity of the rear door is the only part of the neighborhood where there are no electric lights burning. Anyone can stand in the streets outside the store, sixty feet away and see what is going on at the wrapping counter, and it would have been easy for the men who later robbed the establishment to have stood there and watched the money counting operation.

Robbers Wore Masks.
Both the men wore slouch hats and had their faces hidden with red bandana handkerchiefs. They appeared to be young men and were of medium size. The first the cashier knew of the intrusion was when one of the men came over the railing, pointing an automatic pistol at him and requiring of him not to make an outcry. The other man stood at the door with his shotgun. As quick as it could be done the robber gathered up all the currency in sight—about $800. He discarded checks and silver and left by the rear door as quickly as he came. The route of the men is supposed to have been southeast, around the freight depot and down the track.

Posse Hunts Bandits.
The alarm was at once given and Sheriff M. J. Poole organized a posse to go in pursuit.

Holloway and Gardner have offered a reward of $250 for the capture of the men.

The bold robbery, which is the most exciting thing that has ever happened here, has aroused the entire town, and there are many who are volunteering to go with the sheriff in pursuit.

Hookworm Cases in Angelina County on Increase—Several New Banks Approved.

Austin, Tex., Sept. 21.—In an opinion to Commissioner of Labor Statistics J. A. Starnes, First Assistant Attorney General R. E. The opinion was delivered in regard to the eight-hour law test cases to be tried in Harris county. Four large fees are asked.

The amendment was submitted by the Thirty-Second legislature by a vote in the house of 105 yeas and 0 nays; in the senate by 25 yeas and 0 nays. It was indorsed in Plank 3, Democratic Platform 1912, by the Farmers' Congress, the State Association of District and County Clerks, the State Sheriffs' Association, the State Association of County and District Attorneys and the State Teachers' Association.

"If the friends of education and those who desire the most practical and business-like management of our asylums and prisons, will use their influence and their vote for this measure, Texas will take another advance step at the November election," says Mr. Clark.

EXPECTS U. S. TO INTERVENE

MEXICANS AGREE MADERO GOVERNMENT IS UNABLE TO COPE WITH THE SITUATION.

FINANCES RUNNING LOW

Rebellion, Instead of Being Suppressed, Is Expanding—Americans Continue to Leave the Republic.

Mexico City, Sept. 21.—Six months ago residents of Mexico's capital were afraid there would be intervention. Today a fair part of those same people are afraid there will not be. When the United States is going to take a hand in Mexico's troubles forms the basis for half the conversation wherever foreigners are gathered. When Pascual Orozco stepped at the head of his rebel army a man who dared suggest that a foreign army would some day be required to restore order was made to feel uncomfortable by the replies. But the attitude of most foreigners has changed and it is not difficult to find scores of Mexicans who agree that their government is almost helpless.

President Madero began his campaign against the rebels on the old premise that "we have the men and we have the money," assuming, therefore, that the government was bound to win. The government has not lost and it may win, but it is by no means certain that it has enough men and it is certain that money is scarce. The rebel army of the north, due largely to the difficulties encountered in getting ammunition, has been forced to divide into light columns, but it is still in existence and working the federal army more, perhaps, than it did when it was massed along the Mexican Central railway north and south of Chihuahua.

In the south the Zapatistas and Salgadistas and various other groups are more formidable than they were when Madero went into office almost a year ago. Instead of suppressing the rebellion, the government has permitted it to expand. Instead of life and property of non-combatants being made more safe, they have been made more precarious and slowly the rebels appear to be losing that respect they once had for foreigners and their property.

An army much larger than that now in the field might make more progress in restoring order, but Mexicans have not crowded the recruiting offices and companies of "volunteers" have in a few cases been made up of prisoners, some of whom chose military service as a substitute for prison life and some of whom were deliberately forced into the army. Life in the army, even to crush a rebellion, has not appealed to the average Mexican whose attitude towards the difficulties of the administration is wholly passive.

If the government can secure the money it is possible the struggle may be prolonged. It is costing something like 3,500,000 pesos ($1,750,000) a month to continue the war. Two loans have been made and it is reported an effort is being made to secure another. The nation's income has been materially reduced. Importations have fallen off to a marked degree and ordinary business throughout the republic is at low ebb.

Pride and love of country force almost all Mexicans to resent the suggestion of intervention, but hundreds can be found who privately will admit that there is small chance for this government to put an end to the rebellion. A large part of those probably would fight should a foreign army enter Mexico, but even then it is doubtful if there would not be a great passive element, content to denounce the foreign foe, but without carrying a gun.

Seventy-five per cent, at least, of the Americans in the smaller cities and towns of the republic have left the country and from the capital the exodus totals possibly half the normal population of the American colony.

A blood-stained, scantily-clad "senorita," limping into town in her bare feet in the early morning hours, brought to light a tale of romance in theatrical and bull-fight circles which ended in a resort to the duelling code. Maria Concepcion Gonzalez and Carolina Kutze Arellano, in their hours off duty at a local theater, each strove to win the affections of one Carlos Garcia, a gold-spangled knight of the cape.

Maria, known as "La Muneca," which translated means "The Doll," appeared to be losing her share of the affections of the Don Juan. In desperation she proposed a duel with stiletos, to which Carolina, to prove herself worthy of the object of their "disgusto," agreed.

Accordingly, one night "after the show," the two took a taxicab to a point far out on the "Calzada de Talpam," a lonely road at that hour of the night, and to make the thing more impressive, selected the scene of a recent mysterious murder for the duel. Here, according to the police, they fought until Carolina fell to the ground, slashed in a dozen places and weak from loss of blood. The victorious Maria then proceeded to relieve her defeated rival of mantilla and other portions of her clothing, including her shoes and stockings. Both young women were arrested. La Carolina is being cared for in the city hospital under guard.

Typhoid More Deadly Than Plague

Dr. McLaughlin of Federal Health Service Says Yearly Toll Is 25,000—Ravages Greater in United States—More Than 4,250,000 People of Country Attacked—Plans to Check Disease.

Typhoid fever entails a loss on the people of the United States of more than one hundred million dollars a year. While American people are appalled at the ravages of the bubonic plague in the Orient and cholera epidemics in Russia, typhoid fever in this country claims more lives and entails more economic loss.

It is estimated by the officials of the public health service at Washington that 4,250,000 people of this country are attacked by typhoid fever every year. This disease causes at least 25,000 deaths a year.

The pollution of streams from which water supplies are drawn is in a large part responsible for the spread of typhoid fever in the United States. This is the substance of a statement made by Dr. Allen J. McLaughlin of the public health service.

Congress at the last session amended the law governing the public health service and broadening the scope of that service so that it is now authorized to investigate the diseases of man, their cause and mode of diffusion, involving the supervision of navigable waters, which are under the jurisdiction of the federal government, in order to protect them against pollution by sewage and other contaminating conditions.

This is a step taken by the congress in an effort to minimize the dangers from the contamination of the water supply of the cities located on navigable rivers, and the executive department of the government has at the same time taken advantage of the water boundaries treaty to secure from the government of Canada an agreement to submit to the international joint commission similar questions for investigation.

Joint Fight Against Germ. The international joint commission and the public health service therefore have joined hands in the fight to be waged against the typhoid germ.

Discussing health conditions, Dr. McLaughlin called attention to the fact that in Northern Europe thirty-three principal cities with an aggregate population of 31,500,000 had an average typhoid death rate of 6.5 in 100,000 in the years of 1909 and 1910, while fifty registration cities in the United States with a combined population of 20,000,000 had a typhoid death rate of 25 in 100,000.

"A conservative estimate for the year 1910," said Dr. McLaughlin, "will place the deaths from typhoid fever above 25,000 in the United States. For the whole of the United States the number of cases for each year preventable by means within our grasp would total 16,500. In 1909 there were more cases of typhoid fever in the United States than cases of plague in India, in spite of the fact that India's population is two and one-half times that of the United States."

"From January, 1907, to October, 1911, there occurred in Russia 252,584 cases of Asiatic cholera. This included the appalling epidemic of 1910. According to a conservative estimate there occurred in the United States during the same period one million and a quarter cases of typhoid fever, or more than four cases of typhoid fever in the United States for every case of cholera in Russia."

"We heard a great deal of the ravages of cholera in Italy in 1910-11, yet in those two years there occurred in Italy about 16,000 cases of cholera and about 6000 deaths, and in the United States in the same period we had more than half a million cases of typhoid fever and 50,000 deaths."

Economic Loss Appalling. "We were accustomed to speak of these countries as pest ridden, and a residence there or even a brief visit is considered with apprehension. But do we consider the prevalence of typhoid fever in our own country with sufficient seriousness? These 25,000 deaths annually do not represent our total loss from typhoid fever. At a conservative estimate there are a quarter of a million cases of typhoid fever each year.

"These cases represent an average illness for each individual of four weeks and possibly six or eight weeks of enforced abstinence from any gainful occupation. The economic loss is appalling, and computing the value of lives lost to the community, the cost of medical attendance and hospital care, the loss of earning capacity for many weeks, the decreased efficiency of the total loss would reach a sum not less than $190,000,000 annually."

"The government has issued orders that all soldiers, sailors and marines be sent to Cuba, Mexico, Nicaragua or the Philippines shall be inoculated for typhoid, and there are scores of army officers in Washington now who complain of being 'wooly' with typhoid germs given them hypodermically by the surgeons to guarantee them against the fever when they go to the tropics or other unsanitary parts of the world in defense of the flag.

"But while we are taking all this trouble to protect our army and navy from typhoid fever when they go away from home we are ignoring the fact that we have worse typhoid conditions, more typhoid cases and more deaths from the disease than any other civilized country."

"We shiver at unsanitary Russia and Turkey and Italy and we tolerate conditions in sanitation that are unknown in those countries. We read with dread of the ravages of the plague in India and are ready to scrape the treasury vaults to protect our shores from the invasion and feel faint as we read of the cholera epidemic in Russia, forgetting that we have more deaths from typhoid fever in these United States than there are from both the plague and cholera in the Far East."

Millions Are Concerned.

"Millions of people are directly concerned in the measure about to be taken to prevent the continued pollution of the northern boundary waters."

"The boundary waters between the United States and Canada extend from Cornwall on the St. Lawrence to the Lake of the Woods, a distance of more than 2000 miles. On the American side of that boundary there are more than 5,000,000 people living in cities with a population of 25,000 and upward, while there are also many cities on the Canadian side of the water-line which promise to grow to centers of population with the development of water power at Niagara Falls and many other points."

"These cities on both sides of the boundary take their water supply from the Great Lakes and rivers which form the boundary and they also utilize the same boundary waters for the disposal of their sewage. This situation, together with the location of Montreal, Quebec and other Canadian cities on the St. Lawrence, which is the outlet of the whole lake region, promises to develop an international problem of no inferior character in the near future, and the two governments have determined to utilize the International Joint commission to try to find a way to settle that problem before it becomes one for international representation."

Niagara Falls Greater Death Rate.

"The seriousness of the present situation may be illustrated by the condition of Niagara Falls. The little city which takes its name from the falls has the greatest recorded typhoid death rate in the world, and with its hundreds of thousands of visitors, every year typhoid germs are said to be distributed from that city to every state in the union and every country under the sun."

"The city of Niagara Falls is situated at what might be termed the outlet of the great international sewers, which carries the sewage of millions of people living on both sides of Lakes Erie, Huron, Michigan and Superior, which may not be dangerous because of the partial purification of the water in its sweep eastward and the action of the sun and waves, but there is also the great city of Buffalo and the smaller cities of the Tonawandas and all on the river to receive their sewage direct."

"In 1907 this city of Niagara Falls had a typhoid death rate of 22.4 per 100,000 population and an average of 130 for the last ten years. This is the heaviest typhoid death toll recorded anywhere in the civilized world, and it by no means tells the whole story which is written in the suffering of many people in every part of this country and Europe who have carried the seeds home with them as the largest part of the price of their visit to America's famous natural wonder."

"This condition at Niagara Falls is not wholly one of its own creation. It is true that the people there might recognize the danger of locating their water supply in the Niagara river, but they are not responsible for the condition of the river because it is the outlet of the sewage from the cities above. The Niagara river is boundary water and neither the state of New York nor the federal government can control its use."

To Find a Remedy.

"It must be by some international authority, and the International Joint commission has, by order of the two neighboring governments, been given charge of finding a remedy in this, as in the use of boundary waters for navigation and power development. It is probably the most important question that will ever be submitted to the commission because it concerns all the people of the two countries and in a measure the whole civilized world."

"Chemical analysis has demonstrated that there are no purer or more healthful waters on the continent than those of the Great Lakes in their natural state. They are the natural water supply for the people along that international boundary and could be advantageously used by many other cities at a distance from the lakes if they were not contaminated by sewage and the refuse of the factories, etc."

Mrs. John Epps Vindicated.

Huntington, Ind., Sept. 21.—Mrs. John Epps, who served 23 years in the Indiana woman's prison for the murder of her husband, and who was paroled six years ago, has been vindicated. It was learned tonight, by the deathbed confession of Henry Epps, a brother, who died a few weeks ago, saying that he poisoned his brother.

TEACHERS' UNION CAUSES ALARM

ANTI-PATRIOTIC SPIRIT GROWS IN RANKS OF PUBLIC EDUCATORS OF PARIS.

POLITICS CREEPING IN

At Recent Session of Congress Forty-nine Unions Were Represented, Showing Large Increase.

Paris, Sept. 21.—Public opinion in France has been, for some time past, alarmed by the rapid growth of anti-patriotic spirit in the ranks of the public school teachers, and the action of the government in ordering the suppression of the Teachers' Union after the very improper resolutions passed at the recent congress of the National Federation of Teachers' Unions, has met with general approval.

It has long been clear that the Teachers' Unions, which in many departments have taken the place of the old Friendly Societies and are frankly political in their intention, have come under the control of the extreme section of the profession. At the recent congress 49 unions were represented, an increase of 21 since last year.

Attempts are made by the more moderate section of the teachers to suggest that the resolutions passed do not express the opinion of the great majority of the profession, but the fact remains that they were passed unanimously, and if the belief expressed in 1905 by M. Rouvier, then prime minister, was correct—namely, that 40 per cent of the teachers were at that time contaminated with Socialism, it seems likely that, with the general growth of the movement, the evil today is so widely spread as amply to justify the general alarm which fills the columns of the press.

The resolution of the congress, which has especially brought down upon it the condemnation of the government, was one expressing the adherence of the federation to an anti-militarist organization known as the "Bou du Soldat"—the "Soldier's Cent." This organization was originally started by the Masons' Union of Paris and seeks, with the proceeds of a collection of one cent a month among its members, to spread anti-militarism in the army. Its object, in fact, is to promote in the army the propaganda of the General Labor federation.

Last year M. Messimy, then minister of war, endeavored by prosecuting all soldiers known to belong to the organization to put a stop to the evil. It is, therefore, considered particularly alarming, from the patriotic point of view, to find the Federation of Teachers, with whom rests the duty of instructing the youth of France in patriotic ideals, publicly declaring its adherence to this movement. The Teachers' Unions have no legal existence, but have been merely tolerated, like other existing unions of officials, pending legislation.

The great Cameo of France, the frame and pedestal of which, lost for a century, has just been recovered owing to the exertions of M. Babillon, keeper of the Medal room at the national library, has been placed on exhibition again.

This work of art is a marvelously carved agate representing the glorification of Germanicus. It belonged originally to the Imperial treasury of the Caesars at Rome, then to that of the Byzantine emperors. Baldwin II, emperor of Constantinople, sold it to Saint Louis, king of France, who placed it in the Sainte Chapelle. The Grand Cameo, christened, was then known as "the triumph of Joseph at the court of Pharaoh." After having belonged to the Popes at Avignon, the Great Cameo came back to the Sainte Chapelle under the reign of Charles V.

During the Revolution the Cameo, which the national assembly had placed in the Medal room, was stolen. It was about to be sold in Amsterdam for the sum of $60,000, when the police of Napoleon got track of it. The frame, however, no longer existed; the thieves had melted it down. Napoleon had the present one made in place to fit by the jeweler, Delafontaine, pupil of David. This frame of gilded bronze, in the form of a portico, supported by two lions, has just been found, permitting the masterpiece to be exposed for the admiration of the public.

Doctor Capitan, professor at the College de France, has had the good fortune to discover the remains of the first sculptor in the world, buried at the foot of his masterpiece, executed some 36,000 years ago.

Last year the archaeological world was deeply stirred by the unearthing under the pick of Doctor Lalanne, of Bordeaux, of a prehistoric Venus, carved in the native rock of a grotto near Lausselle. The rocky pocket in which this momentous discovery was made was filled with archaeological deposits, bones of animals, especially reindeer, which were common game for the hardy hunters of the Magdalenian epoch in Dordogne. Many utensils of the hunter, the fisherman and the artist were also found; delicate chisels, scrapers, harpoons and spears of bone.

Most of these, evidently, could only have served for the hunt, the house, the kitchen or warfare; but there were others mingled with them, exceptionally big and heavy, whose use remained unexplained until the dust of ages having been cleaned from the wall of the grotto, five life-sized horses, cut in the rock in a free and living workmanship were revealed.

The excavations were continued and soon a spade struck on the skull of the author. The old artist lay crouching on his left side, something in the attitude of Rodin's statue, "The Thinker," which stands outside the Pantheon at Paris.

LYNCHING FEARED.

Oklahoma Bootleggers, Charged With Murder, Removed to Vinita.

Claremore, Ok., Sept. 21.—Jack Triplett, said by Jack Etter to have been the ringleader of the gang which Friday evening attacked Sheriff Sanders and Deputy Sheriff Carl Starr, following a liquor raid near Collinsville, was captured north of that town this afternoon and brought to Claremore. Later, because of talk of lynching, the two prisoners were taken to the Craig county jail at Vinita. Starr was killed in the fight and the sheriff wounded, but he captured Jack Etter.

Persia to Be Divided.

London, Sept. 21.—The practical division of Persia between Great Britain and Russia appears almost assured as a result of the conference which Sergius Sazonoff, the Russian foreign minister has had with British statesmen. All the newspapers in closest touch with the foreign office, particularly the Times, looked upon recently as Sir Edward Grey's mouthpiece are forecasting this arrangement and are apparently preparing the public mind for it.

G. E. KINCANNON OF BRUCEVILLE SUES THE KATY.

Is Railroad Responsible When Passenger Is Carried By His Station on Excursion Ticket?

Whether a railroad company may be held liable for damages when a passenger is accepted aboard a train and the passenger is told by an agent of the company that the train will stop at the station shown to be his destination on his ticket, if the passenger is then carried by his station and forced to leave the train at another nearby station, is the point of law involved in the suit of G. E. Kincannon of Bruceville, against the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railroad company of Texas, filed in the Nineteenth district court yesterday.

The plaintiff alleges that he was returning to his home at Bruceville, Texas, traveling on a round-trip Bruceville-Fort Worth ticket. That when he boarded the train at Fort Worth and during the trip as far as Waco, agents of the company assured him that the train would stop at Bruceville. When the train had left Waco, the plaintiff claims that he was told by agents of the road that the train would not stop at Bruceville, and that he must either get off at Lorena or go on to Eddy. He remained on the train until it reached Eddy.

BRIDGE JUNIORS CALLED TO MEET WITH MISS LACY

Miss Nancy Lacy urgently requests every member of the Bridge Juniors to meet in her home on Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. This is for the purpose of reorganization for the new season, as it is very important for all to have a voice in selecting new members, and otherwise arranging for the winter.

THE NUMBER TWO SOCIETY HAS ENTHUSIASTIC RALLY

The Friday afternoon session of the Number Two society was a rally day, a time for the return of old members after summer absence and a time for the reception of new members. These latter were to the number of 25. The afternoon was in charge of the young married woman's circle. They provided as the musical feature piano numbers by Mrs. B. F. Dancer and voice selections from Mrs. J. G. Rousseau. Refreshments were served, enthusiasm was manifest, and a general good time was had. But, there was business transacted and other details handled in a way which will promote the business of the Number Twos through their winter work. They will have a year book, and the rally is indication that it will be a successful year.

A MATINEE MUSICAL FOR MISS KATHERINE SPENCER

The first of the ante-nuptial courtships paid Miss Katherine Spencer after the luncheon announcement of her coming marriage was paid on Saturday afternoon. In this, Miss Lillian Halbert invited twenty from among the girl friends of Miss Spencer for fancy work and music in her parlor. Mrs. Josephine Higginbotham gave some of her choice voice numbers. Miss Edna Ewing gave the piano selections, while Miss Ermine Halbert was the violinist. The girls sat around and made the fancy stitches, or was it that they talked and chatted, between the applause given the enjoyable music? Refreshments came as one of the diversions. In all, Miss Spencer was the center of interest and the details of her near approaching wedding the most pleasurable topic of conversation. Miss Halbert's invitations were extended to:

Misses Hazel Spencer, Monette Colgin, Dixon Holloway, Alta Harrison, Katherine Lattimore, Mable Turner, Stella Lacy, Lurline Mosely, Edna Ewing, Anna Dilworth, Agnes Arbuckle, Edith Mrs. Higginbotham, Mrs. Harry Lee Spencer and Mrs. Joseph Higginbotham.

MRS. MUNROE HAS FRIENDS FOR MRS. WOODSON WHITE

Friday afternoon was spent most agreeably in the Richard Munroe home. There, Mrs. Munroe was entertaining in quite an informal way, the friends who had been closest to Mrs. Woodson White during her long residence in Waco. It was altogether an informality, where the women took their fancy work, sat and chatted on porch or in parlor, enjoyed the always delicious refreshments served at this home, and enjoyed yet another hour with Mrs. White. As the reminder of this pleasant afternoon, each guest inscribed her name on the fly leaf of an amusing story book, which Mrs. Munroe slips into Mrs. White's traveling bag. In the hopes that it may while an afternoon of her steamer passage to Havana. Those whose names this fly leaf bears are: Mesdames W. O. Wilkes, J. W. Hale, W. J. Neale, J. W. SOLOIST FOR BAND CONCERT AT PARK THIS AFTERNOON

For the first time in the history of the free band concerts for Waco, there will be a soloist. This will be at Cameron park this afternoon. Anna Robert, from Galveston, who has unusually rich voice, will render the famous Ave Maria of Gounod with band accompaniment. This in itself insures an unusually large attendance. Besides, this concert is the last of the season.

The opera which Alessandro will render is the well-known Traviata. In this Verdi took a simple story but he made a wonderful piece of music. The story tells that the heroine, orphaned from early childhood, abandoned herself to the life of pleasure and many companions, among whom is the man who grows to love her. His sincerity touches him and his love touches her, so she abandons her wild ways and lives happily with her lover in a country place near Paris. The man's father proposes a union, but the girl sacrifices her love and steals away. The lover follows and finds her under the protection of a baron. He, not understanding the sacrifice and her motives, upbraids her in the presence of others. She, stung to the quick, seeks her home to die of a broken heart. He, at last knowing the facts, goes to beg forgiveness, but too late. She dies happy when she hears him avow his faithful love.

The band will open with the full overture, which combines all the tones of the opera. It then leads to the song of Alfred, one of the familiar airs of the opera, where he tells her that the two will go to the country and that night will take him from her, for life, home and treasure are only with her. She joins in the same refrain, so that solo leads into a duo. Another selection will be the gay movement which gives the song of the bullfighters and a grand ensemble by them. As these cast their spikes into the ground, the gypsies with their tambourines come forward with a gay ensemble. The andante movement is the love song of the hero, one of the most soulful of the entire opera. The last is the remonstrance of father with son. This will be one of the best renditions of opera that Alessandro and his band have given this season.

AFTERMATH OF STAG DINNER: CLEVER ANNOUNCEMENT

In the wake of the stag dinner with which T. G. Taylor of the News force announced the coming marriage of his office associate, Harry Ogg, comes an idea or two well worthy adoption for similar events in the future. As was said, the place cards were daintily American girls, all reminders of the attractive bride to be. On each, in lieu of the original toast which each guest might have given, was the toast written. These were lines, to the married man, to the man who escaped when he proposed, to bachelors in general, to girls in general, to bachelor days from a married man, to the bride, to the bashful bachelor, to the guests, to the groom and to the fellow who tried and couldn't. It is needless to add that the reading caused merriment. But the announcement itself was just as clever as could be. In the form of a newspaper extra, it was distributed. The head was, "The Sensational Arrest of the Cashier of the Spoiling Views." The extra went on to state that the groom in prospect was in the matrimonial trust, where Cupid, as district attorney, would prosecute to the fullest for a life sentence. The advertising feature was a bungalow for sale by Heart and Heart, and the furniture man offered his goods at matrimonial prices. He furthermore waived pay until wedding expenses are paid; the firm is Bliss and Beau. Altogether, this announcement was really, in addition to its cleverness, the something new.

MRS. SPELL AT WORK FOR THE WILSON FUND

Immediately upon her appointment, Mrs. W. E. Spell began active work in behalf of the campaign fund with which the women of Texas will further the Wilson-Marshall campaign. These women of Texas are perhaps not so much interested as they would be were they in a more doubtful state. Of course Texas is democratic and of course the democrats will poll a large vote for their candidates. It is not for Texas that this fund is needed. It is for the doubtful states, the states where the campaign speakers do some convincing talk, and where literature must be had in order to talk to the people. One of the former democratic districts in Maine voted republican last week. It is such places as these which need attention. The women must rise to the situation. It is announced that the women of Texas hope to raise the fund through the small coins freely given, than through the large given by the few. The Waco women must aid Mrs. Spell. Women stand for the betterment of conditions in homes less fortunate than theirs. The democrats hold that a lower tariff will bring more prosperity to the working class. The women stand for purity in public life. Has the United States ever presented a purer politician than Woodrow Wilson? If the women are not interested now, suppose the husbands who are interested tell their wives wherein they may better conditions for their country by some care of the situation now? And, above all, where are the men who formed the Wilson club before the democratic convention named their man. Are not these going to enlist the interest of their wives and assist the chairman of this district? And are not these going to render every assistance possible to Mrs. Spell? The committees for this district, especially McLennan county, will be published on Monday.

MISS SALLIE CARTRIGHT SHOWN FAREWELL COURTESY

After the first week of school, the school set was in mood of mind to enjoy to the fullest a week-end party. They were in the mood when they found that such popular hostesses as the Misses Verdalee and Ruby McClain were to be their hostesses. And they were still more in the mood when these hostesses announced that there was to be one more evening with Miss Sallie Cartright before she leaves for school in Illinois. It had all been arranged for a garden gathering, but Jupiter Pluvius put his ban on that. When the drops began to fall the lanterns were quickly extinguished and the tables hurried into the parlors. The progressive game indoors was all the more jolly for the informal way in which the rain forced it to be conducted. First, there was a guest book for Miss Cartright. Some very clever thoughts were penned in autograph. Doubtless this will be read many times in her far-away school den. In progression, the tables afforded the diversion from hearts to forty-two and thence to buncos. The high score was made by Robert Evans, who presented his trophy, a box of bonbons, to Miss Cartright. In honor of the school guests as well as the occasion which prompted the gathering, the school pennant was everywhere. The rooms were pennant decked, so were the individual score cards. The guest list reads:

Misses Bess Herrick, Flora Lee McCullough, Ruth Appell, Pauline Crawley, Jewell Thompson, Clara Parsons, Ruby Tilley, Marian Renick, Sallie Morse, Lillian Taylor, Lucile Walker, Corinne Bullock, Lois Oliver, Grace Hill Robinson, Mildred Fort, Johnnie Boyett, Lucy Lazenby, Antoinette Ockander, Jennie Bayley Bass, Dorothy Renick, Mildred Cowan and Lillian Evans.

Society Notes.

Word was received on Saturday that Miss Bernice Young, who has been in the east during the heated term is due at home within the coming week. Miss Gregory of Mississippi, who has been among her Waco relatives, remains indefinitely, the guest of Mrs. M. C. H. Park and Mrs. J. T. Strain. High, higher, highest, seems the description of hair dressing for this season.

The old-fashioned scarf thrown around the shoulders from front to back is seen in some of the ultra styles.

Miss Margaret Horsful, Miss Nellie Dancy, Mrs. Woodson, Mrs. William Sleeper and Miss Isabel Edmond were invited by Mrs. Milam and her committee to join in the Saturday afternoon tea pouring at the Huaco club. This was as substitutes for members of the appointed committee not yet at home.

From New York it is heard that Mrs. Hattie Dunklin will chaperone girls in her apartment this season. It is the present intention of Miss Ida Orand to join this household. Mrs. H. C. Wilson and Miss Carrie Thornton extended their visit from Colorado to California. They are now upon the eve of turning their faces homeward and will join Mrs. Fred Meyer in Denver. The party is expected home with the first of October. Mrs. Mary Manton is now with her sister in St. Louis, her last stop before returning to Waco for the winter.

Out in California in a wedding account is noticed that the bride was given away by her aunt. This shows that the eternal feminine is coming into her own in all spheres of life. And why not? If that aunt had guarded the life of that young woman, why should she not be the one to place her in the keeping of the man who should guard her henceforth?

It is the last days at home for Misses Lalla Fay Lacy and Sallie Cartwright. These are leaving on Tuesday for school at Monticello seminary in Illinois.

The story is out that consternation prevails in the ranks of colored society here. It has all come out of invitations for a wedding on which were printed, "Please send the presents to the home of the bride." The mother of the groom is indignant, for she is sure, she says, that some of the gifts will be from the groom's friends, and these should be sent to him. The momentous question is not settled at all satisfactory to the parties concerned.

When we place a new light in our home be sure that we have the parlor correct. It is torchiere, a table lamp, a candelabra, a girandole or a sconce which we desire.

There are no more flirts, for Prince George of Greece, who does a little of this thing, is called a young man of "promiscuous affections." This sounds better when it is nobility, you know. The call for the Bridge Juniors indicates that the cards clans are gathering sure enough. They are now dancing the one-step. Somebody must get it down here before the dancing season opens. Never again say a woman is growing old. Say rather that she is being carried by time.

The Roosevelt clubs among the women are organizing into choirs in order to sing patriotic airs when he arrives. The most of these are called Jane Addams choirs. There is one out in California of one thousand voices.

The next session of the Mary West chapter will be with Mrs. Stetler on North Sixteenth.

Miss Katherine Garland has been given the state federation scholarship in music offered on piano by Mrs. Virginia Ryan of this city.

It is mean to talk behind one's back, but now that the exaggerated hats are gone out of style, we hear them used disfiguring, common waste paper baskets, dishpans that made women freaks and all sorts of such terms.

Aside from the general pleasure of the early season affairs, the women are enjoying some pleasurable greetings after summer separation. Mrs. Munroe's courtesy to Mrs. White found this a marked feature in the assembly of friends.

We had to get acquainted all over again after we came out in our fall suits on Saturday.

Miss Nancy Lacy will return to Corsicana to be bridesmaid for Miss Lulu Hoover in November.

CHANCE TO BE WACO DELEGATE

BUSINESS MEN'S CLUB ASKED TO SEND DELEGATES TO SEVERAL PLACES.

TO THE BIG CONVENTIONS

No Funds Are Available, But Credentials Will Be Given to Those Who Will Attend.

Just at the present time the people of the United States are having their attention called more generally than formerly to a number of important questions of vital interest to all, and congresses for the more general duty and consideration of these matters are being planned. The Waco Business Men's club has received invitations to send delegates to several of these congresses, which are of national importance. Among these are the Fourth National Conservation congress which will convene at Indianapolis on October 4th, for a four days' session; the American Road congress, which will be called to order in the Hippodrome, Atlantic City, on September 30th, and the Lakes to the Gulf Deep Water Way association, meeting at Little Rock, Ark., on September 24th, for a four days' session.

The National Conservation congress promises to be exceedingly interesting, studying as it does the conservation of national vitality in its important and varied divisions, as well as the other national resources, forests, waters, lands and minerals. Of no less interest will be the good roads congress at Atlantic City. There are over thirty organizations participating in this American Road congress, among them the American Automobile association, the American Association of Highway Improvement, the American Bar association, the National Association of Road Machinery and Material Manufacturers and the road associations of nearly thirty states. The program which accompanied the invitation to the Business Men's club shows a varied and valuable schedule of talks and papers from men prominent in road engineering.

The people of Waco are especially attracted by the meeting of the Lakes to the Gulf Waterway association, in view of the hopes of having deep water in the Brazos at an early date. This deep waterway movement is going forward with great activity and the project has been approved by the three political parties, the Democratic, the Republican and the Progressive. Former President Roosevelt will speak on September 25th and it is planned to have President Taft and Governor Wilson on the 26th of September.

The Waco Business Men's club would be glad to send delegates to all the above congresses, as they have been urged to do, but unfortunately they have not the facilities at this time which would enable them to do this. President E. W. Marshall has requested that this matter be brought before the public, in hopes that there may be Waco business men who are planning trips which would take them, at the time mentioned, in the vicinity of these congresses. In this event he would be glad to have them notify him and the Waco Business Men's club would take pleasure in appointing as delegates those who would be interested and able to attend any of the congresses.

President Marshall has also received letters from the Galveston Commercial association advising of a contemplated trade excursion conducted by them, to visit the republics of Guatemala, Costa Rica and Panama, leaving Galveston the first week in November.

This promises to be a most important commercial move, as those who are going from Galveston are among the leading business men of the city, and it is hoped that a similar class of representation may be sent from Waco. Secretary Drake of the Business Men's club, will be glad to give more detailed information as to the proposed route of the trip, its cost, etc. He hopes that Waco may be well represented, as this is the first opportunity of the Southwest to get intimately in touch with the rich republics of Central America, there having been recently established direct steamship service from Galveston to Puerto Barrios, Guatemala, Port Limon, Costa Rica and Bocas del Toro, Panama.

BIRDMEN THRILL.

Lincoln Beachy Files Recklessly at Chicago Aviation Meet.

Chicago, Sept. 21.—Freak flying held interest at the aviation meet today when Lincoln Beachy on the Lake Front field, in a drizzling rain, stopped the engine of his biplane at a height of 3,000 feet and glided down with the tail of his machine almost straight up.

Just before that Beachy was fined for "ocean waving" by zig-zagging over the heads of spectators and as low as ten feet above the automobiles on Michigan avenue. Horace Hearney of Kansas City, Mo., and Beachy also were penalized for circling the course at a mile a minute within fifty feet of each other.

Beckwith Havens of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., won the sixteen-mile hydro airplane race in 15:19.

JOHN SIMPSON, BLIND, WED.

Justice Dan Ford Performs the Marriage Ceremony.

When John Simpson took the marriage vows before Justice Dan Ford yesterday and accepted Mrs. Mattie Neeley as his wife, he wedded a woman he has never seen. Simpson is blind.

The couple went to Clerk Wallace's office to secure a license, the bride-to-be leading her future husband along by the hand.

The groom is a familiar figure on the streets of Waco, he having lived here for a number of years. His bride also has lived in this city for several years and was known to a number of the people who crowded the court room to witness a ceremony, the like of which has been seldom seen in Waco.

Something New in Tile Mantels.

Cameras have something new and absolutely exclusive in an all-tile open fireplace that they are justly proud of. No one gets out of their store without having first seen this fireplace. This tile is hand-molded into different shapes and sizes and colored so it looks like regular cobblestones colored by Mother Nature herself. The colorings are rich and soft, harmonizing perfectly with the prevailing color schemes of wall decorations. We would like to have you see this all-tile mantel, even if you do not want to buy. LIGHTNING KILLS FARMER

J. W. CRUSE-TURNER OF HONDO IS STORM'S VICTIM.

Two Barns in Lamar County Fired By Electricity—Wind Damages the Crops Near Texarkana.

Hondo, Tex., Sept. 21.—J. W. Cruse-Turner, aged about 45 years, a well-to-do farmer residing in the northeast part of this town, was struck by lightning about 4 o'clock this morning and instantly killed. He had been sleeping on the gallery, but when an electrical storm came upon moved his bedding indoors and stepped back out on the gallery to get a drink of water at the hydrant. Upon his failure to return or answer her calls, his wife went to look for him and found him dead under the hydrant.

The bolt had set fire to his clothing, but the water from the hydrant extinguished it. The bolt that killed Mr. Cruse-Turner also struck the house, setting it on fire, but the flames were extinguished before they attained any headway.

Wind Damages Crops.

Texarkana, Ark., Sept. 21.—A terrific windstorm, accompanied by a driving rain, seriously damaged cotton in the fields in this section last night. Except to crops, no other serious harm was done.

Damage in Lamar County.

Paris, Tex., Sept. 21.—An electrical storm played havoc at Givens last night, lighting striking Tony Sooth's barn, destroying it. J. B. Ingram's barn burned with two mules. Ingram's gin was demolished and Yancey's store torn to pieces.

Norther at Houston.

Houston, Tex., Sept. 21.—The first norther of the season struck this city about daylight. The weather is clear and cool, with only slight indications of the rain badly needed by the fall gardeners and truckers. Unless more rain results in the next few days it is said chances for such crops will be materially lessened.

Federal Court at Houston.

Houston, Tex., Sept. 21.—Federal court for the southern district of Texas will convene Monday. A grand jury will be empaneled. The docket is unusually heavy, some 203 cases pending for disposition. On the criminal side of the docket is no less than ten white slavery charges.

REUNION IS TO BE AT CLEBURNE

CITY MAKING EXTENSIVE PREPARATIONS TO ENTERTAIN VISITORS.

MANY THOUSAND EXPECTED

One of the Features Is to Be a Big Sham Battle Between Regulars and Ex-Confederates.

The annual state reunion of the United Confederate Veterans will be held at Cleburne on the 3rd and 4th of October, and that city is making very extensive preparations to entertain a large number of the Confederates, their families, and friends. Many thousands of visitors are expected on this occasion.

One of the principal features of the program will be a big sham battle between the ex-Confederates and regulars. Arrangements have already been made for this, and the details are being worked out. It is proposed to give a vivid exhibition of a real battle.

The two days' program will be carried out at the beautiful Lovelady park, and the Cleburne street railway system has agreed to give special car service in order to accommodate the large crowds. Plenty of water, shade, and ample grounds will be found at the park for the old soldiers.

They will also be given free entertainment while in the city, and cared for in every particular as befits a gallant Confederate soldier. Everything possible is being done to make their stay pleasant and comfortable in Cleburne.

Cleburne is very easily reached by rail, and all railroads in Texas will give low rates for this event. Cleburne can be reached by the Santa Fe, M. & T. T. & B. V., and the Fort Worth-Cleburne interurban, cars over the latter running back and forth every hour.

Any information will be gladly furnished by the entertainment committee, and parties desiring such should address Reunion Entertainment Committee, Cleburne, Texas.

CHICAGO HAS MILK TRUST

COMPLAINTS BY FARMERS TO BE INVESTIGATED.

Inquiry by Federal Grand Jury Sanctioned by United States Attorney General Wickham.

Chicago, Sept. 21.—Federal officials today prepared to investigate charges made by farmers and shippers that the price of milk in Chicago is controlled by a combination in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law. It became known today that United States Attorney General Wickham has sanctioned the proposed investigation and it is probable that witnesses would be summoned to appear before the federal grand jury when it meets October 7.

One point to be inquired into is why the farmer receives but three and a half cents a quart for his milk while the consumer is required to pay eight cents a quart in Chicago. Operations of the Illinois milk dealers' association will, it is said, be the object of careful scrutiny.

THE MISSES HOFFMAN ARE NOW DUE AT HOME

The visit of the Misses Hoffman in Sioux City, Iowa, is drawing to a close. They will arrive at home within the coming week. In leaving, these popular girls bring home the memory of a visit which was one continuous round of social courtesy. They were included in all the social affairs and in addition were the honorees of a number of varied and pleasing parties.

Final Notice.—Trying to save delinquent taxpayers heavy court costs in tax suits, I have, at heavy expense and outlay of time and labor, sent to various parties written notice that back taxes were due. I am now preparing a complete list of all delinquents and will soon turn over such list to the county attorney for collection as required by me by law.

FINN IS THE CHAMPION

KOLEHMAINEN WINS FIVE-MILE RUNNING RACE.

Harry V. Smith, Metropolitan Champion, Finishes Away Back, in Exhausted Condition.

Words Field, Pittsburg, Sept. 21.—Hannes Kolehmainen, the wonderful Finnish athlete, running in the five-mile race for the senior championship of the Amateur Athletic union of the United States here today, won the event easily in 25:43 2-5. His nearest competitor was Harry V. Smith, the Metropolitan champion, who finished several hundred yards behind in an exhausted condition. Kolehmainen, however, seemed fresh at the finish. During the race he held a steady gait, running easily and constantly waved and grinned to the thousands of spectators who applauded him. As Kolehmainen crossed the line as victor he was given a remarkable ovation. While the foreign Olympic hero and the five-mile race were the features of the afternoon, there was an exceptionally good program of track and field events. A. R. Kiviat, I. A. A. C. won the one-mile race in 4:18 3-5, breaking the I. A. A. C. record and according to officials could have hung up a new world's mark with a little more effort. J. A. Power, Boston Athletic association, who yesterday won the junior honors in this event, finished second, yards in the rear.

In the running high jump J. O. Johnstone, Boston Athletic club, and H. I. Grumpeit, New York Athletic club, both Olympic participants, tied for first place with six feet three inches, equalling the A. A. U. record. In the jump off Grumpeit was unable to maintain that mark and dropped to second place.

In the pole vaulting, H. S. Babcock, New York Athletic club, Olympic winner and world's champion, was the center of interest. Babcock won the event easily with 12 feet, much below the A. A. U. mark. H. P. Drew of the Springfield, Mass., high school, won the 100-yard dash in 19 seconds flat with A. T. Meyer, I. A. A. C. and R. Carroll, Pittsburg Athletic association, who won the junior championship yesterday, pressing him hard.

For the fifth consecutive time J. H. Heller, I. A. A. C. won the 220-yard high hurdles with a mark of 25 1-5 seconds.

R. B. Gifford, R. C. McCaddin, Lyceum of Brooklyn, won the three-mile walk in 23 minutes, 14 seconds. In number of points the I. A. A. C. was far ahead with 67. The New York Athletic club was second with 34 and the Boston Athletic association third with twenty.

COMPANY CONTROLLING HIGH-LAND PLACE IS INCORPORATED.

Water Company Also Gets a Charter.
G. A. Mistrot of Houston is interested in Waco.

Austin, Tex., Sept. 21.—The secretary of state today filed the charter of the A. W. Koch company, a Waco realty concern with a capital stock of $150,000. The Highland Place Water company, with a capital stock of $40,000, also had its charter filed. Incorporators for both concerns are H. B. Mistrot, G. A. Mistrot, A. W. Koch and James L. Mistrot.

This incorporation is for the company which is developing Highland Place in the western part of the city, and the company which has installed the waterworks system to supply the residences of that section. Highland Place is the highest point about Waco and overlooks the city. Street car service is to be supplied and the lots are to be marketed. G. A. Mistrot, until recently of the big dry goods house of Mistrot-Munn company of Houston, having disposed of his mercantile holdings in Houston, has invested largely in this Waco property and will be identified with it. H. B. Mistrot, one of the incorporators, was formerly mayor of Waco.

YOUNG GIANT AT BAYLOR

ROBINSON, A CARPENTER, FROM ABILENE, ON KICKING SQUAD.

Coach Glaze Is Well Pleased With the Prospects for the Coming Season.

With the opening of school at Baylor University tomorrow actual scrimmages and other form of team work with the football men will be taken up by Coach Ralph Glaze and Capt. L. L. Cooper. Thirty men, more than enough for two teams, have now been in sufficient practice at tackling, bucking the line and punting to line up for actual play and these more mature men will be given that form of play, while the new men who have not reported for practice before will be tried on the tackling dummy and the bucking strap.

Not only have a large number of men reported earlier than ever before and in large numbers, but they have had better equipments with which to train than in previous season and Coach Glaze says he sees no reason why he should not be able to put out an A1 team. The candidates for the team have trained on their home grounds, have had a special training table, are used to the water and rations which they will use all the season, and there will be no interruption of any kind in the practice as is usually the case where the preliminary practice is carried on at a foreign point.

Another advantage in favor of the team is the fact that the members have enjoyed all the privileges of the baths and swimming pool at the Natatorium Hotel, through the courtesy of Mr. J. Levinski, and whatever success the eleven wins this year will be due to the trim physical condition of the men as brought about partly through his favor.

Another strong addition to the line the latter part of the week was Robinson, a young carpenter of Abilene, who measures six feet three, holds a number of track records and is a physical giant, though he has never played football. He is a natural athlete, however, with plenty of mental acumen to master anything he goes into and Coach Glaze expects to develop a star football man out of him.

The grounds on Carroll Field are in excellent shape for practice. The gridiron has been cleared off, the goal posts are up and already the High school eleven has begun practice there at hours when the Baylor squad is not busy on the field.

Additional recruits have come to the team, also, from the Waco High team, the latest additions to the squad being Dotson and Alexander, both of whom are fleet of foot, cool-headed, nifty and full of play.

New uniforms for the team have arrived. The jerseys and stockings are of gray, with a green stripe, and with the tan trousers will make quite a natty football suit.

From this time on the daily practice of the team will be watched by numerous supporters and friends of the University in the hope that a pennant-winning squad will be developed by Glaze and his assistants. The opening game will be played with Austin College October 8.

JAPAN IS COMPLIMENTED

SECRETARY KNOX SPEAKS AT BANQUET AT YOKOHAMA.

Empire, by Self-Sacrificing Patriotism, Has Broadened Stage of Her World Activity.

Yokohama, Sept. 21.—The American secretary of state, Philander C. Knox, was the guest of honor at a dinner given here tonight by members of the American colony.

Responding to a toast, the secretary reviewed the accomplishments of the reign just closed, saying that Japan's brief might be assigned by a proud contemplation of the inestimable blessings of the Meiji era, during which the empire had extended and been permanently established. This era was unexcelled by any other chapter of human history, he declared.

The relations of the United States to the marvelous changes in this country in the past sixty years had been intimate, he continued.

"The Japanese horizon was extended largely because we urged her to open the door for the ingress of our civilization and the egress of her own," he said. "The empire has been unified and strengthened through a self-sacrificing patriotism, which is without historic precedent."

Mr. Knox said that when the Meiji emperor established equal and human

A Misleading Sign.—She entered the grocery store with a jar of marmalade in her hand and fire in her eye. "See here," she said to the clerk, "I bought this stuff because the card in your window says it's an excellent substitute for butter." "Yes, ma'am; so it is," "Well, it's a grand substitute, I must say! I tried frying a bit of fish with it this morning and the taste was so awful I had to throw the fish all away."—Exchange.

VIOLATIONS OF AIR BRAKE LAW

COMMISSIONER OF LABOR STATISTICS ISSUES WARNING TO RAILROADS.

THE STATUTE IS QUOTED

Suits Are to Be Filed and Prosecuted. Thorough Inspections Are to Be Made.

Austin, Tex., Sept. 21.—Commissioner of Labor Statistics Starling gave out the following statement today:

"The inspections of this department for the past few weeks justifies the assertion that there are several railroads in the state that are willfully violating the air-brake and air-brake attachment inspection law, and it is my intention in the future to file suits and prosecute every violation of this law found. The law provides as follows:

"It shall be unlawful for any person, corporation, or receiver to operate or cause to be operated any train on any line of railroad in this state without first having the air-brakes and air-brake attachments inspected and tested before leaving the division terminals for such trains, by a competent inspector who shall have had at least three years' experience as a car inspector or car repairer, provided the provision of this act shall not apply to railroads less than forty miles in length.

"The legal department of the state government has ruled that branch lines of trunk lines came under this provision, irrespective of length, and that division terminals of 'such trains' are the points where such trains tie up in the evening for that day and date."

Commission Sets Hearings.

Austin, Tex., Sept. 21.—The railroad commission today gave notice of hearing October 9 to consider the application of the Texas railroads to place paraffine in the rate group which will give it a twenty-five-cent maximum rate. The same rate is given petroleum products.

Notice of hearing for the state date is also given to consider a readjustment of ratings applying on empty sacks or bags, returned.

Hearing was also set for the same date to consider the proposition to allow five hundred pounds dunnage free with certain shipments. Dunnage is the packing in a car to protect shipments. It does not go around the articles shipped but is used to protect shipments against the car.

TO PUT UP THE DERRICK

WORK ON HOT WELL SEARCH TO COMMENCE.

Secretary Hirschfeld Will Issue Stock to All Paid Up Subscribers Monday.

Monday and Tuesday Contractor Johnston will have a force of men at work erecting the derrick over the city well on Bell's Hill, preparatory to placing the machinery to begin work on the hot well.

The derrick is to be 105 feet high. There is a great deal of machinery to go with this work, much more than would be needed if it was an original well, because there is already 1800 feet of hole, to the bottom of which the contractor must send his drill before he can start.

There has been some discussion as to whether this well is clear of obstructions. This question was settled yesterday by the return to Waco of Henry Bell of the Bell Water company, formerly owners of the property on which the well is located. He was asked about the matter and stated that the well is clear of anything that will interfere with the contractor's work.

Secretary D. E. Hirschfeld of the Hot Well Development company will begin issuing stock in the company on Monday to all who have paid in full their subscriptions. It is urged that all who owe part of their subscription pay it at once so that the stock can be issued.

RICHE LOOKS AT WORK

VISITS HERE TO INSPECT THE BRAZOS DAM.

Is Well Pleased With the Progress Being Made—One Hundred Hands Employed.

That the work on the government dam being constructed across the Brazos river below Waco is progressing rapidly, despite the fact that the river has been higher than usual for the past few days, and that there has been no shortage of hands for the excavation work, was a statement made by Capt. Charles Schuster, in charge of the work, during the visit of Lieut. Col. C. S. Riche here yesterday. Colonel Riche paid a visit to the dam and hurriedly inspected the work.

Colonel Riche declared that he was well pleased with the construction up to this point, and that he would return to Waco at a later date, at which time he will devote several days to a careful examination of the work. There are at present 100 men employed on the dam. With the appropriations already made by congress, it will be possible to continue the work

Erisophians Welcome Students

BAYLOR'S LITERARY SOCIETY GIVING CORDIAL HANDSHAKE TO STRANGERS—ORGANIZATION HAS A HISTORY.

BY AN ERISOPHIAN.

"What! another convention in Waco?" was the comment of a jolly traveling man yesterday as he alighted from the north-bound Katy Flyer. An investigation was made and he soon found out the meaning of the badge "Erisophian," which scores of Baylor men are wearing this fall.

These demonstrations of college "pep" are the results of well laid plans and persistent efforts on the part of the Erisophians of Baylor University. The campaign was inaugurated this summer under the able management of J. Milton Jackson. Mr. Jackson has gone about the work entrusted to his care in a systematic way and this marked success is due largely to his consistent efforts. A call was sent out to the old men and the first to respond to his call was E. R. Bondurant from El Paso. He was immediately selected as chairman of the reception committee for the new men. And his first move was to introduce the badge system which called forth the question, "What, another convention for Waco?"

The object of the organization is to further the art of public speaking, public debate, parliamentary usages, to inspire in the students the spirit of fraternity, to round out a perfect citizen, socially, morally, mentally. In Baylor there are no Greek letter fraternities, and the societies supply the spirit of brotherhood which otherwise would be shifted to these secret clubs. In the life of the new student, the societies are a great benefit. Their members, ever faithful and watchful to the interests of the man who has come here a stranger, seek the new man out, point out the ways that seem strange, help him where he would hesitate, and do more, for they extend him the glad hand of brotherhood and make him their personal friend. They know his every desire and temptation, for they have themselves been over the same road, and one of the most valuable assets of Baylor life is the kindness and regard of the old student for the new.

Intense in Rivalry. Of course, where there is more than one society, there is rivalry, and this is the life of the organizations. When you have lined up with one society it is your task and duty to oppose the other with all the vigor within you. The society which puts forth the greatest effort proves victorious, obtains the most efficient men, carries off the glories of debate and oratory and is pronounced the winner on these enthusiastic occasions. Work is the watchword and victory the incentive. The fact that the society which puts forth the greatest effort always proves victorious was very forcibly illustrated in last year's history of the Erisophian society. Long before the year of 1911-12 had begun, the Erisophians were in the field seeking out the new material, presenting the claims of their organization and winning the best and most valuable material to their side.

A Year of Victories. As a result, there was a year of complete and unbroken victories. In the first and biggest contest of the year they began by winning, and in direct succession they won the Dancer debate, for which is offered a $100 medal, and in so doing furnished the champions for the two largest inter-collegiate debates of the year. Next they won the preliminary debate which determined the champion for the third and last inter-collegiate debate. Following this, they won the preliminary contest which decided the Baylor representative to the inter-collegiate oratorical contest, and they won the preliminary prohibition contest which selected the Baylor representative for the inter-collegiate prohibition contest. And, lastly, they completed their year of victories by winning the inter-society debate known as the June debate. But not alone in the forensic art were they victorious, for even in a contest to see which society could produce the highest class entertainment before an immense audience at the hotel, they were again victorious, and all as a result of hard, conscientious work, ceaseless effort and untiring energy.

Each new student who enters school should come here with the full determination to make an active part in just such work as this, and taste of the sweets of victory, which is the highest goal in the mind of the college man. And going back beyond last year, this disposition of the Erisophians to put forth the very best that there is in them has won distinction for their society in many a hard fought battle of words, and their alumni now in the larger sphere of usefulness out in the world can be characterized by their industry, fidelity, ability to grapple with every situation which may present itself, and wherever you go in this country or foreign lands you find Erisophians in positions of honor and service.

History of the Society. In 1853 at Independence, Texas, a small band of zealous college boys organized what is now the Erisophian Literary society of Baylor University. The unadorned forests and plains, the unsettled condition of Texas laws and customs, and the ever threatening Comanche Indians, all conspired to make the maintenance of schools and literary societies difficult; but the founders of the Erisophian society were inspired with the zeal, enthusiasm and courage of Dr. R. C. Burleson, the illustrious founder of Baylor University, and they organized and maintained a society whose growth and achievements have been common-Adversity only served to bind the lit-tle band into a compact of unity, impervious to the destroying influence of dissension, and thus Gibraltar-like, it stood against its rivals. More convenient fixtures, a growing library, an increasing membership characterized the Erisophian society until 1901, when the Civil war shook the American continent with the thunders of its cannon and threatened home and fatherland. When the great conflict came, a majority of the Erisophians—patriotic sons of Texas that they were—volunteered their services for the defense of the principles which they and their fathers cherished and loved.

Fired with true patriotism, the Erisophians thus left the debating hall for the tented fields, the student's book for the soldier's musket, the scenes of a pleasant home for the bloody carnage and slaughter of the battlefield, and under the "stars and bars" they marched and fought until Lee sheathed his sword at Appomattox. Some of the most illustrious soldiers Texas had in the Confederate service were from the Erisophian ranks. Brigadier General Felix H. Robertson, Col. W. B. Denson, Col. Thomas J. Goree and others distinguished themselves in that great conflict.

After the War Was Over.

When the swords were sheathed and muskets stacked, when the thunder of the cannon had died away and the pioneers' axe again echoed in the forests, the Erisophian society was reorganized and began anew its career in the development and training of great men. During the stormy period of the reconstruction era the Erisophian society passed through a struggle for existence, but the persistent and united efforts of its members subdued all opposing forces and placed the society upon a basis so firm and stable that for more than thirty years the bombs of rivals and enemies have fallen harmless about her banner.

Some of the Members.

And, this earnestness of effort on the part of this society has not been without equal success in the one greatest purpose of their existence, namely, the producing of distinguished and illustrious men and leaders in the business, political and religious world. Who is there who has not heard of or known George W. Truett, the dearly beloved pastor of the First Baptist church of Dallas, the founder of the Baptist sanitarium and the man who paid Baylor out of debt. Who is there who does not know the matchless Dr. B. H. Carroll, the founder of the Southwestern Baptist Theological seminary, and J. M. Carroll, the founder and president of San Marcos academy; E. L. Comper, president of Burleson college; Hon. L. I. Foster, at one time speaker of the house of representatives, railroad commissioner and president of A. and M. college? Just such men as these, and a host of others, such as Hon. William Pearson of Greenville, Hon. Tom Conally of Martin, Hon. O. S. Lattimore of Fort Worth, Hon. H. F. Lively of Dallas, Hon. S. P. Skinner of San Antonio, Hon. Tom S. Henderson of Cameron, Hon. Harry Tom King and Hon. Jonas Moffett of Abilene, and many others of whom we are equally proud, will gladly testify to the good and wholesome influence wrought upon their lives by the Erisophian society while they were students in Baylor.

NO CHANGE IN RULES

FOOTBALL COMMITTEE DID NOT ALTER FIRST DRAFT.

Walter Camp Interprets—Kicked Ball Can Not Be Kicked Again, Is Ruling.

New York, Sept. 21.—The football rules of 1912 as laid down by the inter-collegiate football rules committee stood practically unchanged when the central board of football officials completed deliberations tonight.

The officials, together with football managers, coaches and captains from schools and colleges from all parts of the east, met to hear the new rules interpreted by Walter Camp, secretary of the rules committee, and to offer suggestions.

The longest discussion was over the rule which provides that "a kicked ball, once kicked, a free kick or return kick, must be made from a point at least five yards behind the line of scrimmage."

Mr. Camp held that the rule must be interpreted literally, and that it did not mean that a ball kicked on a kick by the offensive side could be kicked by the defensive side from behind its line of scrimmage.

"A kicked ball can not be kicked again, except as a return kick of a ball going over the line of scrimmage," said Mr. Camp, "otherwise on a fumble a player could kick the ball down the field, which the rule was intended to prevent. The rule, interpreted in this literal manner, also prevents a man trying to kick a ball as another player falls on it."

Other interpretations laid down by Mr. Camp were that the center can not snap the ball to himself and run with it; that if a kicked ball hits an on-side man, then hits the goal post and bounds back, it is a free ball, and that a ball downed against a goal post is not a touchdown.

Decision Against Gov. Bleess.

Columbia, S. C., Sept. 21.—The supreme court today handed down a decision in the now famous bank-examiner case, holding that when Governor Bleess ousted Bank Examiner B. J. Rhame, he acted without authority of law. On April 1, Governor Bleess ousted Rhame and appointed H. W. Fraser, the bank examiner. The banks did not know which officer to recognize, and in making their reports they put it up to the postmaster by addressing all communications to the state bank examiner. The supreme court handed the case in an en banc session, with chief justice and ten associate justices. There were only two dissenting opinions.

NAVY TO EXHIBIT HERE

PROMISE IS TO SEND MODELS TO COTTON PALACE.

Complete Wireless Set and Other Features Are to Be Sent for the Big Exposition.

That the United States government will probably place an exhibit in the Cotton Palace this year as the result of two years of effort on the part of the management to secure the exhibit, was the statement of President W. H. Hoffmann yesterday as the result of the receipt of a letter from the navy department by H. E. Broxer, quartermaster in charge of the local recruiting station.

The exhibit will comprise models of the Florida, the old Maine, the Oregon, Salem, Shubrick, Decatur and Holland, while the wireless electrical devices used in the navy will also be shown. The exhibit of the Artificers' school will be of articles manufactured in this school, while the seamen gun exhibit will be of gun models and mounts with ordnance materials and tools manufactured in that school. Floor space 154 sq. ft.

The wireless telegraphy exhibit consists of a complete navy wireless station, fully equipped for sending and receiving. The aerial for the wireless set should be at least 60 feet high. The coil accompanying the apparatus is designed for 110 volts, 60 cycle alternating current at about 30 amperes.

Bryan Defends Taft Delegates.

Pocatello, Idaho, Sept. 21.—William Jennings Bryan tonight in a speech defended the action of the national republican committee in seating the Taft delegates at the Chicago convention. He said the system was wrong but the custom was a time-honored one and similar action was taken by the democrats in control at Baltimore. He criticized the progressives for having failed at their convention to make any effort toward remedying the old methods.

Mr. Bryan denounced Colonel Roosevelt's commission plan for the regulation of trusts. He declared this to be the "reason that trusts' representatives are backing the colonel's campaign."

Postmasters Select Guthrie.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 21.—After selecting Guthrie, Okla., as the next convention city, the National League of Postmasters adjourned its annual session today. Fourth Assistant Postmaster General P. V. Degraw discussed the rural mail service and there were other papers on topics relating to postal work and efficiency.

FOOD SOURING, INDIGESTION, STOMACH SICK?—CASCARETS

That awful sourness, belching of acid and foul gases; that pain in the pit of the stomach, the heartburn, nervousness, nausea, bloating after eating, feeling of fullness, dizziness and sick headache, means your stomach is full of sour bile—your liver is torpid—your bowels constipated. It isn't your stomach's fault—it isn't indigestion—it's biliousness and constipation.

Try Cascarets; they immediately sweeten the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter from the bowels. Then your stomach trouble is ended. A Cascaret tonight straightens you out by morning.

RULE BY COMPTROLLER

DIRECTORS OF COUNTRY BANKS TO ATTEND EXAMINATION.

Examiners to Inquire Into Undue Concentration of Loans in Concerns Controlled by Banks' Officers.

New York, Sept. 21.—A ruling of great interest to the country banks was laid down here today by Lawrence O. Murray, comptroller of the currency, in an address delivered to a gathering of national bank examiners. On and after October 1, he said, he desired that at the examination of all country banks the board of directors shall be convened and the examination of assets be made in their presence. He has notified banks of this by letter and in cases where there are out-of-town directors he has been assured that steps will be taken to have at least a quorum present.

The comptroller cautioned the examiners "to inquire into very carefully any undue concentration of the loans of a bank in companies controlled by the bank's officers or directors."

"I speak now," he continued, "of any bank where such a concentration would ruin the bank if the loans were bad. Wherever you come across a case where the directors or officers are unduly concentrating the funds of a bank in corporations controlled by themselves, and where you have no information on which to base an opinion as to whether the loans are good or bad, it seems to me you are clearly entitled to one of three things: First, that the books of the corporation be voluntarily opened to you; or, second, that the directors give you a full statement in detail of the business concerns, or third, that a copy be given you of a report of the company or corporation made by an independent auditor."

Mr. Murray said he considered the country examiner often overworked and under-paid, but nevertheless, he insisted "that the time given to examining country banks may be materially lengthened."

Mrs. Harriman to Be Excused.

Washington, Sept. 21.—Mrs. Harriman, widow of Edward H. Harriman, the railroad magnate, and Miss Bliss, daughter of the late Cornelius N. Bliss, former treasurer of the republican national committee, will be excused from testifying before the senate committee investigating campaign expenditures.

C. C. Tegthoff, formerly private secretary to Mr. Harriman, has given assurance that Mrs. Harriman had no personal knowledge of any contribution and that she would produce many documents of the Harriman estates.

Cornelius N. Bliss, Jr., has assured a representative of the committee that he would produce every scrap of paper the Bliss estate has relating to contributions.

GOV. JOHNSON IN OHIO

DENIES THE PROGRESSIVES ARE DODGING TARIFF ISSUE.

Accuses the Democratic Leaders of Failing to Give Concrete Utterance on Question.

Akron, O., Sept. 21.—The progressive party has a definite tariff plan and is not seeking to hound the issue by a discussion of generalities, said Governor Johnson today in his address at the opening of the new party campaign in Ohio.

"We have yet to hear any concrete utterance which clearly sets forth the democratic view of the tariff plank of the Baltimore convention," he declared.

"On the subject of the tariff the platform of the progressive party must appeal to all thinking men," he continued, "we submit our platform on this issue as against the broken platform pledges of the republican party on the one hand of theoretical, impractical policy adopted by the democratic party on the other.

"We stand for protection, but we insist that the benefits of protection shall find expression in the pay envelope of men who toil and make wealth possible. We stand for honest revision downward and we propose through the medium of a tariff board to bring this revision about speedily and effectively."

"Our democratic friends who not even propose the establishment of a tariff board and the omission can mean only one thing—to wit—no whatever conditions the tariff law they might seek to bring about they would have performed by the same old system of log rolling that has made a farce of tariff legislation for all these past decades."

Must Be Recorded.

Under the rules of the national democratic executive committee, the name of every man who subscribes to the fund, whether the amount be five cents, five dollars or $500, a record is made of the contribution, a receipt given and the name will be reported as one of the givers.

John M. Connor of this city, who was the manager in this county for the Woodrow Wilson campaign prior to the presidential preferential primary, has been named by National Committeeman Cato Sells to organize this county for the collection of funds. It has ceased now to be a matter of individual choice for president. The Wilson, Harmon, Clark, Underwood men are all together as Democrats supporting Woodrow Wilson, the nominee.

Mr. Connor has named the following as his committee to solicit the funds: J. W. Davis, D. E. Hirschfeld, Allan D. Sanford, W. M. Manchester, T. A. Caulfield, Dr. J. T. Harrington, Abe Gross, E. A. Street, S. M. McAshan, F. E. McLarty, R. F. Gribble, Edgar Mann, Mart, Dr. J. E. Brown, McGregor, J. O. Reynolds, Moody, J. R. Knight, Eddy, John B. Nichols, Crawford, L. J. Dodson, Lorena, Ed. Finkard, Riesel, G. E. Kinnannon, Bruceville, J. R. Burbridge, West.

Some Corded Effects and Diagonals for Fall

have assumed important proportions in the scheme of things. Fall fashions are on display in all the shops, tempting unwary women to premature purchases before they have settled in their own minds just what the requirements of their wardrobes will be. It is undoubtedly the part of wisdom to make a tour of inspection of Vanity Fair, holding a strong hand upon the purse-strings meantime, until the whole show has passed in review, for otherwise we get together a heterogeneous lot of clothes which bear little relation to each other, and hence fail to please, in spite of undeniable beauty of fabric and color.

Materials, surely, were never so serviceable and at the same time so artistic as now. Silks and satins are soft and pliable as never before, while the new wool goods have a luster and richness of finish which makes them desirable for the handsomest gowns. Corded effects are as popular as ever, and corduroy, especially, will be a favorite for winter coat-suits. Diagonals are exceedingly good. They are stylish and they make up into suits and gowns which preserve their good looks in spite of wind and weather. Cords have led naturally to stripes, so that many of the newest fabrics are more or less visibly striped. This has undoubtedly had its effect, too, in bringing all kinds of figured goods to the fore.

For early fall a suit like Fig. One, with dark-brown rings on a lighter ground, makes a smart and useful gown. Collar and cuffs are of Cluny lace, after a charming fashion of using heavy lace, macramé, Irish, Cluny or Venice, for those important accessories. The tortoise-shell buttons are in keeping with the tone of the gown besides being strictly up-to-date, for buttons of that substance, either real or imitation, are much sought after at the present moment.

Note the fact that the dress is in shades of brown, for you will probably select some shade of that color for one of your fall costumes. All shades of brown are prominent this year, but especially so the yellowish tints of mustard and cinnamon. Black and white is never long out of favor, and blue always retains an enviable hold on our affections, but this winter, if we wish to be strictly à la mode, it will be well to choose one of the lovely brown camel-hair, bouclé, homespun or Scotch tweed suitings for our street dress.

The same predilection will guide the majority of us in buying our evening frocks. Mustard, deepened to old gold or tinged with the brighter hue of marigolds, is the favorite for full-dress toilets, and justly so. Nothing can be richer than yellow chamoise satin or messaline veiled with lace or chiffon cloth. It lights up well at night and the transparent coverings so softens a rather trying color that even those to whom it is positively unbecoming in its unveiled presentment may wear it in this way with complete satisfaction.

In cut and style of waists and skirts there will probably be little change this fall from what has prevailed since early spring. Skirts are still straight and narrow in appearance, and the predictions for increased fullness will not be verified. True, pleated skirts are seen, as well as skirts with inset pleated sections, but that does not mean that they are full—they only give additional ease in walking. With the tight, unpleated skirt this ease is sometimes gained by leaving the skirt open at the bottom on one side or on both, sometimes as far up as the knee. A pretty silk or lace petticoat beneath secures the same effect as is obtained by means of inset sections in the skirt itself, and with less severity of outline. It is a convenient fashion, the one of leaving a side-front seam entirely open. In a wash garment the advantage is obvious, nor is its convenience to be derided in a silk or woolen skirt.

Many of the new skirts, while quite plain in every other respect, have the fullness laid in at the back in fine pleats extending from waist to hem. Sometimes there are three, often four, of these pleats, all turning one way, an arrangement which appeals at once when you see it as both graceful and stylish. These back pleats are seen also, three on either side turning toward the front from a narrow box-pleat in the center. The requisite fullness is given to the lower edge of the skirt if the pleats are left unstitched for ten or twelve inches above the hem.

In Figure Two we have a charming example of the use of pleats at the side-front of the skirt. The costume is a cinnamon-brown, self-striped suiting which in no way loses its character as a cloth costume by the embroidered pique collar and cuffs made separate and worn with it. A delicate net chemisette with high collar fills in the low-cut neck, and the half-dozen real tortoise-shell buttons form a trimming in perfect keeping with the quiet elegance of the gown.

The new hats, of course, claim a large share of the attention of the woman who is planning her fall outfit. Velvet or velour seems to be the favorite material and for the most part the shapes are small and close, fitting well down over the head. Both illustrations in these columns represent popular shapes. White velour with black trimming is handsome and dressy, but it is for temporary use only in the soot-laden atmosphere of the average American city. The most useful hat, and one which will be most often seen during the early fall is of black velour with a single white wing or fancy feather drooping low at the side.

Queen Mary a "Hen Peck"

London, Sept. 21.—The fact that King George did not attend the races at Doncaster has revived the story of how readily the king bows to the wishes of King Mary. There are those in high authority who aver that the king's proposed absence from the St. Leger meeting can be best explained in the queen's antipathy to horse racing. Others with court connection, however, maintain that there is nothing to this story and in support of their contention pointed to the races which the king has already attended this year, notably those at Newmarket and Epsom.

To Teach American Farmers

FEDERAL GOVERNMENT, AGRICULTURAL COLLEGES AND BUSINESS MEN'S ORGANIZATIONS FINANCING WORK OF EDUCATION.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 21.—A million dollars a year awaits the farmers of every grain-growing county in the United States in return for more scientific and businesslike management of their farms, in the opinion of the crop experts of the United States Brewers' association who presented their report to the 1912 convention at its closing session yesterday.

Due in part to increasing demand for malting barley incident to growing beer consumption and in part to decreased production consequent upon soil exhaustion and withdrawal of land from cultivation, the brewing industry finds itself face to face with a situation involving famine prices for its supply of raw material, with the prospect of an actual shortage in the near future.

With a view to meeting this alarming condition, the crop improvement committee of the association has been actively at work during the past year under the chairmanship of E. A. Faust of St. Louis and in close co-operation with similar committees of the Associated Grain Exchanges, various state and federal agricultural bureaus, and the state agricultural colleges generally. Lending its task and reporting on its actual accomplishments, the committee says:

"Agricultural investigation is twenty-five years ahead of agricultural practice. The more giving of lectures and issue of bulletins, while useful, do not reach the man who needs them the most. The problem is to reach the right persons, and—since it is impossible to improve any one crop at the expense of the others—to secure for barley its proper place in the plan of crop rotation in its right relation to wheat, oats, corn, rye and hay.

"In the crop improvement field there are thousands of workers, but until now there has been no clearing-house of ideas and activities. The greatest achievement of the year has been the concentration of practically all this effort and energy upon the central idea of forming in each county a farm bureau in charge of a competent agriculturist of business tact and judgment, thus assuring permanent personal service adapted to local conditions.

"Since the efficiency of these county organizations depends largely upon the human equation, success is largely a matter of leadership; and our first business is to find the leaders regardless of occupation. In one county he may be a banker, in another an editor, in still another a farmer, a miller or a superintendent of schools. In many communities the initiative comes from the local commercial club."

Can Increase Production.

That the average grain-growing county can increase its production, and incidentally its income, by $1,000,000 a year, the committee says is no exaggeration if only the farmers below the average can be brought to adopt the methods of their neighbors who are above the average and become business men. Good land is too valuable to be improperly farmed; yet farming on the average is not paying when interest on the investment and the farmer's own wage is taken into consideration. And this, in spite of the fact that the successful farmers—which means the business man on the farm—is making more money than almost any other class.

"The successful farmer," says the committee, "it is nonsense to seek out with gratuitous advice. We are reaching the unsuccessful man who through poverty, prejudice, indifference or self-satisfaction is constantly dragging down the county average of production. We are bringing communities to see that they have a right to know not only what the production of the county is but who really produces it."

The plan is to establish a paid agricultural adviser in each county, as the foundation for every other good plan. This is being done in part by the federal government, in part by state activities radiating from the state agricultural colleges, and in part by one-headed business corporations and associations—the brewers among them. In the end, the service ought to become locally self-supporting. In no case ought it to be entirely paternal, for as Dr. Galloway, chief of the bureau of plant industry, says:

"Experience has taught us that it is just as dangerous to give the farmer too much help as it is to attempt to give him too little help. The problem is to teach him to help himself, and to help him far enough so that he will have a realization of the fact that he has the power to help himself. We accomplish the best results by systematic studies of what is taking place within the farm itself, and then by so utilizing those studies as to point the way to the farmer in the matter of organizing his work and re-organizing his farm to the end of a more economical use of labor and a more profitable production of crops. Demonstrations with crops, small plots or entire farms, where all or most of the management is vested outside the farmer—are not likely to be successful. This early plan has been abandoned for the plan of making every man's farm a demonstration farm, with the farmer himself as demonstrator, understanding why and for what reason he is demonstrating."

Expense of the Farms.

The expense of maintaining these county farm bureaus is estimated by the government to be about $3700 a year each, but in the opinion of the brewers' committee from $3000 to $5000 per year per county is nearer the proper financing, and at least half should be raised locally to maintain interest and get results. That the balance should be forthcoming, the committee feels assured noting one single contribution by a great mail-order house of $1,000,000, of which 1000 sums of $1000 each are now available for 1000 counties which will form their on agricultural bureau, either independently or in conjunction with the government or the state college of agriculture, or both.

The brewers' committee reported that it had done much work in stimulating the formation of these county organizations. There are now in various stages of development bureaus in nearly 300 counties, mostly in the barley-growing states. This work takes the form of grain-meetings for comparing notes and exchanging ideas and instruction on cultivation methods, barley's place in crop rotation, pedigree seed, and the advisability of neighbors growing one variety and that one to command a quality price at the elevator. Effort is made to induce every farmer to breed up to its highest efficiency the same sort of barley, so that eventually all the barley shipped from that station will be uniform and free from mixture.

As a result of the Wisconsin campaign in charge of Professor Moore of the agricultural college, and H. E. Krueger, the one perhaps the most efficient barley-breeder in America and the other the champion barley-grower at the last barley show—a branch of the Wisconsin experiment association was established in nearly every county of the state.

In Iowa nearly half the counties have organized. A good quality of barley seed has been distributed at cost to the Nebraska farmers. North Dakota has already 25 agents in the field. South Dakota is organizing. A

EXPORTS LESS THIS SEASON

SO SAY THOSE WHO FIGURE ON THE COTTON CROPS OF THE COUNTRY.

FORECAST IS INTERESTING

American Manufacturers Will Take More of the Production This Year.
More Mill Equipment.

Although the outlook for the American cotton crop is still more or less mixed, owing to the conflicting reports from various sections of the cotton belt, the prospective requirements of consumption are more clearly outlined than is usual so early in the season. Of course there are claims by both bulls and bears, with the former predicting a record consumption and the latter a material falling off owing to the increase in the size of the crops of other countries. Last season the consumption of American cotton was 14,500,000 bales. This was a record. There is reason, however, to believe that practically as much will be used during the coming season notwithstanding the fact that India and Egypt both have larger crops than last year.

The average man interested in the price of American cotton, however, is not concerned so much over what the mills actually consume as much as he is regarding the amount that will be taken by manufacturers, says the New York Sun. As a matter of fact, the volume of cotton consumed by American spinners offers a much more simple method of figuring out an idea of values than any analysis of prospects for actual consumption. The cotton market advanced from early in the year not so much because the consumption by European mills was heavy as because of the enormous amount that was shipped out of this country, thus removing the cotton for the time being as a factor in the American supply situation. Exports to Europe, China, Japan, India, and other countries last year amounted to 10,504,465 bales, against 7,602,721 the year before. The previous record for exports, established several years ago, was about 8,750,000 bales. Exports were heavy last season for a variety of reasons—the contributing causes being the size of the American crop and its relatively low price, combined with the shortage in the crop of India.

Exports to Fall Off.
Obviously, it is not expected that exports this season will come anywhere near last year's total of 10,504,465 bales. It is by no means certain, however, that the volume of outgoing cotton will not be heavy enough to cause a severe drain on this year's production. Last season, which ended August 31, Great Britain took 4,243,000 bales, France 1,193,000 and the Continent 5,064,000. Included in the Continental exports, however, were shipments of 16,000 bales to Mexico, 114,000 bales to Japan and 2,900 bales to India. Further exports to India out of Liverpool and Continental shipments amounted to about 100,000 bales additional.

An attempt to figure out export requirements for the coming season brings forth some interesting results. Great Britain, on account of the splendid trade in Lancashire, probably needs about 4,300,000 bales. It is hard to see how France can get along with as little as 900,000, or practically 300,000 less than last year; the Continent proper took about 4,244,000 bales, and the minimum calculation probably would be 3,800,000; China, Japan and India all told took about 700,000 and the most generous reduction could hardly place the needs of these countries out of the present crop at less than 300,000 bales. This most conservative calculation makes a total of 5,300,000 bales, with the estimate based on cotton costing no more than 1d Liverpool, or 13 cents in New York. Naturally, if the price goes higher, the export requirements will decrease, but 8,750,000 bales looks like an extremely low figure for even a minimum calculation, unless prices go to an unexpected height.

Coming to the question of American consumption last season it might be stated that while American mills took about 5,500,000 bales, the actual consumption, as figured by Secretary Hester, was placed at 5,225,000 bales of American cotton.

A larger consumption is expected during the coming season for the reason that a good many weak spots in the textile situation in this country have been eliminated, and it is altogether a question of the supply of labor as to the amount American mills will consume, provided they can get cotton at reasonable prices, say anywhere under 14 cents. At present the mills in this country are making more money on the average than at any time since the boom of 1907. The situation is much more sound than it was then because jobbers and wholesalers have refrained from speculating and have kept stocks of goods down to a hand to mouth basis. There is a theoretical profit of $12 to $15 a bale in cotton now used in print cloth manufactured on the basis of 12-cent cotton. As there is no very large supply of goods it would be comparatively easy to advance prices in case the raw material market justified it. Aside from the increase in the activity of spindles and looms, which is pushing manufacturers to the limit in order to find adequate labor supply, there has been a comfortable addition to the mill equipment of the country, with about a million spindles

IS A FRIENDLY ACTION

STATEMENT IS MADE MOTOR COMPANY WILL COME BACK.

Bad Management Is Said to Be Cause of the Failure of the Big Concern.

There has been much interest in the bankruptcy proceeding involving the United States Motor company. It has been one of the largest corporations in the country engaged in the manufacture of automobiles, having an authorized capitalization of $42,000,000, of which $23,500,000 is now outstanding. Bad business management is given as the cause of the company's failure. On the announcement of the appointment of receivers, which has been looked for in Wall street for some time, the common stock on the curb dropped to 1/2 and the preferred to 4/5. The stock last year was selling at 80 a share for the preferred and 42 for the common.

The receivership is a friendly one, and the company, it is said, will be quickly re-organized. It is held by those chiefly concerned in the re-organization that it has a valuable property, and that it is absolutely in so far that the properties under right management, could be operated to pay all indebtedness and a profit.

The liabilities of the company, as stated in the petition to the court, are $12,250,000, of which all except $6,000,000 debenture bonds, not long ago put out, are mills and accounts payable for merchandise, money borrowed on notes, accrued interest and supplies. The quick assets are $9,250,000. Other assets are plants and equipment, $6,250,000; stocks in subsidiary companies, $4,200,000.

In the quick assets are included completed automobiles and factory inventories of automobile parts. About $2,000,000 worth of automobiles are manufactured and ready for sale, but it is impossible to realize upon the quick assets in sufficient time to meet the maturing obligations.

The receivers will report to the court on October 28, after an inventory of the company. The United States Motor company was incorporated in New Jersey in 1908 as the International Motor company. In 1910 its name was changed and it became the present largely capitalized company when it took over, among others, the following companies: The Maxwell-Briscoe, the Columbia, the Dayton, the Alden Sampson and the Brush runabout.

Its troubles first became prominent at the first of this year, when it passed the dividend on the preferred stock. In June it was unable to meet its merchandise and bank loan obligations. The factories of the company are said to be of fine efficiency and value.

J. P. Morgan & Co., whose name had been prominently mentioned in connection with the company, issued a direct statement that it had nothing whatever to do with the company beyond a loan that had been repaid, a subsequent loan of $100,000 and the taking of $250,000 of the bonds offered by Eugene Meyer, who headed a syndicate that underwrote $6,000,000 of the bonds of the company.

The way some of the boxing clubs are crowded with people these hot nights causes uneasiness to many, even though there are firemen always on the scene. "You ever think about the Iroquois theater fire?" a newspaper man asked Eddie Foy not long ago. "You bet I do, when I get in a place like this," replied the comedian, who is, by the way, an ardent devotee of the fistie sport. "I seldom get in a crowded hall but that I peel my eyes for the red lights over the fire escape doors. The Iroquois fire's a long time back, but a man who saw that can never forget it." Foy was on the stage when the tragic Chicago theater fire broke out.—New York Tribune.

Peacock pie, which figured at the Elizabethan banquet held to celebrate Midsummer Day, is not a delicacy likely to tempt all epicures. Still, most of us would rather eat peacock than some of the other birds consumed by our forefathers. In the thirteenth century, the heron, the crane, the crow, the stork, the cormorant and the bittern were considered excellent for the table. Yet the hare and the partridge were despised as food, and neither was ever served in the houses of the wealthy.—London Chronicle.

Four centuries ago the Incas of Peru, wise in their generation, protected and conserved the guano deposits of their empire. Since then 11,000,000 tons of guano have been removed and some of the deposits have been completely exhausted. Now Peru is imitating the wisdom of the Incas, and has adopted measures to conserve and perpetuate the supply of this invaluable fertilizing material.

Sheffield cutlery firms have subscribed $55,500 for the purpose of prosecuting for fraudulent use of the word "Sheffield" abroad.

added to the Southern mill list during the last year, according to the Southern Textile Bulletin, it is estimated that this additional spindleage calls for an increase in the use of cotton amounting to 250,000 bales. It is not unreasonable, therefore, to estimate United States and Canadian consumption of American cotton during the present season at approximately 5,750,000 bales, provided, of course, prices stay within reasonable limits.

With export requirements on a basis of 8,650,000 and American mill requirements approximately 5,750,000 bales, the total suggested needs of 14,400,000 makes a rather bullish demand proposition, particularly as the average estimates for the growing cotton crop are around 13,500,000 bales, with a possibility of 14,000,000 bales.

Unique Opening of Cotton Palace

Planned to Have Illuminated Parade With Carnival Features Through Principal Streets—Thousands Coming to Waco.

With an organization perfected to the last detail, working as smoothly as a well-oiled machine, immense strides have been made during the past week in the arrangements for the 1912 Cotton Palace. Never before during the history of Waco's big exposition have conditions obtained so favorable to the making of a creditable show. The absence of conflicting dates of other fairs, the bumper crops throughout this section, the presence of ample amusement features in this territory—everything has transpired to aid the management in its efforts to finally clinch the good impression created by previous Cotton Palace expositions. And with characteristic energy the directors have grasped the opportunity to make the most of these favorable conditions.

By the time the opening date rolls around the success of the Palace will be up to the Waco people to a great extent. There is no longer any doubt that outsiders will be here by the thousands—tens of thousands—if one may judge from the letters received from Waco's tributary territory asking for information on the big exposition. The railroads are in a position to do the handsome thing in the way of rates and have promised to "go the limit," as one passenger agent aptly phrased it.

"Ginger" For The Opening.
But even with immense crowds promised from the outside territory, especially as to the opening. This opening, which will be held at night, will be unique in the history of exposition undertakings. The directors of the Palace feel that if enough "ginger" is put into the opening by Waco people, the success of the undertaking is assured beyond peradventure. In other words, Waco will be asked to put on its carnival clothes on the opening day and start the big show off with such a display of mardi-gras spirit that it will pervade the very atmosphere and obtain during the rest of the two weeks.

With this end in view, the energies of the Cotton Palace organization just now are directed towards this opening to a large extent. While no definite plans have been decided on, it is suggested that some sort of a carnival parade be given in the downtown section—an illuminated procession that will be typical of the night-life of the Warpath. This parade can be helped to a great extent by the concessionaries, the Patterson Carnival company and the Waco Indians.

Exposition Will Be Ready.
The opening ceremonies are scheduled to take place at 7 o'clock Saturday evening, November 2, the feature of the exercises being a talk by Governor Colquitt in advance of his presiding the button which will start the machinery of the big show and set in to life the forces that will make the 1912 Cotton Palace the talk of Texas.

Merchants will be asked to close their stores and an effort will be made to assemble all of Waco inside the Cotton Palace grounds on this evening. With all these elaborate plans in operation, it will be absolutely necessary to have everything about the Palace in perfect order. All the exhibits must be in place, every concession must be set, ready to sell tickets—in other words, the edict has gone forth from the directing force of the exposition that the Cotton Palace must be as complete at 7 o'clock on the opening day as it will ever be. This feature in itself will be unique with the Cotton Palace, as it is a well-known fact that even some of the biggest expositions in the country are never ready when the starting gong rings.

Kryl Band Big Feature.
The directors are more than pleased with the advance reports from the attractions already engaged for this year's show. Kryl's band, which will be one of the big features, is now playing at the White City in Chicago. Most persons know what sort of a band is required to hold the engagement at the Windy City's big amusement resort. During a season the best bands of the world the heard there, and the fact that Kryl and his organization have been featured is the best evidence of its worth. Kryl is best known from his study of the American people and their likes and dislikes in a musical way. He is not above popular music and he plays it with as much care in direction as is given to the heaviest classical numbers. In other words, he molds his concerts to popular demand, always, however, with a view of giving the best efforts to every number.

Patterson Shows High-Class.
The same high reports come from the Patterson shows, which will be the feature on the Warpath. Patterson is known as the "carnival man ahead." Instead of sending out the same old seven-and-six every year, he is always on the lookout for new features. But probably his chief asset is his reputation for keeping away from the "buncum stuff" sent out by so many carnival shows—the fake exhibits gotten up with the sole purpose of separating the unwisest from their money. All of his attractions are high-class and leave no room for visitors to be dissatisfied with their quality.

Patterson this season is featuring his circus. Starting a number of years ago with the regulation "animal show," he has built it to year by year until he now offers an excellent entertainment of circus acts, including some of the best known artists of the sawdust ring.

Other attractions will probably be features on the Warpath, but the directors of the Palace are very careful in the granting of concessions, and it is stated by the management that all attractions will be carefully censored in advance of the opening and no mercy will be shown towards those shows which are manifestly fakes. They will be promptly closed and hustled off the grounds.

Indians Look Forward To Trip.
Reports from Oklahoma relative to the visit to their old haunts to be made by the Waco Indians are to the effect that the redskins are making elaborate preparations. Some of the oldest bucks remember Waco as the big springs in the midst of a peaceful valley. They cannot for the life of their picture here a big city, with a 22-story shaft of brick and marble in its midst and the homes of pale-faces spread over their old-time hunting grounds.

The younger Indians are on edge to see the hunting grounds of their fathers and there is keen rivalry as to what members of the tribe will be allowed to make the trip. That the party will be representative is agreed—the tallest and straightest bucks, the prettiest girls, the best-matured papooses, the most industrious squaws, the most patriarchal looking old men—these will compose the village that will be transplanted to Waco.

Uncle Sam knows the Waco Indians as among the most industrious of his charges. Even when occupying the ground on which Waco is now situated they had fields of corn, peach orchards, and showed industry far in excess of the other tribes of Texas. They have been careful to preserve old traditions and it is said of the Wacos that they have kept the strain of their blood purer than most of the tribes.

Care will be taken in the establishment of the village here to transplant as carefully as possible the actual life of the tribe as it now exists. On festive occasions, the Indians will don war paint and other paraphernalia of

Whitney--A Good Town

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Whitney, Sept. 21.—Whitney is the cotton market for twenty miles around, for it always pays higher prices for cotton than the neighboring market towns.

The Texas Central divides the town north and south, and it is a pleasant fact to note that the four passenger trains a day are on time—very seldom they are late.

The two national banks supply the financial needs. The Citizens' Bank, of which W. L. Sanderson is president, and the First National Bank, of which J. A. Christie is president, present by their statements financial stability.

The black lands surrounding Whitney are very productive and the productiveness of the sandy lands is quickly forcing itself to the notice of the people. Ballard and Herring sell many of the sandy land farms, as well as the firm of Ballard & Co.

The peanut is now much spoken of as a good crop, and the educated farmer knows that the peanuts will flourish where the corn crop is partly a failure. The farmers are building new houses and outhouses. They need not leave Whitney for lumber for the Boesch Lumber Company can old-time days and stage the dances of their fathers. However, the pale-face occupants of the Wacos' old stamping grounds will doubtless derive the most pleasure from a study of the Indians at close range.

Waco People Must Help.
But it will take more than careful planning, more than cheap rates by the railroads, to make the Cotton Palace the success it merits this fall. It will take the co-operation of the Waco people, and just now the directors of the enterprise are centering their efforts toward making the opening the greatest ever staged by a fair or exposition in Texas.

In view of the immense amount of labor and planning being done by the directors to make this exposition the final clincher towards establishing the Cotton Palace as firmly as the rock of Gibraltar, they feel they are asking not too much of the citizens of the city to lay aside every other engagement for the evening of Saturday, November 2, to don carnival clothes and a mardi-gras spirit and to start the Cotton Palace with such a dash of ginger that it will echo throughout Texas as the sort of get-up-and-get that has made Waco the city of actualities.

Miss Nellie Buck will open her South Waco Academy Monday, Sept. 23. Old Phone 1520.

Famous Lawyers Created by Dickens

OVER FORTY IN HIS NOVELS, NOT COUNTING INNUMERABLE CLERKS.
"N" TYPES PORTRAYED.

When we consider Dickens' short clerkship in an attorney's office and his limited experience as a law reporter it is astonishing, says a writer in the Green Bag, with what familiarity he uses legal phraseology and describes legal customs. His delineations of lawyers, too, though betraying the satirist, have the touch of a master.

How many lawyers have not appreciated what a difficult witness Sam Weller is in his cross-examination by Serjt. Buzfuz? Dickens has introduced almost forty men of law into his different romances, every one a distinct type of the legal confraternity. It is remarkable, too, that they are all sharply individualized, from the low shyster type of Sampson Brass to the bland and dignified Lord Chancellor himself.

Besides these there are innumerable lawyers' clerks, some of whom are famous to us as quaint characters aside from their professional association. There is our old friend Dick Swiveller, always getting those "inscrutable and unmitigated stagerers" at the mysterious conduct of his lawyer employers.

There is Tom Pinch, who tries to draw out Mr. Pips as to the identity of his employer, but gets for his pains only the equivocal answer, "Be careful how you go; it's rather dark." There is John Wemmick, who must be first "seen" before his employer, Jaggers, will talk with a client and who never permits a hint or mention of the "Aged Parent" or the "castle" while in the office.

There is the smart and "spoffish" law student, Percy Nokes. And there is Babbalanza, who has written "The Thorn of Anxiety," a tragedy which, like a thorn in the flesh, "will not come out." Dickens himself was frank to confess that he exaggerated these types.

Some of the Shysters.
There is Uriah Heep in "David Copperfield," the sly, oily villain, always humble and deprecatory, but weaving all things to his own purposes. There are Sampson Brass and "Mr." Sally Brass, in "Old Curiosity Shop," the lowest types of shysters who in the end meet with the retribution they deserve. There is the yellow haired Mr. Rugg in "Little Dorrit," whose round white visage looked as if all his blushing had been drawn out long ago.

William Stryver in the "Tale of Two Cities" is sharply drawn as a type of the elbowing windbag and demagogue, stout, loud, red bluff and free from any drawback of delicacy. It is said that Stryver is patterned after Lord Thurlow, who when he needed the law he lacked, had many jackals at the Sydney Carton type to look it up for him. Among these assistants of Thurlow were John Scott, who after became the famous Lord Chancellor Eldon, and the Welsh lawyer, who became eminent as Lord Chief Justice Kenyon.

Mr. Kenge of the firm of Kenge & Carboy, in "Bleak House," stands for the charlatan and pettifogger. He is called "Conversation" Kenge, because he enjoys beyond everything the sound of his rich, mellow voice. He is a portly, important looking gentleman, dressed all in black, with white cravat, gold watch seals, gold eyeglasses and a large seal ring. He always listens to himself with obvious satisfaction and sometimes gently beats time to his own music with his head or rounds a sentence with his hand.

Mr. Wholes, also in "Bleak House," the chancery lawyer, is, we are told, a type of the placid treasurers and presidents of mining, agricultural, commercial and railroad companies, who preserve on the strength of salaries notoriously disproportioned to their abilities, a calm, mysterious sublimity of expression, while comfortably inquiring stockholders with the vague assurance that all will be right in the end.

One of the Malignant Type.
Mr. Tulkinghorn, another lawyer in "Bleak House," is one of the malignant types of the Dickens lawyer, yet unique in its malignancy. "Too passionless to be either a friend or an enemy," he is mechanically faithful, without attachment, to his clients. Ever vigilant of their interests, he is absolutely devoid of pity, compunction or any of the softer emotions. His one passion in life, if such a man can be said to have a passion, is the acquisition of aristocratic secrets.

Reincarnated Romance Is Dead

RALPH OTT AND HIS WIFE WHOSEKS DIVORCE.

St. Louis, September 21.—The strangest romance of modern times has gone the way of too many modern romances, and Mrs. Ralph Chesley Ott is suing for divorce from the artist whom she married a little over two years ago, and whom she said she had met and loved some 5000 years before that in Egypt. Mrs. Ott alleges cruelty in her suit, and it seems the only point on which the two still agree is the story of their reincarnated romance. According to both their tales she was the Princess Amerlie 5000 years ago, and he was an artist in the employ of her haughty father, Pharaoh. As in their modern romance, it was a case of love at first sight when the princess and the artist met for the first time in the queen's chamber of the great Pyramid. After that they used to walk in the palace gardens and go to the river, where they fed sweetmeats to the crocodiles. But one night the king surprised them in a clandestine meeting, and here the memories of both Mr. and Mrs. Ott regarding their ancient love affair become hazy. Ott's modern meeting of his 5000 year old ideal was at University City, Mo., after he had returned from a commission to study Egyptian architecture for E. G. Lewis. She was then Miss Jane Schaufert, an artist's model.

Edwin Dood, "Awkward and hesitating in manner, ungainly in appearance, whimsical, near-sighted, wooden and impassive—yet shrewd withal—still had some strange capacity in him of making on the whole an agreeable impression."

The majority of Dickens' lawyers are really contemptible characters—tricksters and pettifoggers, schemers and charlatans—and at best the author shows but a grudging toleration for those high up in the profession. Even the Lord High Chancellor himself has not escaped his execrations. He seems to have believed in the old story which makes the devil the lawyers' patron saint; and he makes use in one of his tales of the inscription over the door of the queer old house of Rochester in Kent, which places proctors and rogues in the same class:

Richard Watts, Esq., by his Will, dated 22 Aug. 1759, founded this Charity for Six Poor Travellers, who, not being Rogues or Proctors, may receive gratis for one night Lodging, Entertainment and Fourpence each.

The reason for this antipathy toward lawyers lay, perhaps, in Dickens' dislike for the law itself—for its delays, its interminable red tape and its senseless jargon and forms as it was administered in England in his day. He had been an attorney's clerk for eighteen months and had seen when a young man many instances of individual hardship which certain particular applications of the law had worked.

At best he seems to have considered the science of jurisprudence as a vast mesh of artful contrivance—a labyrinthine spider web—and lawyers themselves as a species of arachnid accomplices, whose function it is to further entangle those who are unfortunate enough to get caught by the great spider, Authority.

The first railway in Europe ran its first train on May 5, 1825. It went from Brussels to Mechlin.

Returning from his vacation in the North Carolina mountains, Dr. J. L. Kesler, dean of the college, brought some valuable specimens for the Baylor University museum in the form of five hundred salamanders from Mt. Mitchell and Craggy Mountain. They are excellent specimens of that type of animal and Curator John K. Strecker is very glad to have them for his collection.

Mr. F. T. Rogers, instructor in the department of biology at Baylor, also brought with him from the Ohio river a valuable collection of fresh water shells. He spent the summer in Kentucky and one of his diversions consisted of collecting shells from the big river. They form an important addition to the natural material from other states with which Mr. Strecker is supplementing his big Texas collection.

In addition to the pearly fresh water mussels which he recently procured from the streams of Southwest Texas, where he went on a searching expedition, Mr. Strecker gathered some valuable reptiles from that section of the state which he did not have represented in the museum before. He gathered about 3000 mussel shells in the lot and will soon have them polished, and ready for display in the museum, which already occupies a number of rooms in the basement of Carroll Science Hall.

"Meet Me on the War Path"

The coming of the Waco tribe of Indians to the Cotton Palace will be of interest to every resident of Waco, especially the older inhabitants. It was through the efforts of Captain R. S. Ross of this city, that these redmen were induced to return to their old abiding place, where their wigwams were stationed and where their councils took place.

"Meet Me on the War Path"

STATE ROAD LAW OF MARYLAND

By Major W. W. Crosby, Chief Engineer State Roads Commission of Maryland.

In 1896 the Maryland legislature passed an act appropriating $10,000 annually to the Maryland Geological and Economic survey for the investigation of the road condition of the state and a report thereon. These reports, in 1900, 1902 and 1904, admittedly the finest of their kind ever published, resulted, in 1904, in the passage of the State Aid law.

This law (acts of 1904, chapter 225) is not an experimental piece of legislation, but a permanent one, and it is the purpose of this article to point out the reasons for its success.

A county may secure state aid in the following manner: The county commissioners of a county petition the state commission for aid to build a certain piece of road. If it is found, upon examination by the state commission, that the road in question is one of general public convenience and proper to construct, an estimate of the cost of the improvement is made, together with plans, specifications, etc., for doing the work. This is undertaken by the county commissioners either by contract or, if the prices for doing it in this manner are considered too high, then in other ways that they may deem best.

After the work is done according to the specifications, and the state commission has so certified to the comptroller, then one-half of the cost of constructing the road will be paid by the state to the county building the road; but in no case is the amount paid by the state to exceed one-half of the cost, as shown by the estimate of the cost of the work as at first made by the state commission.

In the event that the county commissioners fail to petition for state aid under this law, it is provided that the owners of two-thirds of the lands bordering any public road or section of road, not less than a mile long, can compel the county commissioners to petition for the construction of the piece of road, provided that the owners petitioning have paid or have pledged 10 per cent of the cost. The work then proceeds as already described, except that the county commissioners cannot be compelled by this payment of 10 per cent, by property holders to contract for work to an amount greater than one-fourth of the road levy of the county. This 10 per cent subscription is not obligatory on any property owner.

Any expense due to the payment for land that may be necessary to secure a proper location for the road or any damages that may arise through the construction of the road will not be paid by the state, but must be met by the county.

Under this law have been built to January 1, 1912, 166 miles and on that date 19 more miles were under contract and more or less partly completed.

The legislature of 1906 added to the statutes the State Road law. This act (with a supplementary act of 1910) provides a fund of $6,000,000 for the improvement "in and through all the counties of the state" of a system of main market roads. This system, aggregating about 1200 miles, was selected by the state roads commission as required by the law, after about a year's consideration at meetings held all over the state by the commission, and in the spring of 1909 construction work on it was begun.

The state roads commission is composed of the governor and two members of the Maryland Geological and Economic survey ex-officio, with four appointees of the governor. It has full powers for its work, including those of eminent domain.

To January 1, 1912, it has contracted for the improvement of 349 miles of the system, including the Baltimore-Annapolis boulevard (16 miles), and completed the work on 154 miles, leaving 195 miles, including the Baltimore-Annapolis boulevard (16 miles) now under contract, most of which will be finished early in the present summer.

As a general statement, it may be said that the state-aided roads are tributaries to the state road system, thus acting as extensions to the latter off the main routes between the larger centers.

In addition to the two main acts above referred to, the state made in 1904, 1908 and 1910 special appropriations for the improvement of the Baltimore-Washington road, aggregating $384,000, and quite likely will make a further appropriation for this road at the present legislative session in 1912.

A further loan of between five and ten million dollars for the work on the state road system is recommended by the governor and seems probable at the present session.

The legislature of 1910 consolidated the administration of all the state's road laws in the hands of the state roads commission.

The organization of the state road department for this work is as follows: A secretary, in charge of the office of the commission, reports to the chairman.

A counsel, in charge of the legal business, reports to the commission. A chief engineer, in charge of the engineering department, reports to the commission.

The engineering department is divided into two divisions of construction and maintenance, each headed by an assistant engineer. The construction division has two sub-divisions, one of supervision of construction and one of survey, planning and estimating.

The work of both the construction and maintenance divisions is located in a number of sections of the state and an engineer-inspector is assigned to each section for each division. Under these engineer inspectors came the contractors, inspectors, foreman, etc.

The survey parties are not assigned to any particular section, but are sent out as may be deemed by the chief draftsman, who heads the sub-division of surveys, plans and estimates, and who reports to the assistant engineer in charge of construction. Three parties of four men each (chief of party, instrument man and two road men) have been found sufficient.

The office force of the engineering department, consisting of chief clerk, bookkeeper, record clerk, clerks, accountants, stenographers, etc., reports to the secretary of the chief engineer.

As high as three and one-quarter millions of dollars worth of work has been under way at one time during 1910 and 1911, and the operation of the organization described seems to have been satisfactory and efficient.

Melba, the Great Soprano Singer. No Prima Donna of the present day has ever been loved in three continents as has this Australian artist.

It was on December 5th, 1892, in New York, that Melba was revealed to the American public. Who that was present will ever forget the marvelous voice that burst on their charmed ears at that time? Such power and brilliancy, such captivating ease of execution, such warmth and loveliness was simply astonishing. Music lovers took the singer to their hearts that night, and today she is more firmly entrenched in their affections than ever.

Melba was born Nellie Mitchell, at Burnley, near Melbourne, Australia. The singer came to Europe in 1886, and began to study under Mme. Marchesi, making such rapid progress that her debut was made in Brussels in 1887 under the name of Melba (derived, of course, from her native city), and her success was immediate.

Melba is today singing with the same delightful freshness, purity and power that have enthralled her audiences in the past. Her recent stay in America was all too brief and her countless admirers were loth to let her go, but her operatic tour of Australia forced her to sail to that country.

It is a matter for congratulation that The Victor Talking Machine Co. have secured records by this great singer when she was at her best, so that posterity will hear her in the full tide of her powers. Melba, like all the greatest singers in the world, makes records exclusively for the VICTOR and they may be secured at all times at the Waco Talking Machine Co., as the record stock is always complete. We invite you to call and hear the late records.

KATY TRAINS COLLIDE.

Many Sheep and Cattle are Killed Near Houston.

Houston, Tex., Sept. 21.—For more than ten hours Katy trains were blocked in the western suburban of the city owing to a collision between two freight trains shortly after 7 o'clock last night. An incoming train dashed into the rear of an outgoing freight, it is said, and many sheep and cattle were killed. Their crews had narrow escapes by jumping. Blame for the wreck has not been fixed.

DEVELOPMENT OF TEXAS

IS SUBJECT TO BE DISCUSSED AT HOUSTON MEETING.

Texas Commercial Secretaries and Business Men to Have Big Convention.

Fort Worth, Tex., Sept. 21. To the Progressive Citizenship of Texas:

We take pleasure in extending every one interested in the development of Texas a most cordial invitation to attend the fifth annual convention of the Texas Commercial Secretaries and Business Men's association to be held in Houston October 4th and 5th, 1912.

In view of the probable opening of the Panama canal in 1913, this will likely be the last meeting of the association before that great event and can be well called the "Pre-Panama Convention" of the association.

There has been no time in the history of Texas when there has been so many economic, commercial and industrial problems for solution, and this being true, it is hoped that this may be the best and most largely attended meeting of the kind ever held in the state.

The crowning work of the Texas Commercial Secretaries and Business Men's association during its five years of existence was the organization of the Texas Welfare commission; this commission is composed of fifteen of the ablest, most patriotic and progressive men of the state and men who have given careful study to the problems now confronting the people of Texas.

The feature of this annual meeting will be the presentation and consideration of the report of the Texas Welfare commission and will, therefore, be of the deepest import. One of the questions already considered by the commission, and the only one upon which definite action has been taken, was the step in connection with the Texas Farmers' union in securing necessary loans with which to finance holding of cotton in the state for this season.

Other grave questions that affect the progress and prosperity of other classes and interests will be reported upon and there will be no document that will go to the people of Texas which will be fraught with more general and special effort than the report of the Texas Welfare commission. Its importance is so highly regarded by the Texas Commercial Secretaries and Business Men's association that most of the two days' meeting mentioned above will be given to the consideration of this report.

Texas has been a pioneer state in industrial development, and the greatest asset in this direction being the Texas Commercial Secretaries and Business Men's association. The work of this organization in cementing the commercial, agricultural and industrial interests has been invaluable. But there is still much to be done and we urge the progressive spirit of Texas to attend the fifth annual meeting of the association to hear and consider the report of the Texas Welfare commission and in doing so, we are radiant with the hope that the year's close study given by this patriotic body of men to the economic, commercial and industrial questions of the state and their report upon same, will be a long stretch toward the goal of making the Lone Star state the greatest in progress of all the states of the Union.

We are pleased to advise that all the railroads have given low rates to this meeting, and Houston, through its Chamber of Commerce and citizens, give assurance of a most cordial welcome to those who attend the meeting.

Again we urge the progressive spirits of Texas to attend this meeting and anticipate with sincere hope that it will be the greatest gathering of its kind that has ever been held in the state.

FIND OLD WILL

Dallas Woman Expects to Get Fortune From England.

Dallas, Tex., Sept. 21.—The discovery of a lost will in an old book in London, England, and the fortune he expects it to bring to a Dallas woman, was related today by United States District Attorney W. H. Atwell. Mr. Atwell refused to make public the woman's name. He said a reclusive in London died 20 years ago leaving a fortune of about $3,000,000 but no will could be found. Three weeks ago, he said, a lover of old books purchased in a London book stall a rusty backed book. For it he paid one shilling, three pence. Turning the pages, the purchaser discovered a yellowed slip of paper, which proved to be the will of the reclusive.

The purchaser of the book received a $50,000 standing reward which had been offered for his will. Atwell said. The will left the entire fortune to nephews and nieces, one of whom is the Dallas woman.

The Greater Sanger Assortments of Silks and Wool Dress Fabrics Have Now Reached a State of Ideal Completeness

It is with a feeling of pride that we announce the complete readiness of these two departments. Choosing a Silk and Wool Dress Goods stock that calls for the immense assortment that ours does is no small task. It means first a complete knowledge of fabrics, a knowledge of the taste and requirements, the wants and desires of thousands of patrons—it calls for judgment and ability that is only possible after years of experience and careful study. All these things have been concentrated in the selection of this Greater Sanger stock of Silks and Wool Dress Fabrics. Here you have the same opportunity of choosing from all that is new, all that is correct and all that is desirable that you would have in the most metropolitan establishment of the larger cities. And you have added advantage here. After you have decided upon the fabric, you may go into the Dress Trimming Department and find there the very things that match, the very colors that blend to make a most charming costume, gown or suit. Our buyers were in the markets together, and the purchases of the Dress Trimming buyer fit in with those of the Silk and Wool Dress Goods buyer just as carefully as if we had purchased materials with the idea of fashioning the garments ourselves. The services of salespeople who have had years of experience in blending colors, selecting dress trimmings to go with them, and who have studied all the other numerous little details necessary to the finished garments are at your command if you desire them. In addition to the extensive showing of extreme novelties in Silks and Wool Dress Fabrics, we have arranged for tomorrow special price reductions in both Silks and Wool Dress Fabrics. Note the following items:

GROWS BEAUTIFUL, HEAVY HAIR—25 CENT "DANDERINE"

Destroys Dandruff—Stops Falling Hair—Cleans and Invigorates Your Scalp.
Delightful Dressing.

To be possessed of a head of heavy, beautiful hair; soft, lustrous, fluffy, wavy and free from dandruff, is merely a matter of using a little Danderine.

It is easy and inexpensive to have nice, soft hair and lots of it. Just get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine now—all drug stores recommend it—apply a little as directed and within ten minutes there will be an appearance of abundance, freshness, fluffiness and an incomparable gloss and lustre, and try as you will, you cannot find a trace of dandruff or falling hair; but your real surprise will be after about two weeks use, when you will see new hair—fine and soft—growing all over your scalp—Danderine is, we believe, the only sure hair grower; destroyer of dandruff and cure for itchy scalp and it never fails to stop falling hair at once.

If you want to prove how pretty and soft your hair really is, moisten a cloth with a little Danderine, and carefully draw it through your hair—taking one small strand at a time.
Your hair will be soft, glossy and beautiful in just a few moments—a delightful surprise awaits everyone who tries this.

CONTROVERSY IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS WEST SCHOOLS SHOW INCREASE

QUESTION IS WHERE SHALL PU-PILS TAKE THEIR MUSIC LESSONS?

TEACHER IN THE BUILDING

And Two Teachers Nearby—Superintendent Abbott Rules on the Matter at Issue.

A lively contest has developed in the county school at West between the board of trustees of the school and music teachers outside of the school and a written opinion as to the merits of the case, in which the government of the pupils of the school is affected, has been secured by the outside teachers and one of the members of the board of trustees, from County Superintendent R. L. Abbot.

Miss Martin is the teacher of music. She has a room in the public school building and for the use of this room she gives to the board of trustees of the school 10 per cent of her receipts from the pupils of the school who take music from her. Nearby Miss Nell Cressley and Lyle Skinner conduct music classes, drawing some of their pupils from the members of the school classes, and giving them music lessons, in some instances, during the regular school hours.

By a ruling of the board of trustees, the pupils of the school who do not take music from Miss Martin, whose room is in the building, are not to be allowed to leave the building during the school hours and take music on the outside.

Prof. Abbott holds that the trustees have no right to insist upon this ruling if it is shown by the children that they do not take time away from their classes to go to their music at Miss Cressley's or Mr. Skinner's homes.

He declares that if the pupils do not allow the music lessons to interfere with their work they have the same right to take lessons from outsiders as they have to take lessons from Miss Martin.

The father of Miss Cressley was in the city yesterday and asked that Prof. Abbott, in addition to giving his opinion, also go to Austin and get a ruling from the State Department of Education. Prof. Abbott, however, says he will not have time to make the trip.

Prof. Abbott's Opinion.
It is understood that the matter has not been satisfactorily settled as yet, each side "standing pat."

Prof. Abbott's opinion, written to a member of the trustees, is as follows:

Mr. C. C. Carroll,
West Texas.

Dear Mr. Carroll:

It was my first impression when I heard of the differences in your school with respect to the music question, that the board of trustees would have a right to force all children who took music to take the same in the school building, and not allow them to leave the building for that purpose under any circumstances.
Since carefully investigating this subject, I now hold that where a child wishes to take music outside of the building, and can so come within the time allowed for that subject the board of trustees would have no authority to prevent the child from leaving the school building for the purpose stated above.

If the one who taught music in the building were paid in funds belonging to the school as all other teachers are, then the trustees would have the right to say that all children who take music shall take the same in the school building from the teacher who is employed by the board, and paid in

KILLS HIS BEST FRIEND

TRAGEDY FOLLOWS QUARREL BE-TWEEN TWO POLICEMEN.

Roommates for Four Years Are Angered Over Triviality and Jump for Their Guns.

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 21.—When J. W.
Camp, a bicycle policeman, and S. A.
Belding, a patrolman, room mates, became angered this morning over a trivial matter, both reached for their loaded revolvers lying on a bureau in their room. Camp was the quicker by the flicker of an eyelash and ended the quarrel with a bullet killing his friend instantly. They had roomed together four years.

A policeman on the beat found Officer Camp sitting by Belding's body.

"It's all right," said Camp. "I've just been forced to kill my best friend.
It's awful, isn't it? But I had to kill him to save myself."

Camp said Belding had asked him to move a piece of furniture and that when he did not comply quick enough, Belding became angered.

FIRST WEEK'S REGISTRATION IS FAR IN EXCESS OF LAST YEAR.

NUMBER OF BOYS MORE

All Departments Are in Fine Working Order—North Waco Building Is Crowded.

More white pupils by 381 were registered in the White schools of the city at the close of the first week this year than at the close of the first week of school last year, while there are just 37 more negroes being instructed, according to figures secured from the office of Superintendent Lattimore yesterday.

The increase in attendance in the white schools is made up chiefly of boys, the number of girls in the various schools being practically the same as last year. In the colored schools the boys show an increase of one over the enrollment the first week last year, the remaining 36 of the increase being girls.

The total number of white pupils being instructed in the city schools is 4074; while at the close of the year last year there were but 3693 on the rolls.

In all of the schools of the city, white and negro, there were enrolled at the close of the week this year 4418 and at the close of the same week last year 4069.

Every department of the city schools this year is going forward smoothly, and at the close of the week the work for the first term had been gotten well under way. Conditions at the North Waco school are said to be somewhat crowded for the two rooms being used, but this will be remedied probably within the week by Superintendent Lattimore.

The football team of the high school probably will be organized during the coming week and other athletic teams probably a track team, will begin training.

The following is the enrollment in the various districts for this year compared with last year:

District No. 1.....	148	1912	1911
District No. 2.....	247	175	268

In the above tables an explanation was made with reference to the increase apparent in the Central school, stating that last year district No. 1 had its high sixth grade in its own building, but this year the grade has been sent to the Central building. The same was done in district No. 8.

IN AID OF AGRICULTURE

RECOMMENDATIONS FOR LEGIS-LATION MADE BY HERRICK.

Report of Exhaustive Investigation of Agricultural Systems in European Countries Has Been Compiled.

Paris, Sept. 21.—Sweeping recommendations for legislation designed to help the development of agriculture in the United States are contained in an elaborate report forwarded to Washington by the American ambassador, Myron T. Herrick, who has completed an exhaustive investigation of the systems of agricultural credit facilities in operation in Europe. The ambassador wrote the document after receiving reports from other American diplomatic representatives in Europe and conferring with others.

The work of gathering and compiling material for the formulation of plans for an efficient land and agricultural system has been carried on under instructions from President Taft, and Ambassador Herrick has been assisted by a commission which reached here from the United States in July. Edwin Chamberlain of San Antonio, Tex., one of the commission who represents the American Bankers' association, will report to that organization.

The ambassador's report recommends the adoption by the United States of the Reiffen system of agricultural co-operative credits societies. This particular system has been successful where its operations represents the business of the commercial banks. It includes organizations composed of small co-operative societies whereby farmers are able to borrow money for a short time on their collective guarantee. These societies have become the nucleus of a series of central co-operative banks.

The report also recommends that persons interested in the welfare of the farmer should form a general committee to direct a movement for the loaning of money to farmers for a long period at lower rates than they now obtain.

The report urges the president to place the matter before the people and

SEEK RELEASE OF AMERICAN

AMBASSADOR WILSON MAKES DE-MAND ON GOVERNOR OF TA-MAULIPAS, MEXICO.

USE FORCE IF NECESSARY

Persecution of W. C. Nichols, Who Has Been in Filthy Jail Six Months, Is Alleged.

Mexico City, Sept. 21.—Ignoring the usual channels of diplomatic intercourse, the American ambassador, Henry Lane Wilson, has made a peremptory demand on Gov. Matias Guerrao of the state of Tamaulipas for the immediate release from jail at Tampico of W. C. Nichols, an American fruit grower. Nichols was arrested six months ago on a charge of having killed a bandit, Caballos, whose apprehension the authorities had attempted for many months. The ambassador was authorized by the administration at Washington to employ whatever means he considered necessary to bring about an amelioration of Nichols' condition.

Ambassador Wilson says Nichols will gain his release, even if it is necessary to land marines from the United States cruiser Des Moines, now at Tampico.

Persecution Is Charged.
The American ambassador regards the treatment accorded Nichols by the Mexican authorities as persecution, and has so stated in his message to the governor. In support of this belief he points to the fact that a Mexican has confessed in court to being the slayer of Caballos. This confession was disregarded by the court. The Mexican was not arrested, and the procedure against Nichols was continued on an appeal from the sentence of eight years' imprisonment. The application is being heard before the court at Ciudad Victoria, the state capital.

The jail in which Nichols is confined is filthy and overcrowded. Ambassador Wilson has been treating the matter for several months diplomatically, but has accomplished little. In his note to the governor, the ambassador reminded him that his message was not official, but that it was to be considered none the less authoritative.

He demanded that Nichols be placed in surroundings more sanitary and in keeping with the usage of civilized countries, pending proceedings against him, which Ambassador Wilson suggested be hastened.

THE QUESTION OF TARE.

The department of commerce and labor has made public the report of the commissioner of corporations with respect to his investigation of the tare evil. The commissioner's principal conclusions are that the arbitrary tare to which American cotton is subjected should be reduced from 6 to 5 per cent; that better and more uniform methods of covering and shipping cotton should be introduced, and that the compressing should be done where the cotton is ginned.

While the tare and allied evils may be reached through legislation, it would be perhaps preferable, the commissioner thinks, to let the cotton trade work out a solution itself. The commissioner's judgment is good in that respect. The matter is one to be regulated by trade rather than by statute law.

The practice of deducting 5 per cent, or approximately thirty pounds, from every bale of cotton for tare, is the outgrowth of past methods—the penalty accruing for carelessly and wastefully putting up and handling cotton as was universally done up to a few years ago. Fitful agitation has produced some reform. Many well packed and well wrapped bales now find their way to market where they were formerly the exception. But a large proportion of the crop is still sent forth in as bad a shape as was the case a quarter of a century ago, and it is upon this particular and still considerable part of the annual output of staple that the excuse for penalizing each bale to the extent of thirty pounds for tare rests, although a fair average would be around twenty-two pounds. The man who takes the trouble to have his cotton properly baled gets no reward for his pains because there are others who refuse to abandon the methods of packing that brought about the establishment and observance of the 5 per cent rule. Since all of the cotton growers have not seen fit to adopt modern and economical methods of preparing their cotton for market, all cotton is judged by the lowest standard—the standard fixed by the patrons of the back number gins and the fellows who let their cotton take the mud and the weather in any old gin or cotton yard.

If cotton were put up in bales of uniform size and weight; if lighter wrapping material, coarse and strong cotton cloth, say, were used; if the bales were kept under cover, and if the compressing were all done at ship-side, it would be easy enough to effect a reduction in the percentage of tare to be deducted. Such reforms can not be produced by law. They can be compelled by concerted action on the part of those interested in the cotton trade, however. To begin with, the practice of following a general rule for the assessment of tare should be abandoned. Properly baled cotton should be given the benefit of the care bestowed upon it, for until that is done—as long as the disreputable bale is kept on the same basis as the good one in the matter of tare—there will be no inducement for the grower to improve the character of his package.

It strikes us, though, that no great amount of relief will be obtained until the system of marketing cotton is revolutionized. At present we on this side have practically nothing to say in the actual consummation of sales of the staple. Being without warehouses at the ports where cotton can be assembled, standardized and officially certificated and held for delivery to the spinners as they need it, we are compelled to let it pass into the hands of middlemen, who send it abroad as rapidly as they can, to be subjected to "arbitration"—that is, to be penalized at the option of self-constituted foreign judges of values for the purpose of maintaining the storehouses in which the Europeans keep it.

We talk of our cotton markets, but we have no cotton markets. The real markets are in Liverpool, Manchester, Hamburg, Havre and a few other continental cities. That's where the price is finally fixed after the many petty grafters who live off cotton have collected their bit. Our so-called markets are mere avenues for feeding the staple to the fellow on the other side.

When we supply ourselves with warehouses at the ports and arrange for the closing of the sale on this side, in so far as we are concerned, we will be in a position to regulate the assessment of tare and situated to get rid of the "arbitration" graft.

The foreign warehouseman and the lute bagging trust insist that the agitation for a reduction of tare is solely in the interest of the exporter. Naturally enough, they are seeking to discredit a reform that would deprive them of arbitrary advantages, but it is bound to come sooner or later.

FLOOD WATER CONSERVATION.

The Texas Midcoast Industrial Congress, at its recent session in Matagorda, adopted resolutions giving emphasis to the opinion that the conservation of flood waters is one of the most important economic questions confronting the people of Texas as a whole, and, more particularly, the people of the midcoast section, where in are the lower reaches and mouths of several of the state's greatest streams. The congress also named a special committee on the conservation of flood waters whose duty it shall be to secure effective action on this subject.

Irrigation, drainage and conservation are closely allied—all three can be carried on with more or less relation to one another. If the people of the midcoast country were prepared to store a portion of the surplus water that annually invades the lower stretches of the rivers that find their way to the gulf through that section, the problem of obtaining moisture at the right time for their rice and other crops would be solved. And if the people up-stream and in the neighborhood of the headwaters were equipped similarly, crop failures would be unknown in a portion of the state that would rival the best in point of production but for the irregularity and uncertainty of the rainfall.

There are two rivers which have their outlet in the midcoast country, the Brazos and the Colorado, which, if brought under control, would furnish an ever ready supply of water for a vast stretch of territory susceptible to highly profitable cultivation, instead of proving a menace at one season and a mockery at another. For centuries these streams have been periodically carrying gulward the rich silt washed down from their watersheds and depositing it at intervals in a manner to do the least good to the recipients thereof. Destruction usually marks their progress when, in the hurry to discharge their burdens, they leave their beds and encroach upon the adjacent lands. The water they ruthlessly distribute is changed from a blessing into a curse.

With the Colorado and the Brazos so harnessed as to enable them to evenly dispose of the abnormal supply of water that comes to them with measurable regularity the drainage of such portions of their valleys as need relief from moisture would become easy. And the question of maintaining a dependable supply of water for purposes of irrigation would be no longer troublesome, not to say impossible of settlement.

The interest in the proposed conservation of the flood waters of these streams is mutual; that is, it is not confined to the people of the midcoast country. Enough water is carried by the Brazos and the Colorado in the course of twelve months to supply every acre in the valleys drained by them with all the moisture needed for successful farming at all times. Equipped with a system of reservoirs located at convenient intervals from source to mouth, they could furnish water with regularity, relieve the dwellers along their banks of the uncertainty that now haunts them in that respect, and become the bearers of prosperity to the owners of vast tracts the present value of which is small because of the alternating fear of drought and overflow under which the inhabitants thereof must live. The wastage represented in the continual carrying out to sea of the silt washed down by the rains would be stopped and the great bulk of elemental fertilizer that is lost in this way would be returned to the soil that is now being robbed thereof.

Indeed, the conservation of the flood waters is an important economic question.

NO DECISION REACHED AT CONFERENCE AT CHARLESTON.

Mine Operators Take Stand Which Causes Confusion and Finally a Postponement.

Charleston, W. Va., Sept. 21.—The conference of West Virginia business men, coal operators and miners called for today by Governor Glasscock to discuss conditions in the Kanawha coal fields, now under martial law because of the strike of miners, adjourned late today without anything being accomplished.

The meeting was called to devise means of ending the strike and plan legislation aiming at better control of the region. John P. White, international president of the United Mine Workers of America, objected early in the day because actual strike conditions were not to be discussed. He issued a statement in which he said the conference had been called "solely for discussion of the industrial dispute act to be submitted to the next legislature."

The meeting was twice postponed today to allow further time for formulation of a plan of procedure and when finally it was called to order by Governor Glasscock, he announced the minimum wage, high cost of living and settlement of future labor troubles by arbitration, would be discussed.

Soon after the question as to who should sit in the conference had been brought up a statement was presented by coal operators of the state that their "presence in this conference is not to be taken as recognition of the United Mine Workers of America," finally created such confusion that a motion to adjourn prevailed.

The Feeding of the Five Thousand

Today's International Sunday School Lesson

BY W. L. ROBERTSON.

(Mark vi:30-44; Matt. xiv:13-21; Luke ix:10-17; John vi:1-4.)

He that likes to read an intensely dramatic narrative will greatly enjoy taking his Bible (especially so if it is an American Standard version) and reading and comparing the story as given in each of the four Gospels.

The time is spring of A. D. 29, just after the beheading of John the Baptist and on the return of the twelve from their journey in groups of two through the villages and cities of Palestine.

As those who work for the Master should do, the disciples communed frequently with the Christ about their teachings and experiences. Two weeks ago we studied the instructions given to the ambassadors who heralded the coming of the kingdom. In Mark and Luke we see them reporting. As their labors have been performed Jesus would give them rest. It is not for Himself but for the comfort of His faithful followers that the Son of Man is so solicitous.

After the death of John it was expedient that the Christians withdraw from the tetrarchy of Herod. In the outskirts of the city of Bethesda, Judaea, of the tetrarchy of Philip, east of the Jordan, across the sea called Galilee, Tiberias and Gennesaret, was a desert place. Thither Jesus and the twelve went in a boat. Many people coming and going at this passover season gave the earnest laborers no leisure, not even time to eat, while they were back on the Capernaum side.

Attracted by His teachings and miracles, the multitudes, seeing and hearing of the boat trip, ran around the north shore about, and some even out on the boat and came first to the place whither Jesus was going. But, taking His disciples, He went apart into the mountain and sat with them. When they had sufficiently rested and were come forth from the mountain side He saw the great multitude and having compassion on them as being like lost sheep without a shepherd, He welcomed them, healed the sick and spoke to the inquirers about the kingdom of God. Jesus was, and is always, a man of the masses, ever in sympathy with all their needs.

When the day was far spent and the shadows of evening were approaching, the disciples, taking note of the distance of the desert place from the villages where the people could purchase food, catching some of the sympathetic impulse of the Master, came to Him, asking permission to send the multitude away. Their intentions were kindly, but His hospitality would not allow sending His guests away unfed. He never fails to provide for those who come to Him. He said: "They have no need to go away; give ye them to eat."

Philip thought of the great number of hungry folks and began to figure. Two hundred pennyworth, about $35, maybe all they had in their treasury, would not buy, so he reasoned, "sufficient for them, that every one may take a little."

He that would stop to juggle money figures in God's work does not realize the power of the Almighty. They needed a lesson, so He sent them to search out and see how much food they had on hand. Andrew made the seemingly discouraging report: "There is a lad here which hath five barley loaves and two fishes, but what are these among so many?" Some of them would have sought elsewhere for food.

A wise commander accepts naught but exact, unquestioning obedience. He didn't argue with the disciples when they couldn't understand. His command was explicit, as are all his commands. "Make them recline in companies, about fifty each." I am impressed with the thought that the evangelical church organizations of the twentieth century average from 50 to 100 members each. This multitude sat in ranks, by fifties and hundreds. Even the most wicked can express thanks at meal time before eating, and the blessings of God are necessary upon the food of all. Jesus, the son of God, looked toward heaven, away from the earth, as He blessed the loaves before breaking them. This blessing was worth more than quantity. It made the bread, the five loaves (much more like five thick barley buttercakes) to be sufficient and more than enough, with the two small fish, for all the multitude of five thousand men, besides the women and children.

To show the power of Providence and to teach a lesson of saving the fragments were gathered up by the twelve, who had distributed the food. There was about a peck of scraps for each disciple, twelve basketsful. It is even so in spiritual matters. When we pour out our lives for others there is more grace left for us.

Golden Text—Jesus said unto them: "I am the bread of life; he that cometh unto me shall not hunger."—John vi:35.

"Guide me, O Thou great Jehovah, Pilgrim through this barren land;
I am weak, but Thou art mighty,
Hold me with Thy powerful hand;
Bread of Heaven,
Bread of Heaven,
Feed me till I want no more."

BARACA-PHILATHEA UNION

SEPTEMBER MEETING IS TO BE HELD MONDAY NIGHT.

Officers Are to Be Selected and the Convention Question Is to Be Decided.

The regular September meeting of the Baraca-Philathea City Union, which was to have been held last Tuesday night at the Clay Street Baptist church, was postponed on account of the wind and rain and will be held Monday night, the 23rd, at the same church at 8 o'clock.

James Jenkins, the president, is anxious to have a large representation present at this meeting as matters of importance are to be discussed and each and every Baraca and Philathea should be interested and take an active part. The officers for the ensuing year are to be elected. The committee appointed at the last monthly meeting to work out plans for calling a convention in Waco during the Cotton Palace to decide whether or not there shall be a state Baraca-Philathea Union, is ready with its report. Much interest has been taken in this proposition by the local classes and they may have the satisfaction in knowing that they are the liveliest organization of the kind in the state.

The following program has been arranged for the occasion:

Song—Help Somebody Today.
Cornet Solo—Mr. Ashley Harlan.
Short talk—"What it means to be a Baraca while traveling." C. J. Dugan, Baraca state secretary.
Instrumental solo—Miss Ieta Williams.
Three-minute intermission.

NEW MODELS READY TO RUN

PURCHASERS WILL BUY THEIR CARS WITH ALL EQUIPMENT.

CHANGES ARE LUXURIES

Self-Starter is Important. Agents Lose the Profits of Selling the Extras.

That the purchaser of any one of the better known 1913 models will secure a car fully equipped at the manufacturer's expense is now practically certain. Aside from this notable advance there will be little change over this season's automobile.

Such perfection has been reached in general construction that the manufacturers are apparently at a standstill. Little is left to be brought out by competitive effort, except the refinement of minor details and the addition of luxuries. But as regards the latter, there is a very evident tendency on all sides to take the automobile more seriously and to incorporate in its regular equipment not so much the inconsequential luxuries, but rather those devices that are essential to safety and substantial comfort.

The self starter is one of the more important of the additions. To sit at the wheel and by simple pressure put the car in motion is an advantage that is attractive. The exertion of cranking is eliminated and this is one of the most pleasing features.

Up to 1912 it was left to the purchaser to add the essential equipment at his own expense; he either did so at once, on advice of the agent, or later when experience showed the necessity of such devices. The bulb horn, for instance, was supplied by the maker of the car, not as a competitive triumph of his own, nor as an essential, dependable signal, but simply because it was some kind of a horn. The idea was that in this point of equipment the car manufacturer had no responsibility; it was altogether up to the agent or purchaser to make good the deficiency. Now the manufacturer "makes good."

Public opinion also has probably had a good deal to do with the change. The controversy over the warning signal this past year has demonstrated to the public what the expected motorist already knew—that the bulb horn is a thoroughly inadequate signal and as such is a menace to public safety. The trend of local ordinances, as is witnessed by the action of Chicago, St. Louis, Newark and other cities, is to emphasize the need of a signal with "an abrupt sound sufficiently loud to be heard under all circumstances." Strictly construed this rule, out the old bulb horn in favor of the modern powerful signal of the electric type. It is likely that this model ordinance will become a general state law.

Manufacturers have evidently been alive to the situation this year, for in 1912 some thirty leading makes put the modern efficient signal in their standard equipment.

Extra Cost Unpopular. The demands of the motorist, too, particularly the motorist of the seasoned type, have been a factor in this tendency toward full equipment. In buying his third or fourth or fifth car he wants it to use and not to fuss with; wants it "ready to run." Moreover, the idea of "getting stung for extras" has been getting less and less popular with him.

The new development seems agreeable all around, except to the agent, who will lose the profits he formerly made in selling these so-called "extras." But the readjustment is so important to the greater future of the automobile and so greatly to the interests of the motorist, manufacturer and to public safety that the agent is hardly a factor in the situation.

WHEN A LEAK IS FOUND.

Best Way To Locate Is To Disconnect Conductors.

When it is suspected that a leak exists in the ignition wiring, the most satisfactory way to locate it is to disconnect the conductors, one at a time, connection made with an amperage length of free wire, laid outside the motor parts. Especially where the wiring is old, it is frequently the case that the cause of leakage is a break in the insulation of almost invisible size and possibly remote location. The method of "bridging the conductors" enables a faulty wire to be located without dismantling the connections, however, and therefore it is to be recommended.

PRESIDENT IN OVERALLS.

R. C. Hupp Goes Into His Factory To Hurry Work.

The president of one of the largest motor car companies leaving his desk, taking off his coat and going into the factory to personally superintend the construction of his company's 1913 cars, is a striking instance in the R-C-H corporation's record-breaking production of new models. When the first R-C-H cars of the new type, with their complete equipment of electric lights, non-skid tires, Warner auto meter, jiffy curtains, top slip cover, windshield, robe rail, rear vision mirror and demountable rims, with one extra rim, were ready, dealers immediately proceeded to swamp the corporation with orders.

When it became evident that the flood promised to increase as the buying public became better acquainted with the car, extreme measures were in order. But R-C-H dealers wanted the new cars, and they wanted them immediately, so President R. C. Hupp got into action himself, donned his overalls again, and went back to work in the factory, superintending the work of building these cars.

At the time the first 1913 cars were finished, shipment within three days, or nearly 200 cars, had been promised by the sales department. Mr. Hupp went out to make good these promises. He worked regular factory hours, getting right in with the men. He delivered these cars and a few more. Within ten days after the first 1913 cars were shipped, an average of 60 cars a day was attained.

This remarkable shift stands out strikingly among automobile manufacturing achievements. Usually at the time of changing it is a case of drop back to a few cars per day until the factory organization becomes accustomed to the new condition of affairs. It is often months before new models can be gotten through smoothly, and cars supplied to dealers with any regularity. Such a period of inaction was impossible with R-C-H dealers from all parts of the country clamoring for new cars, and, in keeping with its policy of making good, the R-C-H corporation altered methods to meet conditions.

START EARLY ON THE TOUR.

Do The Loafing On The End Of The Journey.

To the motorist mapping out a tour: Do not be too ambitious in your mileage. A great mistake is frequently made by endeavoring to crowd a long mileage into each day, with the result that the tour develops into an endurance contest instead of a pleasant, health-giving expedition. Do not overweight the car with passengers and luggage, as this is not only harmful to the springs and tires, but puts an unfair strain on the engine. Do not forget to "nurse" the car as much as possible, and further, when putting up at a strange hotel, give strict orders that the car is not to be meddled with by any of the garage men. As regards the daily journey, it will be found a good rule to start betimes, so as to arrive at the stopping place early in the day, anywhere from 3 o'clock in the afternoon on being a good hour in the country where a short stay would be a delight and not a delay. Very often a game of golf before twilight on a summer evening or a stroll about a spot of historic or scenic interest forms a delightful variation in the program of the tour.

A TIP ON STARTING CARS.

Racing of Engine and Noise Can Be Avoided.

With a great many carburetors when adjusted for most efficient work on the road, it is impossible to start the engine by cranking without opening the throttle very considerably. When this is done and the engine does start, it roars and races until the driver can rush back to the throttle control and reduce the opening. This racing and noise is very disconcerting to all who hear it, the driver included. A simple way to obviate it is to turn the engine over briskly a few times with the throttle open sufficiently wide to ordinarily start the engine, but with the ignition "off." After doing this, the engine will always start on the spark if the ignition system permits it. In any case, the throttle can then be closed sufficiently for quiet idle running, the ignition thrown into operation, and the engine then pulled over briskly. This will result in a quiet start and is always effective since the wide throttle opening is required only to give an initial starting mixture.

Life of Steering Gear.

It is astonishing how far the life of the steering gear depends on the skill of the driver. A heedless or nervous operator usually yanks the steering wheel unnecessarily, bringing severe strains on the connections and causing needless wear on the front tires. It pays to learn to drive skilfully, even though not pursued as a means of livelihood.

WILL SUPPLY EQUAL DEMAND?

COUNTRY ABOUT TO WITNESS GREATEST YEAR FOR AUTOMOBILES.

SO SAYS W. S. WHEATON

Good Roads are Increasing the Requests for Cars, But Factory Output is Spoken For.

California and New York have consumed one-fifth, or 20 per cent, of the total number of automobiles manufactured during the past 15 years. Figures record that about 850,000 automobiles have been placed on the market in the United States during this period of time. These statements are vouched for by W. S. Wheaton, automobile representative of the Salt Lake railroad, who has made a careful study of the automobile market since the first car was manufactured.

He believes that, despite the present flurry, the country is about to witness the great year in the history of the industry. His interview on the subject is as follows: "Of the many interesting facts regarding the automobile business, the matter of demand and supply is ever foremost. That the present year is going to be the greatest in the history of the industry is a foregone conclusion, not only in California and the other United States, but throughout the entire world, all of which occasions the frequent query: 'When will the supply equal the demand?' This, of course, is a privileged point of view and can only be assumed but a comparison of figures will prove interesting in addition to conveying some idea regarding one of the greatest industries of the age.

Recalls The Rumblings.

Looking back about fifteen years one can recall the first rumblings and distinctly remember that peculiarity of sound and smell which so quickly has developed into the automobile of today. The manufacture and demand for these has reached such proportions of greatness as to stagger belief even when the facts asserted are fully supported by figures. "The real advance has come within the past three years. A careful review of the achievements of the past fifteen years with the present indications as to the future, warrants the statement that it will require from five to seven years to manufacture enough automobiles to satisfy the urgent or waiting demand. Figures record about 850,000 automobiles have been built to date in this country, which has a population of 90,000,000. Of this population it is fair to assume that 3,500,000 persons are able to own an automobile. With a manufacturing capacity of about 500,000 machines, anticipating proposed increases to date, six years will be required to build enough cars to fill what are termed 'first orders.'

"With the knowledge that California with her good roads and but 250,000 population out of 90,000,000 has used 10 per cent of the 850,000 cars manufactured, because of her good roads, it begins to dawn upon one what a tremendous task the manufacturers of cars have on their hands to make machines fast enough to supply the demand of the several millions of possible buyers in the country.

"When once the good roads now so universally being rushed into shape make it practicable to employ an automobile in accordance to the machine's possibilities and the saving of money to every user, it is entirely within the limits of reason to assume that not less than 3,500,000 cars will be required to supply the first order demands alone.

Output Spoken For. "It is a well known fact that most of the entire output of about sixty factories in this country for the 1912-13 season is practically spoken for at the outset of the season and but little doubt remains regarding the necessities as to time required to turn out the cars needed to fill the orders.

"As usual we have the pessimist to contend with, but of all kinds of business the automobile offers the least excuse for short-sightedness or doubt as to the immediate future for the next ten years. With immense crops of every kind throughout the United States, we have firmly established a business stability and standard that even politics and a presidential year cannot retard."

CITY BUYS RAMBLER CAR

FIRST 1913 MODEL TO REACH HERE IS SOLD.

Manager Rooney Has Delivered It to the Engineer's Department—Is Electric Equipped.

The city of Waco yesterday purchased a 1913 Rambler car for the engineering department, and it was delivered at once and is now in service.

For several weeks the city has been considering the purchase of a car to be used by Commissioner P. A. Gorman and City Engineer Byars in their work which takes them to all parts of the city. There is so much travel connected with inspections of sewers, roads, paving, and other features of permanent improvements that several horses a year are required and they do not last long. The commissioners decided to wait until Commissioner Gorman reached home so as to let him select the character of car that would best suit him and Engineer Byars. Just about the time he got here, John E. Homan of Fort Worth, in charge of a large district of Texas for the Rambler car, arrived in Waco with the first 1913 model. Mr. Homan closed a trade with the Herrick Hardware Company to handle the Rambler in McLennan and several adjoining counties, and delivered them the 1913 model in which he had made the trip from Ft. Worth. It is a 40-horse-power, gasoline electric touring car. Manager J. Rooney of the automobile department of the Herrick company immediately offered it to the city and spent several days demonstrating it, with the result that Commissioner Gorman and Engineer Byars were both so well pleased that they decided to select the car for the department. The price paid was $1675.75. The car was delivered yesterday.

NEWSBOY OWNS AN AUTO.

Has 1500 Customers To Whom He Delivers Papers.

Walter Gee is probably the only "newsboy" in the United States who delivers his papers in an automobile. Recently Gee, who has 1500 customers in and near the city of West Haven, Conn., discarded the horse outfit he had been using for years and purchased a Ford model T touring car. Heretofore each afternoon Gee sent out his horse-drawn rig, each accompanied by six boys, who left the papers on the customers' doorsteps. He used to leave the newspaper office about 3:15 o'clock each afternoon and was seldom through before 8 o'clock. Now with eight boys on the running board of the single machine, he leaves the office at the usual time. But he seldom is later than 5:50 in finishing his route.

ADJUSTING CARBURETORS.

Must Be Made When The Machine Is On The Road.

When a carburetor does not afford satisfactory running mixtures for all conditions of speed and load it should be adjusted for the operating conditions which are most frequently encountered, and its shortcomings uncountered, and the other conditions endured with the best possible grace. To do this, it is necessary to make the adjustment when the machine is on the road and the motor pulling its load under the vibratory effects which road running always imposes. The adjustment, obviously, must be made by some person other than the driver, and, if possible, should be performed by one who is familiar with both the carburetor and the engine to which it is attached.

Magneto No Playing.

"Don't tamper with your magneto," says Emil Grossman, one of the largest manufacturers of spark plugs in the United States. "It leaves the hands of the manufacturers in perfect condition and adjustment and barring accidents should not need any attention beyond a few drops of oil once a month for a least 10,000 miles. That magneto go back to the manufacturer for adjustment is due to the fact that some one has been fooling with them. As all parts of the magneto are covered and dust proof, there is no need to disturb the covers."

Use Lead Washers Only.

In establishing carburetor connections, lead washers only should be used, as leather or fiber is apt to be attacked by the gasoline, leading unions and clamped joints being the result. Most modern connections are made with ground joints, which require no washers at all; if they become deranged it is a simple matter to render them tight by grinding them in with a little crocus powder or emery flour and oil.

Gentlemen—Answering the inquiry made by your Mr. Canavan regarding our experience with and opinion of the Cartercar:
We will state that our delivery equipment consists of thirty-six autos, composed of thirteen different makes of cars. Among the thirteen we number the Cartercar, having two that have been in service for the past two years. We keep a very careful upkeep account on all our cars, and for your information will state that the Cartercar is the most reliable and most economical of all our cars. We believe that this is due to the simplicity of construction and absence of transmission gears. In our opinion, your friction drive car is peculiarly adapted to road conditions in and around Los Angeles, and for a light delivery car for loads that do not exceed 1000 pounds you have the best car on the market.
Should you desire to use this letter, or any additional information we have regarding your car, you are at perfect liberty to do so. Yours truly,

The question is. When buying a car, do you want complicated clutches, universal joints, gears and constant repair bills, or simplicity and efficiency?

POSTPONE AUTO RACES

TRACK AT MILWAUKEE NOT IN CONDITION.

Vanderbilt Cup Event Is to Be Run October 2—Expenses Are Over $40,000.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 21.—Because recent heavy rains had made the course unsafe, the international automobile races, scheduled to begin here today, after two postponements, finally were put off another two weeks. As now arranged, the Vanderbilt cup will be run October 2, the Pabst and Wisconsin trophy events the next day and the grand prize October 5.

Expenses of the drivers during the two weeks will be paid by the Milwaukee Automobile Dealers' association. Preparations for the races to date have cost between $40,000 and $50,000. The proposition to postpone the races for at least two weeks, that the roads might be put into shape came from the drivers who have contended for several days fast time could not be made on the course now and that the road was dangerous.

Whatever may be said of the other big contests held in this country, the fact remains that the Vanderbilt cup race was the first contest which through the various seasons has done more for the automobile industry than any other speed event. It has meant much to the automobile industry and to the development of motor cars to their present efficient state.

Sixth and Seventh Vanderbilts.

In a race that broke four records Harry F. Grant, in an Alco, won the sixth running of the Vanderbilt on October 1, 1910, over a course 278.08 miles in length. It was the fastest, closest, largest in point of entries and by far the hardest that has been run for the cup. A Marmon driven by Joe Dawson, was second and Johnny Attkin, driving a National, was third. There were thirty-one starters. Ten finished the contest of twenty-two laps over a 12.64 mile circuit and five were running when the race was called off. Grant's time was 255.58 minutes and that of Dawson was 255.25 minutes.

Last year the race was carried away from Long Island for the first time. Savannah, Ga., landing the plum. It was the fastest Vanderbilt ever run and indeed one of the fastest automobile races in history. Ralph K. Mulford, in a Lozier, was evolved the winner, his average for the 291.38 being 74.97 miles per hour. Ralph De Palma, in the same Mercedes car in which he is to drive at Milwaukee and Fourth Dynamite Arrest.

Boston, Sept. 21.—The fourth arrest to result from the Suffolk county grand jury investigation of the dynamite planting in Lawrence during the textile strike last January was made today when William H. Rice, an East Milton quarry owner, was taken into custody. He was arrested on an indictment charging illegal transportation of dynamite and furnished $2,000 bail.

NO CHANCE FOR BRUTAL FIGHT

NAUGHTON SAYS McFARLAND AND WOLGAST KNOW ONLY THE CLEAN GAME.

GOV. DIX IS CRITICISED

Suggestion is Made That the Frawley Law Be Given a Thorough Investigation.

(By W. W. Naughton.)

San Francisco, Sept. 21.—Some one has warned the governor of New York that if Ad Wolgast and Packey McFarland are allowed to meet, they may overstep the bounds of Frawley law propriety and engage in a prize fight.

The governor presumably never sits at the ringside and takes little heed in what is passing in gloveedom unless some one nudges him in the manner described.

In the present instance the governor has written the boxing commissioners that his attention has been drawn to the facts.

At this distance it would seem as though the party who has aroused the governor's fears is an alarmist and it would be interesting to know what impelled him to single out the Wolgast-McFarland bout for the complaint.

Comparisons are always odious, of course, when New York could view the slaughter of Carl Morris by Jim Flynn complacently and could maintain an equally calm demeanor while those human truck horses, Al Palzer and Bombarier Wells, were falling all over each other, it looks as though there is nothing about the McFarland-Wolgast prospect that bodes danger to the public morals.

Ad and Packey are a couple of clean-limbed lightweights—the most talented of their left the world around. When they meet it will be given to comparatively few to see them in action, but there are millions who want to read about them.

It is believed that they represent the last word in lightweight rivalry; that their clash will be replete with all that is up-to-date in the science of fistcuffs.

To gloss over the clumsy brutality of the hulking heavyweights with which the New York game abounds, and to pick upon Wolgast and McFarland as objects for squelches does not seem right. It looks like swallowing a whole drove of camels without a twitch or tremor of the throat muscles and straining at a pair of diminutive gnats.

It is whispered out here in the east region that a game of reprisal is in progress in New York and that if Johnson and Jeannette had been permitted to box in the big city, no one's attention would have been drawn to the dangers that lurk in the Wolgast-McFarland go.

If this is so, it is time to begin making a book as to how far the Frawley measure has to run. It means that the influence which led to the killing of the Horton law are again at work and that the time is coming when the Golden Goose will lay for none.

Four Fighters Who Claim Championships

Left to right, at the top—Young Brown of Chicago, who says the lightweight championship lies between himself, Wolgast, Frankie Burns and Joe Mandot; Jim Flynn, who claims to be Johnson's successor; Eddie McGorty, who claims the middleweight title and wants to fight Mike Gibbons in order to end all doubt.

At the bottom is Joe Mandot, whose recent decisive victory over Joe Rivers gives him a place in the forefront of the lightweight division. The lightweight champion of the South is widely touted as Wolgast's master.

I see where Leach Cross was disciplined for using the kidney punch in defiance of the rules laid down by the New York boxing commission. It seems odd that Leach should offend in that way.

It is not so long ago that he became the beneficiary because One Round Hogan did something similar to him. It may have been the liver bump of the spleen smash that Hogan resorted to, but in any case was an illegal assault at a close range, and the referee promptly disqualified Hogan.

The kidney punch, you see, offers as easy escape from a tight place. If one man is getting mauled to a greater extent than he expected, he is liable to murmur to himself, "If this goes on I'll be knocked out. Guess I'll kidney punch him and be ruled off."

It has been said that Fireman Jim Flynn expressed a wish to be matched with Al Palzer, the latter said: "Let Flynn go and get a reputation."

If Palzer really used the words, he is entitled to be known as an unconscious humorist. Flynn stands in the forefront of white fighters today and the chances are Palzer will never last through half of what Flynn has been through and continue in the business.

As a sample of Irish repartee, it is often recalled that when one old sport asked sneeringly, "What has he met?" the other party to the argument replied, "Who hasn't he met?"

Who hasn't he met? And of white heavies, who hasn't he beaten?

Flynn is a ringman of ripe experience and he has developed into a workman of no mean talent. Los Angeles and San Francisco fight followers who used to see him in action a few years ago are continually talking of the improvement he has shown.

It is characteristic of Flynn's willingness and the wide range of his activities that he boxed a world's champion last July Fourth and a few weeks later hooked up with Big Charlie Miller, the newest of white hopes.

Palzer no doubt is a heavyweight of promise and if it is that those behind him scent danger in a meeting with Flynn, it is all right as the fighting world wants to keep Fireman Jim at arm's length for a while.

But to tell Flynn to go and get a reputation sounds like a joke.

STRENGTH TEST IS BETTER

SO THINKS CORNELL'S COACH UNDER NEW RULES.

Big Teams Will Score More and Will Have a Better Opportunity to Show Superiority.

That the changes in the football rules will not only make the game more interesting but give to the big teams a fairer chance to show their superiority is the opinion of Dr. Albert H. Sharpe, the new football coach at Cornell. Sharpe has been a football official for a number of years and has had opportunity to study the developments of the game under the various changes in rules.

He regards it as unlikely that the small teams this year will give the bigger teams so much trouble, to the extent of tying or beating them at any rate. He thinks that the game under last year's rules was not fair in that it gave the smaller teams, teams relatively much weaker, an opportunity of preventing bigger teams from scoring on them. The changes this year he thinks will put the smaller college teams back in the class in which they belong and will help the bigger teams score more than they did last year.

In fact, Sharpe looks for much scoring on both sides in the big games this year, believing that the rule changes increasing the number of downs from three to four and making possible forward passes over the goal line will have that effect. This year, he thinks, the secondary defense will not dare come close to the line of scrimmage and therefore the attacking backs within the twenty-yard zone will not have two lines to pierce and moreover they will have one more down in which to make the distance. For that reason Sharpe expects to see no little scoring in the big games and plenty of excitement all the way through. He is convinced, however, the new rules will afford a much better test of the real strength of the teams than was possible last year.

Taking away the secondary defense means to the Cornell coaches the necessity of taking more than usual care in building up a strong line. Dan Reed, who is charged with the work of developing the forwards this fall, realizes that he must find the strongest possible tackles, as it seems to be conceded that attacking teams will go hard at the tackles, particularly when within close touch of the goal line.

Names of Robbers Known.

Chicago, Sept. 21.—The names of the alleged Canadian bank robbers, who escaped from the Chicago police, were given out today. They are J. S. Morgan, alias John Harris, alias Frank Clark and alias "Chicago Slim," and Frank West. C. J. Porter, said to be another member of the band, is believed to have gone to England. It developed today that Morgan was arrested in Chicago a month after the Canadian bank robbery and after being held several days was liberated. At the time the police had no intimation he might have been implicated in the bank robbery.

Marshall To Go East.

Chicago, Sept. 21.—Democratic national headquarters today arranged a tentative itinerary for Gov. Thomas R. Marshall, the nominee for vice president, which will take him through the East, probably in New England from September 29 to October 4, when he will close in Boston.

WORLD'S SERIES CAUSES TROUBLE

MURPHY OF THE CHICAGO CUBS, MAKES CHARGE OF WHOLESALE COLLUSION.

HONOR OF LYNCH ASSAILED

Windy City Magnate Claims His Team is Discriminated Against in Favor of Giants.

(By W. J. Macbeth.)

New York, Sept. 21.—There is room for doubt as to whether the world's championship series is a good thing for the game.

Baseball is public confidence; no more, no less. It is what the public has made it. Intricate organization to the contrary notwithstanding, its life is hanging by the thread of public approval. It has taken years and years of encouragement, whole-souled purpose and struggle to place the nation's summer pastime upon its present exalted pedestal. And yet one wave of doubt would sweep away the apparent firm foundation life chaff before a gale.

Baseball is an institution. It is a genuine, blue-blooded, clean and invigorating sport. Firmly established, it will endure as long as the American race. It will endure—but maybe not in the professional sense. That remains with the powers which control the profession. Here we are several weeks away from the classic close of the season and already there has arisen a stench of scandal.

Murphy a Hard Loser.

Charles Webb Murphy, president of the Chicago Cubs, appears to be a hard loser. He has questioned the integrity of the game from which he ran a shoe-string into millions of dollars. He charges wholesale collusion among the clubs of the National league; a conspiracy to discriminate against Chicago in favor of the champion Giants. Few among his associates have escaped the vituperous tongue of the cheery little Windy City magnate. He has even assailed the honor of Thomas J. Lynch, the man that he himself advanced in compromise as president of the National league.

Had Murphy's ravings stopped with or concerning himself, little damage would have been done. People have become used to Murphy. What he says goes in one ear and out the other. But, like the whinnies of a whipped cur, his yelps got onto the nerves of his associates. Bickerings back and forth aroused the latent petty jealousies and hatreds of former days. The whole National league was taken by the ears until now no one knows kin or foe. But Murphy escapes it all. Tom Lynch is the "goat."

Would Defeat Lynch.

The National league is after Lynch's scalp, according to the best informed authorities. Each of the several club owners has picked his candidate for the berth. The present executive's strength lies in the disension that divides his house. It will take a majority vote to unseat him and by the present signs and tokens the old major body will never be able to get to-

Doyle Out of Game

"Larruping Larry" Doyle, captain and second baseman of the New York Giants, is out of the game at the present time, as the result of a badly wrenched knee. Doyle was hurt while sliding into second base, but the doctor told him he will be back on the field in good shape in plenty of time to participate in the world's series with the Boston Red Sox.

together to frame a majority vote for twenty years. In such case Lynch would do well to stick around just for spite. He is tired of the job and he doesn't need the pin money the National league pays its president. If Lynch steps down and out it will be the National league's loss.

Be that as it may, the house cleaning should start nearer the ground floor. Charles Webb Murphy, has proved himself no fit person to be connected with the promotion of baseball if half the stories told of him are true, or if half the interviews attributed to him bear one iota of truth. He has always been a trouble-maker. His fault is an uncontrollable desire to pose in the lime light. C. W. Murphy has one cry for the newspaper man: "Say what you wish about me or the Cubs, but do not leave us out of the paper." He is a miser for publicity. And without a doubt he made all the insinuations against baseball honestly with the sole object of creating interest in his club and attracting box office returns.

Murphy a Trimmer.

Murphy is known as a trimmer. Never yet has he made good on a proposition, save in allowing Frank Chance to win him fortune and pennants with one of the most wonderful teams the game has known. Half a dozen times the little potentate has been forced to eat his words. Ben Johnson, president of the American league, has made him crawl time and time again, and Ben pays about as much attention to this windy individual as he does to a blatant ass. Roger Bresnahan last winter forced a public apology from Murphy before the National league for the tender epithet of "lar" hurled during one of the many brainstorms.

Murphy is directly responsible for an insinuation of taint against New York's brilliant pennant dash. He has forfeited every right to mingle among the promoters. But there he sticks and there he will stick, a barnacle on the fair name of the pastime until the powers decide to assert themselves for the right. It was Murphy who first precipitated scandal in a world's series by shady box office manipulation in the 1908 series with the Detroit Tigers. Since he has always had his finger in the pie. He has pulled stuff which in a manager or player would call for the "black list." And in failing to properly discipline him, the powers of baseball reflect upon the integrity of the game.

Fogel Makes Mistake.

It wouldn't be hard to find something to hang on Murphy even if the little autocrat were not so free with his accusations against every one who stands for law and order. Kindred interests control the Chicago and Philadelphia clubs of the National league. That fact was spilled last year by Horace Fogel. He made the mistake of putting a letter meant for Charlie Murphy in an envelope addressed to August Herrmann. That slight mistake whipped into line for Tom Lynch the votes of Chicago and Philadelphia and made a joke of Charlie Ebbets and a revolutionary movement engineered by the Cub boss. Ebbets has had no truck nor trade with Murphy since.

Murphy talks too much. He cannot be throttled. He'll have to get let out somehow. He has come very near making a joke of the world's series. This should be one of the most respected institutions of the national pastime, far above the sordid idea of the mercenary gain to league or participant. It remains for the organization to preserve this dignity. Organized baseball, what are you going to do about Murphy?

Yale Begins Practice.

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 21.—Head Coach Howe put the Yale football candidates through the first work today, the Yale varsity beating the scrubs after nearly an hour of stiff playing. With the exception of Boemelear, last year's star end, all the leading candidates were given an opportunity of playing. The quarterback position left vacant by Howe's graduation which has been a source of much speculation, was today filled by Cornish and Cornell. The back field is very fast and there are several strings of men of more than average ability. An entirely new style of attack is being developed, resembling somewhat the slashing drives off tackle of last year.

Yantz Drafted by White Sox.

Chicago, Sept. 21.—A revised list of players drafted by the Chicago American League Club contains the name of Yantz of Birmingham, catcher.

Judge A. B. Long Dead.

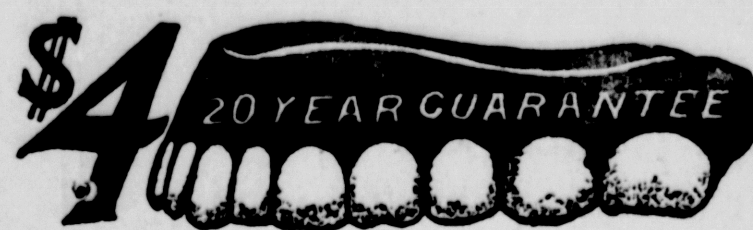

Paris, Tex., Sept. 21.—Judge A. B. Long, an old resident here, died last night of heart trouble.

SICKLES KNEW WIFE SAVED HIM

SON INSISTS VETERAN TRIED FOR WEEK TO GET HER TO PAY DEBT.

SHE FOR RECONCILIATION

But Her Husband Must Propose It and Miss Wilmerding Must Release Him.

New York, Sept. 21.—Stanton Sickles, son of General Daniel E. Sickles, whose sword and war collection were in danger of being sold had not his wife raised $8200 by pawning her jewels, said that the general had made an effort for a week before the jewels were pawned to induce his wife to give him the money.

Mr. Sickles said that in that week the general did not once speak to Mrs. Sickles nor did he speak to the son, but that on various occasions in the week the husband and wife were in the office of the general's lawyer, separated only by a thin partition.

Stanton Sickles also said he believed that it was not Miss Eleanor E. Wilmerding, the general's housekeeper, who is related to the late Jack C. Wilmerding and is a great grandniece of Commodore Vanderbilt, who deceived the general but that the general deceived her about the state of his financial affairs.

General is 92 Years Old. "The general is 92 years old now, although he says he is only 86, and a man of that age is a man of habit," Stanton Sickles said. "He wants a chair placed here and his newspaper there, and Miss Wilmerding, who is a woman of 65 years, has done this. He depends upon her."

"When the general's father died he left $6,000,000. Of this the general received one-eighth, I received one-eighth and my sister, now Mrs. Eda Crankenthorpe of England, received one-eighth. When my sister and I became 21 we made the general trustee."

"My sister is suing for an accounting of her share of her grandfather's estate. This suit will come up for trial in November, and after that I hope to be able to attain my wish for an accounting."

"For twenty-five years my father has known Miss Wilmerding and for fifteen years she has been his housekeeper. She has been buying real estate at Bay Shore, L. I. Two small cottages were left to her down there. She and her two sisters, who live with her in a small room in a boarding house at 77 West Twelfth street, depend on the income from these places.

"The general has known for a long time that he was facing a precipice financially, but how deep that precipice was she didn't realize. My mother and I have lived here for four years only to see if we couldn't save the family name. I have naturally an interest, because in protecting the name I am protecting my father. For a week before the threatened auction my mother spent most of every day in the office of the general's lawyer, Daniel P. Hays, who had sent for her."

"Day after day my mother and I were in one room while the general was in another room."

"The day John Reilly, my lawyer, went to the house the general was aware of what the situation was. My mother would not consent to aid him until she was convinced that the general would know. General Sickles knew what Mr. Reilly was my attorney, and when Mr. Reilly went to the house my mother and I were waiting outside for him, simply to be assured that the general knew who had arranged matters for him."

Father and Son at Out. "I myself have no reason to wish a reconciliation with my father, in spite of all the filial affection I feel for him. I have not spoken to him for two years."

"While the negotiations were going on to induce my mother to come to the general's assistance I don't believe that Miss Wilmerding really knew of the strange situation. After it had been arranged that my mother was to lend him the money I believe that he told Miss Wilmerding that the army boys had lent him the money. The story of his impending auction sale had been printed for a week; not an army boy came to the front with a cent."

"The money itself means nothing to my mother. Next Monday she will receive a check from Spain for her quarterly income, which will be far more than what she pawned her jewelry for. She'll take her jewels out of pawn."

"All she wanted was recognition from the general that she had made a sacrifice to aid him. Hays, his lawyer, called him up while Reilly, my lawyer, was in the house, and my mother and I were waiting at the corner. Miss Wilmerding denied to Reilly that that was her name, and the two walked over the situation for an hour."

"Then Hays telephoned Miss Wilmerding to tell the general that everything had been fixed. Miss Wilmerding said that she knew the army boys had paid the debt. At that Reilly broke in, took the receiver away from Miss Wilmerding and shouted, 'Yes, Mrs. Sickles has paid the debt.'"

Struggle at the Telephone. "Miss Wilmerding and Reilly struggled at the telephone for a moment and then Reilly hung up the receiver. The general was in the room and Reilly turned to him and said: 'General, your wife paid the debt.'"

Stanton Sickles said last night that the following interview with Mrs. Sickles was authorized:

"There is little to say, but it is not true that the separation between myself and the general is impassable. At this moment, certain conditions being granted, I am ready to step once more into his home as Mrs. Sickles. But Miss Wilmerding must go first."

"The proposal must come first from my husband and it must be formally made. Eight years more and the general will have reached the century mark, and who but I should care for him?"

An old negro met interviewers at Gen. Sickles' door yesterday. "Gen. Sickles is indisposed," he said. "Miss Wilmerding cannot be disturbed. She is with the general."

LODGE DEFENDS THE PRESIDENT

REPUBLICAN CAMPAIGN OPENED IN OHIO WITHOUT MENTION OF THE BULL MOOSE.

UPHOLDS CONSTITUTION

Policy of the Recall of Judges Strongly Opposed and Warning Is Made.

Columbus, O., Sept. 21.—Senator Henry Cabot Lodge opened the Republican campaign in Ohio today with an unqualified defense of the administration and a plea for the re-election of President Taft. He spoke, he said, "as a Republican who believes most profoundly that now, as in the past, the success of the Republican party is for the best welfare of the people of the United States."

Today's speech was Senator Lodge's first formal utterance on national issues as newly defined at Chicago and Baltimore. He described the Democratic party as having abandoned the fundamental principles at once supported and said its platform looked on its face like a "perfectly vague and incoherent aggregation of sentences, a mass of language intended to get votes." He returned to power of that power that was pictured as the forerunner of commercial disaster providing its present attitude on the tariff was maintained.

Senator Lodge did not mention the progressive party or Colonel Roosevelt by name, but by implication, he opposed the policy of the recall of judges and devoted a third of his time to what he said was a proposition to tear down the constitution of the United States and convert it into a whim of the moment.

Reviews Act of Congress. Senator Lodge, after declaring his pleasure in addressing an Ohio gathering, told of his long intimate friendship with President McKinley. His speech was largely devoted to a review of the acts of the late congress. "The Democratic house," he said, "determined to enter upon a career of legislation and in order to secure their legislation they adopted to an extent never known in our history that most vicious practice of attaching legislation to appropriation bills, which hitherto the rules of both houses have been carefully framed to prevent. They started out with the proposition that they were going to make great economies, but when the final account was made up it was found that the 'economics' all crippled those branches of the government where there were no votes and the extravagances in which they freely indulged were poured out lavishly where it was thought that large sums from the treasury would result in securing support at the polls. The economics and extravagances alike were determined not by the interests of the government or the people, but in very case by the hope of votes."

The speaker asserted that the actions of the Democratic legislators had crippled the state department to effect a saving of $90,000; that they selected this year, when Mexico is in a ferment of revolution, to cut off five cavalry regiments from the army; that their economy had caused this country to drop from second to third place among the navies of the world with the Panama canal on the point of being opened and that their civil service legislation threatened the disorganization of the service.

The Democratic tariff measures, vetoed by President Taft, were criticized by Senator Lodge, who continued:

"But during the last few years another question, or rather a series of questions, have arisen, which far transcend all others, because they transcend the fundamental principles upon which our government and our institutions rest. These questions have been raised and violent constitutional changes have been agitated and advocated by men of all parties. This agitation has divided opinion in the two great parties, whether the division has been openly declared or not. These questions are far graver than any possible question of economics or administration. If the proposed constitutional changes should be carried into effect they would completely revolutionize our system and theory of government as we have known it since the beginning of our history."

Opposed To The Recall.

"It is now seriously proposed to make the courts dependent upon the will of a majority of the voters at any given moment—a majority which may be fleeting, temporary or accidental. The courts of the United States were made independent by giving to those who sit upon the bench a tenure during good behavior, and an independent judiciary has been, as a whole, the great bulwark of human liberty. If you make your courts subservient to the will of a majority of the voters at any given moment, they are no more independent than when they were subservient to the will of the king and the vital protection of our individual rights and liberties vanishes."

"All the progress that has been made in this country in fifty years has been made by the Republican party. The Republican party came into being for the purpose of ridding the land of human slavery. To the Republican party is due the financial credit of the country, for it is the Republican party which fought for the payment of the debts and which sustained the gold standard. In recent years, with the new questions that

WILD WEST—FAR EAST

INTERESTING EXHIBITION PRESENTED BY THE TWO BILLS.

Cady-Lillie Alliance Is One of Rare Nature and Is Entitled to Notice.

The coming visit of the Cady-Lillie Alliance entitles this natural exhibition to more than passing notice, as it gives rise to a consideration of the various accomplishments of man and horse that it has presented during its career.

One of these is the scope it now covers in the field of dancing. From the earliest times man's first expression of his emotions of joy, pleasure and worship was interpreted through the rhythmic graces of the dance. Terpsichore was one of the earliest mythical goddesses, and was supposed to preside over choral song and dancing in every form, from the Saturnalia celebrating victory, glorious achievement, and successful harvesting, to the religious rites of devotees or fanatics in worshipping their various gods.

In the program of the "Two Bills Alliance" a great variety of the terpsichorean art brightens the performance. The very primitive Dahomey dance, reminiscent of the ancestral traits of the African, shows from whence was derived the peculiar and fascinating physical exuberance of the colored race today in juba patting and the later developed cakewalk.

The Cingalese give the Oriental style, with its silver-sounding cymbals, while the Hindoos, with their flaming, flashing torches, give a symbolic movement of worshipping their Fire God.

The Soudanese exhibit peculiar methods in the Dance of Death, illustrating the universal power of the Scythe Bearer, and belongs to the class of allegorical representations that prevailed among the religious orders of Europe during the fourteenth century, and which has been treated so largely in paintings, sculpture and tapestry throughout Christendom.

The Arabs, in their athletic feats are have arisen, to what party do we owe the Sherman act, the Interstate Commerce commission, the law stopping rebates, the Pure Food law, and every other measure which has marked an advance in government and progress, in the protection of the rights of the people? They are all alike due to the Republican party—to Republican presidents and Republican congresses. The Republican party has always been the party of sane and rational progress under the constitution. It is so today. A party can profit by its victories and endure defeats if it is true to its principles; but when principles are abandoned, victories are worthless and defeats are ruin. Parties come and go, but principles survive."

always accompanied by the sacred whirling Dervish whose terpsichorean efforts is a supposed shield against the Spirit of Accident. Elephantine movements of a graceful nature are an attendant adjunct to East Indian religious festivals and Max Gruber's sextette, composed of elephant, man, woman, horse, pony and canine, execute a specially adapted "cotillon du monde" in the globe encircling spectacle of the Far East. None excel in style, rhythmic action and apparent enjoyment the mammoth pachyderm queen "Minnie."

The Friskin Russian (Muscovite) dancers present a vivid and marvelous action, "four de force," combined with these graceful evolutions peculiar to the Russian peasant dancers. This number presented by actual natives of Russia, gives to the spectator the basic foundation from which has evolved that higher exposition in the Art Dances that is now thrilling the opera audiences of the world, and whose principal exponents are Anna Pavlova and Mordkin.

The American Indian's principal diversions at fetes and festivals is his repertoire of dances, from the Lova Dance, the wedding, the Corn, the Sun, with its torture (really a relic of the Dance of Death), and his stirring and barbaric war dances.

A stud of trained horses are also very susceptible to the quickly acquiring Polka, a group of them arousing the risibilities of the spectator by ending a dancing carnival with the hoochie-koochie.

We must not forget the thrill and dash of the cowboys and ranch girls in the Virginia reel on horseback. As far back as the days of the Central West, when the sod hut and the log cabin were too limited in area, and all the boys and girls were saddle experts, nature's green sward was chosen for the ball room, and horses used in a fashion that must have astonished the Muse Terpsichore as she looked down from her eyrie ball room on high. The western boys and girls on their agile hooved bronchos, spiritedly and picturesquely participate in riding to the stirring music of the cowboy band. Guided by a touch of the hand, the quick witted, intelligent bronchos, in perfect time, execute every figure with such alacrity that bright curls, long locks and tossing manes are breezily intermingled in a marvelous scene of gayest animation. Well may the aged belle of the season sigh longingly for such a frolic and such partners.

This variegated program, exploiting the light fantastic, has a rapidity of action that does not tire, and act as pleasing interludes to the more thrilling and stirring events that go to make the wonderful program of the Wild West and Far East.

LITTLE CHANGE IN COTTON

FROST PREDICTION HALTS SLUMP IN QUOTATIONS.

Buying is Not Very Aggressive—Rally is Barely Held Up—Close is Steady.

New York, Sept. 21.—The cotton market received its official frost prediction, first of the season, today but no very aggressive buying developed and a moderate rally was barely maintained, with the close steady net one point higher to five points lower.

The market opened steady at unchanged prices to a decline of one point under week-end trading. Prices eased off to a net loss of 5 to 7 points on the active months during the first few minutes but when the western belt forecast was issued, calling for cooler weather and frost, the selling became less active and the market rallied to about yesterday's closing on covering of fresh buying for the long account. The rally, however, reflected little apprehension that the temperature would materially hurt the crop and the market in the later trading was unsettled with the close 4 or 5 points off from the best.

Cotton futures closed steady.

New Orleans, Sept. 21.—Cotton futures opened steady at a decline of 5 to 6 points on poor cables and the failure of frost to materialize in the western belt. Buyers of yesterday turned sellers and around the call the ring found it difficult to absorb offerings readily. At the lowest the trading months were 6 to eight points down. The forecast of frost for the Texas Panhandle and of showers in the eastern belt, where they would prove injurious to the crop, caused good buying and made a quick recovery, standing unchanged to 1 point up compared with yesterday's close at the end of the first half hour.

The market had a steady tone during a greater part of the session. Shorts were nervous and inclined to cover on the danger of colder weather in the western belt over Sunday, and the demand for covers was met by only slender offerings. Hedge selling appeared to be very small in spite of the contention of bears that the spot demand was insignificant and that spot owners would be obliged to look to the future market for protection. At the highest of the morning prices were 1 to 2 points over yesterday's final quotations.

The close was steady at a net decline of 2 to 4 points.

WEEKLY COTTON REVIEW.

No Wide Movement in the New Orleans Market.

New Orleans, Sept. 21.—The net change in prices in the cotton market this week was insignificant, the most active months showing a net loss of four points to a net advance of two points. There was no wide price movement at any time during the week, the extreme range being only 29¢@35¢. The high prices were made on Thursday and the low prices on Monday and Tuesday. At the highest the trading months were 3¢@10¢ points over last week's close; at the lowest they were 23¢@25¢ points under.

The reason for the quiet condition was that the main features about balance one another. Reports of deterioration, storms in the western belt and the first cold wave of the season were offset by the heavy movement of the crop in Texas, enormous gin-nings and large offerings of spots. There was much conflict of opinion over every question and at the end of the week neither side could claim much of an advantage over the other. Because of this state of affairs, traders and particularly professional traders, took a scalping attitude and seemed to be as willing to operate on the short as on the long side.

The balancing of the features was carried into the weekly statistics. The net sight movement was smaller than was expected and the out of sight was less than looked for. For the week there came into sight 342,694 bales against 407,653 the same week last year. Mills took 138,000 bales against 162,000 last year. The bear claim was that the absence of a good spot demand was chiefly responsible for the comparatively small movement. Bulls contended that high freight rates was preventing the shipment of cotton to foreign mills and that takings were restricted in consequence.

In the spot department prices made no net change, middling closing at 11 7-16 against 11 7-16 last week and 10 13-16 this week last year. Sales on the spot amounted to 2312 bales against 1918 last week and 1153 this week last year. Sales to arrive amounted to 3120 bales against 3950 last week and 9175 this week last year.

WHEAT IS SLIGHTLY OFF

RALLY RESULTS FROM REPORTS OF COLD WEATHER.

Corn Prices Drop in Consequence of General Rains Assuring Abundant Pasturage.

Chicago, Sept. 21.—Thrashing delays this side of the Canadian border and crop damage across the line proved insufficient today to affect wheat. Closing prices were easy, ¼¢@½¢ under last night. The outcome in corn varied from ¼¢ decline to ¼¢ advance, oats finished ¼¢@½¢ off to ¼¢ up, and provisions less costly by a shade to 17½¢.

Cold, wet weather northwest brought a midseason rally in the wheat market, but at other times the prevailing influence came from disappointing cables and the piling up of primary receipts. Exporters said foreign business was out of the question if even a further break of a cent in country elevator holdings of wheat in the Dakotas and Minnesota appeared ample to avert any stoppage in the crop movement. Weakness in the corn market also hindered the wheat bulls.

Abundant pasturage until snowfall was said to have been assured by general rains last night and today. As a result corn prices took the down grade. Fear of frost disappeared as an immediate influence. Shorts, however, had been too badly punished to do much selling. Cash grades were in fair demand.

Oats displayed more strength than any other grain. September shorts were covering in a lively manner and shipping demand was good.

Provisions sagged, owing to the improved outlook for fall feed. Closing figures were about the lowest of the day. Pork was down 7½¢@17½¢ and other products were a shade down to a shade up.

LOCAL WHOLESALE TRADE

BANANAS GO UP HALF A CENT A POUND.

Only One Concern at Galveston Handling Fruit, and Price is Tilted.

An advance of half a cent per pound on bananas at Galveston to Waco has been put into effect, as the result of the withdrawal from the Galveston market of the Atlantic Fruit Distributing company. This company, which has been one of the two great banana companies of the Galveston port, has withdrawn from Galveston and returned to New Orleans. As a result the Fruit Dispatch company, a branch of the United Fruit company, and the only remaining large fruit company at Galveston, has put into effect the increase in price. Local wholesale produce merchants believe that the two companies which were in outward appearance rivals for the Galveston business, are in fact friendly and the withdrawal of the Atlantic company from the Galveston field was understood by each. At any rate the remaining company, the Fruit Dispatch company has announced the increase in bananas of half a cent per pound. The advance has been guaged so as to bring the cost of the bananas shipped from Galveston, up to the cost of shipments from New Orleans were Central Texas merchants to go to that port to secure their fruit. The freight rate from Galveston to Waco is 42 cents on the 100 pounds. From New Orleans it is 72 cents on the 100 pounds. Local wholesale men say the Galveston company had added the difference in freight rate of thirty cents from Galveston to the price of the bananas, and then 20 cents a 100 pounds more. If New Orleans does not advance, the New Orleans distributors will be in the market.

California fruits are becoming more plentiful on the local market, and next week's prices promise to show a reduction under those of this week.

Potatoes are advancing, the advance being caused, among other things, by the scarcity of cars for shipping the product. The price has advanced 10 cents per bushel and sales are now around 95 cents.

In the wholesale drug markets, carbon bi-sulphide, is showing an active market, the product advancing from 10 1-2 to 15 cents per pound, in 100-pound lots, and with a higher market in lesser quantities.

Among out-of-town merchants in Waco Saturday were:

At the McLendon Hardware company, T. B. Stedham, with E. A. Flinn, prominent merchant of Jones Prairie, Mr. Flinn's business and stock was burned some little time ago, and yesterday's visit to Waco was to purchase a supply of general merchandise and hardware.

STOCK PRICES ASCEND

NEW HIGH RECORD FOR UNITED STATES STEEL.

Reading, Union Pacific and Lehigh Valley Rise—Improvement is Noted in Bonds.

New York, Sept. 21.—On a volume of business uncommonly large for a week end, the stock exchange added materially to the advance of yesterday. The movement was less broad, speculation centering around the favorites, such as United States Steel, which established another high record for the year. Reading and Union Pacific, Lehigh Valley rose smartly on advices pointing to excellent trade conditions. This was shown not only in the company's August statement with a net increase of $259,000, but in the unprecedented demand for anthracite coal in the west at higher prices.

Bonds manifested some improvement with large transactions in speculative issues; total sales $3,500,000. United States bonds 5s advanced ¼ per cent on call during the week.

ON CLEAN-UP CAMPAIGN.

Dr. M. M. Carrick is Making Tour of Texas.

Dr. M. M. Carrick of Dallas, medical director in charge of Holland's Magazine Cleanest Town contest, is registered at the Metropole. Dr. Carrick says that many of the towns entered have shown remarkable interest and very thorough clean-up campaigns have been inaugurated in the state; and that the contest has aroused civic pride and a desire for municipal cleanliness which will be felt in Texas for years to come.

The idea of the contest is not to encourage temporary clean-ups, but the maintenance of municipal cleanliness—in other words, that towns shall not only clean up, but they shall be kept clean.

JOHN C. EATON'S WILL

WAS NEVER CHANGED FOR 31 YEARS AFTER WRITING.

Document Was Witnessed by Judge John C. West—Is Admitted to Probate.

In all of 31 years John C. Eaton never changed his mind with reference to the disposition of his estate on his death, if the filing of his will yesterday, which was admitted to probate in the county court, can be taken as evidence. The document is dated February, 1881, and is witnessed by John C. West and Mary E. West, who are said to have been Mr. Eaton's neighbors at the time the will was prepared.

The will first provides that the testatrix be given a decent Christian burial, that all of his just debts be paid from his estate and that the remainder go to his wife, Mary P. Eaton. Five lots on the corner of Fifth and Dutton streets are mentioned in the document.

BAYLOR SESSION OPENS MONDAY

MANY OLD STUDENTS HERE TO WELCOME NEWCOMERS AND SHOW THEM.

HIGHER STANDARD NOW

University Is Getting Higher Grade of Scholarship Every Year—Societies Help Strangers.

With a large number of both old and new students already on hand and with every train bringing more of each class the prospect for a large attendance upon the opening day of the new session at Baylor University tomorrow morning is assured. The first day's work of the sixty-eighth annual session will begin at 9 o'clock Monday morning with the exercises in Carroll Chapel and it will be necessary that all students be on hand at that hour to hear the various announcements as to the work of that day and those immediately succeeding it.

Patrons of the school who may be here with their sons and daughters need fear no difficulty in getting them classified provided they attend the chapel exercises Monday morning and hear the detailed announcements regarding what needs to be done. The method and places for classification will be announced at that time and there will be plenty of former students who will be willing to give such direction and aid to the new students as will be necessary in getting them straightened out for work on the first day. New students should present a record of the work done at former places so that they can be placed here with as little loss of time and effort as possible.

For several years past each recurring session has witnessed the advent of a higher grade of student, from the standpoint of previous training, at Baylor and it is believed that this year will be only a continuation of that rule, for the institution is making its appeal to the graduates of high schools, academies and college colleges, as well as to the country boy and girl who has had fewer educational opportunities. The increase that has come in the attendance has been more largely from the city schools, academies and colleges rather than from the country, and this has made possible a higher standard of work.

No new student will long remain a stranger in Baylor circles. For several days the representatives of the Philomathean and Epsilon Phi societies have been meeting the trains and bidding the new students welcome and the rivalry between the two societies for the new men is as keen as ever. Both societies have met regularly during the summer, have maintained campaign committees that could give old-time politicians a few pointers, and each one has headquarters on the University grounds where prospective students can learn all about the glorious history of the two organizations and get any other favor that they may suggest.

There is also keen rivalry among the young women of the R. C. B. and Calloopean societies, but naturally their campaigns can not be conducted on the same lines as those carried on by the young men, though they assume strenuous stages at times.

The formal opening of the new term will be held at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning when all of the new students will be introduced and Prof. Evans, the pianist who has been away for the past year doing advanced work in Berlin, will play. Friends who heard him in Berlin before he returned home declare he has made wonderful progress and there will be many of his friends in the city who will be glad of an opportunity to hear him in his first appearance in this city since his return. It is expected that classification will be so adjusted as to permit the beginning of class room work Tuesday afternoon.

TO DO CHRISTIAN WORK.

Organizations at Baylor Are Getting Ready for Year.

Representatives of the state Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. organizations will be in Waco this week for the purpose of aiding the local workers at Baylor University start off the religious work of the new year.

L. A. Coulter, state secretary of the Y. M. C. A., will meet with the college Y. M. C. A. next Friday afternoon and address them on some phase of the work as related to the college organization, and Prof. J. W. Harrell, secretary of the organization, is arranging to give Mr. Coulter a large hearing.

A whole week will be spent at Baylor by Miss Helen King, state secretary of the Y. W. C. A. with headquarters at Austin. Miss King is one of the best workers of the association in the state, and the fact that she is to spend a whole week aiding the local workers in launching their year's plans, is evidence of the importance which she attaches to what is done at Baylor. She is assured hearty co-operation by the young women of the institution. This is only the second year of the association work at Baylor and large results are anticipated throughout the term.

Building Activity in Waco

Improvements Being Made in School Buildings and Business Houses—Many Modern Homes Are Being Completed

Despite the fact that architects think building has been quiet in Waco during the summer, a number of structures are now nearing completion, many of them handsome residences.

The Sam Sanger home on Washington street between Eighteenth and Nineteenth streets, will be ready for occupancy within a short time. The home is elaborately finished, both within and without and will be one of the handsomest places of the city when the last touches have been put on.

J. A. Freeman is building a handsome cottage home in Providence Heights, which, though small, will be finished as elaborately on the interior as any residence in the city. A hot water heating system will keep the home warm in winter and the house is supplied with vacuum cleaners. The porches, floored with cement, are large and roomy. The roof is of dull green glazed tiles. The garage and servant's house are both of brick.

Streeter Apartments.

The Streeter apartments, being erected on North Fifth street, will be as handsome as any in this section of the state. The building will be of brick work throughout and will have a cement floored porch. A vacuum cleaning plant will be installed and all of the modern conveniences of the big city apartment will be furnished. Plans have also been completed for the residence to be erected by J. W. McKee in the new Alta Vista Place. The home will be comfortable and every convenience will be installed. Architect Roy E. Lane also has plans almost complete for the erection of another residence in the same district.

The Number 5 fire station, Bell's Hill, is now nearing completion. The building has been used by the city for a little more than two years, but was never completed, the appropriation for its completion has been made only recently. The finishing touches are being put on the ceiling and the plastering will be completed within a few days. It is said that within the next two weeks the work will have been entirely completed.

Aside from the structures named, Architect Roy E. Lane is preparing the plans for six other residences which are to be built in Waco within a short time.

To Remodel McClelland Hotel.

In the hands of Architect Milton Scott are a number of plans, some already completed and some being prepared for new structures and the remodeling of old ones.

The McClelland hotel is soon to be remodeled in order to accommodate the overflow business of the Sanger

Brook stores. The second, third and fourth floors of the section to be used by the stores, will be devoted to the wholesale department, while the store will have additional space on the ground floor. The building to be utilized by the Sanger concern is part of the hotel property but not of the hotel proper. The plans are now nearing completion for the work. The remodeling will begin on January 1 and be completed within thirty days.

Plans are being drawn up for a residence on South Fourth street to be constructed by Dr. A. B. Barton. The house will be of stucco, containing ten rooms and will be of two stories. The interior finishing will be handsome.

J. R. Milam will build a two-story brick residence soon on the lot on which his present home is situated, Twelfth street, near the park.

The work of remodeling the building on the corner of Fourth and Austin streets where the old Exchange National Bank was situated, is in progress. A modern front will be put up and the interior will be arranged for a gent's furnishings concern.

School Buildings Improved.

Work on the East Waco school building has been completed with the exception of a few of the details connected with the heating plant. The school has been remodeled, about $10,000 having been expended on the work during the summer.

Four rooms have been added to the Bell's Hill school during the summer and these have been completed, with the exception of a few of the details. The rooms are now in use for the regular school work.

The work of remodeling the Central school building has been extensive, about $12,000 having been expended on it during the past summer. A steam heating plant has been installed and sanitary arrangements made. The school this term will be safer, more sanitary and comfortable than ever before.

R. T. Dennis & Company are now putting two additional stories to the building on South Fifth and Austin. This will give the company 50x155 feet on each of the new floors.

Goldstein-Migel Company will erect a 40-foot electric sign on the front of its building on the corner of Sixth and Austin avenue.

Abel Gross has completed the remodeling of his residence on the corner of Sixteenth and West streets and the home is now occupied.

H. A. Weddington took possession of his new two-story home on the corner of Seventeenth and Blair streets about the middle of September.

J. H. Fisher is erecting a two-story home on the corner of Eighteenth. The building is being constructed of brown and red brick.

Dr. H. W. Smith is remodeling his residence on the corner of Seventeenth and Sanger.

Three cottages, owned by Mr. McAtee and situated on Burleson, are nearing completion. They are of the bungalow type.

In Waco Territory.

Some building is also going on in the Waco territory.

A handsome $10,000 Baptist church has been begun at Eddy, while at Hamilton the Hamilton Bank & Trust company is erecting a handsome home of brick and reinforced concrete, which will be absolutely fireproof.

J. K. Freeman, proprietor of the Commercial hotel at Cameron, is having that hostelry thoroughly remodeled. Travelers who saw the place before the work was begun and who see it when it is completed will scarcely know the hotel.

PRINTERS ASK UNION WORK

ON TEXT BOOKS TO BE ADOPTED FOR THE SCHOOLS OF TEXAS.

LETTER TO THE BOARD

J. Will Moore, President of Waco Local, Outlines Reasons for Consideration of Organized Labor.

A movement has been started throughout the state to have the state text book board require that all books adopted for use in the public schools of this city be the work of offices which recognize the International Typographical union.

Just now local unions throughout the state are taking the matter up, and yesterday J. Will Moore of this city, president of Waco Typographical union No. 188, sent the following letter to the various members of the text book board:

"In the interest of organized labor in Texas and throughout the United States, it is earnestly requested by Waco Typographical union that in the selection of school books which you are to take up immediately for the Texas schools for the coming five years, that you will give consideration to those bidders who employ union labor. We are not endeavoring to exploit the product of any particular firm. We are anxious that the state text book board shall require that the school books be manufactured under conditions fair to union labor and then the school book companies can compete under these conditions.

"We believe that the firms manufacturing school books under fair conditions toward organized labor can and will supply a superior product to the consumers of this state.

"The organized workers, you will find upon investigation, are taxpayers and law-abiding citizens, and are entitled at least to investigation and consideration, in the bestowal of contracts of this nature.

"We ask this in order that the school children of Texas may get their educations from books not produced in sweat shops.

"Your earnest consideration of this subject is requested in the bestowal of contracts soon to be awarded by your board."

IF YOUR LIVER IS INACTIVE AND BOWELS WASTE-CLOGGED

Delicious "Syrup of Figs" Removes the Sour Bile, Foul Gases and Waste From the System Without Gripes or Nausea—Regulates Your Stomach and Bowels.

Primitive folks did not need laxatives. They lived outdoors, ate plenty of fruit, and all of their food was coarse. We modern people are different. We exercise too little, eat little fruit, and our food is too fine—too rich.

We simply can't have our ten yards of bowels clogged up, liver choked with sour bile and stomach full of foul effete matter and feel well. It means that the food and waste retained in the stomach and thirty feet of bowels ferments—decays. The decay creates poisons, gases and acids, and those poisons are sucked into the blood through the very ducts intended to suck in the nutriment. Then we have sick headache, become dull, bilious, tongue coated, nervous, meals don't digest, and we feel miserable all over. So we must make our choice.

We must live like primitive folks, else we must take artificial means to move the excess bile and waste matter on and out of the system. The safest, most harmless and effective stomach, liver and bowel cleanser and regulator for men, women and children—is delicious Syrup of Figs, which doesn't irritate, gripe or weaken. Its effect is the effect of fruits. It is composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics. Don't think you are dragging yourself. Syrup of Figs can be constantly used without harm.

Ask your druggist for "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," and see on the label that it is prepared by The California Fig Syrup Company. This is the only genuine—the old reliable. Refuse, with contempt, the so-called Fig Syrup imitations sometimes offered to deceive you.
